From the Wreck.

SEAMAN QUINTON SAFE.

Mr. Eric Bowring received a message from Capt. Kennedy of the Terra Nova, which harbored at Cape Broyle last night, stating that Naval Reservist Quinton who was reported as losing his life while assisting in the rescue of the survivors was safe on board the Terra Nova and quite well. We since learn from passengers who came in on the Trepassey train this morning from Cape Broyle that Quinton while at the scene of the disaster was engaged doing deck duty and at no time was he in the small rescue boats. Hon. Tasker Cook, Mr. J. Baxter of the Reid Navigation Co. and others who remained at the wreck, returned to the city by this morning's train. They report having heard from fishermen that the body of a young boy could be seen late last evening drifting towards the shore, but cannot say if the body was rescued this morning or not. The shore is strewn with wreckage of all descriptions, including packages of herring and fish, ships' doors, fittings, clothing and the belongings of passengers and crew, and numerous other articles. All within reach is being salvaged. The greater part of the hull still holds on to the reef as if by defiance of the angry seas that pound against it. The Terra Nova has gone back to the scene of the wreck and will resume the search for the missing bodies as soon as the sea permits.

Few Cents Destroys Your Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair

Save your hair! Make it thick, wavy and beautiful—by this! Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.
Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have that appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Hr. Grace Notes.

A terrible gloom was cast over the town as no doubt over the whole island, when the news was flashed along the wires that the S. S. Florizel with her 150 souls on board had been lost yesterday morning near Cape Race. The news this morning was a little better when it was learned that some 40 survivors had been rescued. Several Harbor Guards are known to have been on board.

Miss Rose Sheppard, daughter of Mr. L. Sheppard, had decided to go to Boston by the Florizel this trip, but at the last moment changed her mind, deciding to wait until the middle of March.

A rumour was current in town that the home of one of our prominent citizens had been quarantined for smallpox. If such is the case, then no expense should be spared in keeping this troublesome disease under control, and eventually putting it under altogether.

Dr. W. S. Goodwin, Miss L. Butt, Miss M. McKay and Mr. R. Hanrahan were among the passengers from St. John's by Saturday night's train.

Owing to the illness of Rev. A. A. Holmes, the Rev. E. S. Coffin occupied the pulpit at the Methodist Church in the afternoon, and in the evening Rev. T. H. James, D.D.

Mr. Thomas Ryan of Carbonear Road, died early this morning after an extended illness. Mr. Ryan was a successful farmer and his opinion on all farming matters were very valuable, and freely given when asked for. He leaves one sister and niece to mourn his death.

To-Day's Messages.

RAMPANT PRUSSIANISM.

LONDON, To-day.
Reuter's Ottawa Agency—An article in the Westminster Gazette on the Russian-German peace terms is worth quoting, because it not only echoes the general feeling on these terms but reflects opinion in many quarters which had hitherto been disposed to give the Bolshevik regime a run and judge it solely by results. The situation again reveals the Prussian in his true colors. The article says he has no mercy on those unable to resist him. He is dismembering Russia as his forebears partitioned Poland, and there will be no Russia left in the coming century if he can help it. The Baltic provinces and marine under one form and another are to be ransacked of the Central Empire. Poland becomes enslaved and helpless at the disposal of the same powers. Its boundaries are cut and carved with fiendish ingenuity to keep the various races and nationalities in the greatest possible discontent with each other, so they cannot combine against their over-lords. The Turk is to be reinstated in Armenia and given the opportunity of exterminating the population which survived the massacres. For cynicism and callousness the thing is without parallel and if it stands it means an insupportable legacy of trouble, strife and discontent for the world. The article proceeds to show the impossibility of the Allied and Labor war aims and the Prussian aims. It points out that the aims of Labor are in the present circumstances a renewed call to arms and not a pacific Vade-mecum, and that those subscribing to these aims must be prepared to fight, sacrifice and endure until their will proves stronger than the enemy's; for the aims cannot be secured in any other way. The Bolshevik way of words and phrases finally leaves those who pursue it, at the mercy of the conqueror. The article concludes, "and those who read the war aims of Labor might be inclined to ask helplessly how they can make good? What can we do for the Poles? How can we redeem the Russian provinces now in the clutches of the Central Powers? We answer that greater forces are still on the side of the Allies, who control, apart from military forces, the whole world outside Europe and can place their veto on the enemy's commerce, and his access to the sea, and force him to pay a ruinous price for his aggressions in Europe. It is our part to say we won't sanction this aggression and dismemberment and that we stake all our resources and all that we own upon procuring a just and civilized control by an international system for the world and upon that line we can appeal to the working people of the allied nations.

