BREAKS ONE WILLY RECORD.

Harvey Skirling, our local one mile runner, established a new record for that distance yesterday, and is receiving the congratulations of his many friends. Skirling, who has been in the running game but a few years has made rapid strides as an athlete, and whilst he has specialized in the one mile race at all our sporting meets with great success, it was always his one ambition to lower the record of 4.50 held by Mr. Fred Marshall. On one or two occasions last year he barely missed shortening that mark by a scant few seconds; and yesterday, by running a well timed race, he credited for himself a record which he should feel proud of. Congratulations.

10 MILE ROAD RACE.

The 10 Mile Road Race was a feature of the sports. A field of eight competitors started from the Octagon at 3.26 p.m. Mr. C. J. Ellis, the official in charge started them on the way. Shortly after leaving Donovan's the pace and heat began to tell, and Dodd, who had a nice easy stride, took the lead, closely followed by Ralph, while six others were closely bunched in the rear. The Sanatorium was reached in 42.20, Dodd then leading by 200 yards. Coming along Central Avenue he increased his lead slightly. He passed the White House where Ralph was at the Maternity Home and Russell but a few yards in the rear.

On reaching the field Dodd was quite fresh, and he finished the two rounds in fine style, finishing the race in a splendid burst of speed in 66.25. Russell, second, and Ralph, third.

Dodd, the winner, is a plucky lad of only 18 years, and his first appearance was in the Telegram Road Race last year, when he took fourth place. He is deserving of his victory and bids fair to make a real champion. The Committee in charge are very grateful to C. E. Hunt, W. R. Neal and Ern Chafe for the use of their cars, and they also wish to thank the motorists who used Topsall Road during the progress of the race, for the assistance they gave in stopping when the runners passed.

At the conclusion of each event, Mrs. Col. Rendell, graciously presented the prizes to the winners.

The C.L.B.C. Band, under Capt Morris rendered splendid music throughout the entire day. The sports program was well arranged and carried into flawless execution and those who participated may feel justly proud.

Government Store Will be Opened.

Related returns from the Manitoba liquor plebiscite show a more decisive defeat for prohibition than was first reported. Winnipeg and St. Boniface have gone "wet" by majorities of 26,000 and 3,000 respectively, while the rural vote has broken about even on the question. Following the vote, Premier Bracken announces a special session of the Legislature for the last week in July, to give effect to the people's will by a repeal of the Manitoba Temperance Act and the enactment of a law providing for the establishment of a Liquor Commission and for the sale of liquor by Government stores. But before the Legislature meets, the people of Manitoba are to have a chance to open the floodgates further. On July 11th a referendum will be voted on to determine whether light wines and beer may be served in cafes and hotel dining-rooms. Sentiment now being in a liquid state in Manitoba, an affirmative verdict may be anticipated on this second question. Perhaps it would be as well that such a course should be followed, considering the matter broadly. The more complete the present reaction against temperance reform, the stronger will be the counter forces of progress later on. For there cannot be the slightest question as to the modern trend, however, the waves of passing opinion may rise and fall. The general movement is toward moral progress, with which the liquor traffic is in complete conflict—Sydney Post.

Barnum in American Pantheon.

Whatever you may think of Barnum's methods—and he himself recognized that some of them were doubtful—it must be admitted that he contributed to the sum of diversion more than almost anyone who ever lived, writes the most eminent of American historical essayists Gamaliel Bailey, in "The Atlantic Monthly." He estimated that he had exhibited to over eighty-two million persons, young and old, male and female, rich and poor, wise and unwise; and, if the entertainment was not always elevating, it was usually harmless, and sometimes distinctly profitable. He made a show of everything and he was himself, in many respects, the greatest, the greatest show of all, displaying his own expansive, jovial personality in the arena, on the platform, and especially in the innumerable pages of his strange, amusing, sincere, self-reflecting, "Autobiography."

He understood that you must not only know how to make entertainment, you must know how to sell it. Coming at the beginning of the great age of publicity, he at once appreciated the force of that mighty instrument and played upon it with a master hand. He beat the drum and blew the trumpet at the door of his circus-tent, till the whole wide world was driven to