working smoothly. Persons of the poorer classes appear to be well pleased with the change because they're no longer compelled to stand in line at the markets. The success of the plan, as far as it relates to the conserving of available supplies of meat and to bring about more even distribution among all classes, was indicated quickly. Restaurants and hotels offered meat dishes for luncheon as usual, but few purchased them. At one of the largest restaurants in the city, only four meat orders were served and at others, few, if any, were dispensed, as butter and margarine virtually disappeared long ago in restaurants. The rationing plan is little noticed except in homes where distribution is undoubtedly more even.

BABY SLEIGHS.

There are none on sale in the city, but we can supply an extra good substitute. We have Bright Metal Runners which can be attached to your baby carriage without any trouble.

All you have to do is to remove the wheels from the axle and put the Runners right in their places, this can be done by means of little clutches that go with the runners.

You will then have a most comfortable sleigh with hood and springs, which all will admit is much more cosy than the ordinary sleigh, which has neither hood nor springs.

FLOODS IN ONTARIO.

LONDON, Ont. To-day.
Heavy damage from floods, in London and other districts, is reported to-day. Following a mild day, rain fell heavily for two hours and the river rose rapidly. In the vicinity of White Oak and Dingman's Creek, it is reported to have risen nearly six feet, flooding the fields and barns and causing heavy damage. Grave fears are entertained for those in that district, and in the Komoka district all efforts to reduce floods caused by a seven mile log jam failed to-day, and with a huge volume of water sweeping from all over the country the greatest flood in years is expected. Hundreds of people remained up all night, and many have vacated their homes, fearing trouble. All cattle were driven from the danger places.

WILL REJOIN THE STAFF.—Mr. A. E. Gardiner, formerly of the reporter staff of the Telegram, called at this office this morning and with the exception of a little stiffness in his right leg is feeling as good as could be expected considering his trying experience. He has been offered his former position and after a short rest at his home, Britannia, for which he leaves on Thursday's express, he will rejoin the staff. Mr. Gardiner lost a considerable amount of money and other valuables in the wreck.

AT THE MORGUE.—The bodies of three men, supposed to be members of the crew of the ill-fated Florizel, one of whom has the appearance of a Spaniard, arrived by the Trepassey train this morning and were removed to the Morgue by Undertaker Carnell. The remains of two were in perfect condition while the other is badly battered.

FROM YESTERDAY'S C O'LOCK

SPECIAL EDITION.

THE WORK OF THE HAWK AT WRECK OF FLORIZEL.
The Hawk left here at 3.45 p.m. yesterday direct for the scene of the wreck and ran the whole distance at a uniform speed of 11 knots. The sea at times betrays very high. Arrived at the wreck at 8 o'clock. Saw the Home anchored outside. Hawk went alongside Home which had already sent a boat, but without result owing to waves and running sea. The Terra Nova and Gordon C. had been obliged to run into Kermucque for shelter. The Hawk steamed in toward the Florizel after speaking the Home in order to ascertain if any life on board or any sign of life, but could not discern any at that time. The vessel anchored at about three cables length from the stranded steamer and a boat manned by Capt. Dalton and two Naval Reservists was lowered, which went as near Florizel as safety permitted. No evidences of life were observed at this time and because of fogging sea the boat could not approach any nearer. A second attempt was made to get alongside by the same boat and crew from Hawk but was unavailing. At 3.30 a.m. to-day Prospero appeared, and at the same time Hawk's boat in making third attempt took along Capt. Simonsen as an additional help. They heard people calling from Florizel and worked flashlights in hope of getting response from those whom they were now sure of being on board wreck, and rowing nearer "hatted" which was answered. Capt. Simonsen asked how many were left alive? to which they fancied that the reply was 40, but owing to the noise of the sea the reply could not be distinctly heard. Boat then went back to Hawk to report, and in the meantime Prospero sent off a boat, which, however, filled with water and washed out chief engineer, two men and one fireman who formed the crew. They were rescued by Hawk boat's crew and taken on board Prospero, which boat was righted and taken back to the ship. At daylight the Gordon C. Capt. Perry, which had been riding out the sea at Farmhouse, came on the scene and at once sent off a boat. All ships now got out kedges, and a line was got to the wreck when two lady passengers were taken off by the Gordon C.'s boat. The next lot was taken off by the Hawk's boat, this vessel being now within 60 yards of the wrecked steamer, and making supreme efforts to hold this position, though at times they were obliged to back away. The sea was now somewhat calm and the Hawk could not hold up all night, and many have vacated their homes, fearing trouble. All cattle were driven from the danger places.

HEROISM.
The dauntless courage displayed by Capt. Perry, of the little steamer Gordon C., in rescuing a number of survivors of the ill-fated Florizel as told us by an eyewitness is another example of seamanship worthy of recognition by the Humane Society or other such organizations. Capt. Perry, in company with the Chief Officer of the Gordon C., were the first to reach the doomed ship and taking the two women survivors first returned to a lifeboat that was standing by a short distance away.

Seaman Budden then took the place of the chief engineer in the rescue boat and twice more did they succeed in bringing the shipwrecked passengers and crew to the lifeboat.

A terrific sea more violent than ever now swept over the doomed ship and in making the fourth attempt to get alongside the Florizel the little rescue boat was capsized and its occupants thrown into the sea.

After much difficulty the apparently lifeless form of Capt. Perry was picked up by a crew from the S. S. Home, who taking him on board their ship worked unceasingly for three quarters of an hour before bringing him to

"Till I Exchange My Sword

FOR THE VICTOR'S CROWN MY HAND IS ON THE HILT!"

FATHER VAUGHAN.

Father Vaughan has been on the minutographs this week, making good "copy" in cassock and biretta. He told his Trafalgar Square audience recently that he appeared before them in his clerical uniform to let them know that since being a Jesuit he was just as patriotic an Englishman as he was then a civilian. Told by one of the crowd: "Your Pope would not agree with your war views," he replied: "And why should he? If common, ordinary folk like you and me have a right to our views about the war, its origin and aims, surely so august a personage as His Holiness the Pope may be allowed to have his." (Cheers.)

Asked by another if he was not wretched for a priest he replied: "You must remember that I do not belong to the Church Triumphant, but to the Church Militant. When I can exchange my sword for the victor's crown I will do so, but till then my hand is on the hilt." Father Vaughan having suggested a cold sea-bath for the peace-at-a-way price may someone want to know whether he could find that doctrine in Scripture. "Yes," replied the speaker, "and a stronger dose than mine, because a stronger dose than mine, because the Divine Teacher suggested that a millstone should be hung about the neck of a scandal-monger before he was thrown into the sea." "To me," added the speaker, "the peace-at-any-price man is a scandal-monger; call him back for the millstone." (Cheers and laughter.)

Father Vaughan said that one of his Monday audience had written to ask him whether he was aware that Christ was the Prince of Peace. Father Vaughan said he would answer that question by putting another: Did his friend know that Christ was the Lord of Hosts? If, in one hand, He carried the olive wreath of peace for men who were of good will, in the other He bore the sword of justice for those who were not. Some, perhaps of his own countrymen, might wake up to find the olive wreath gone but the sword still there.—London Paper.
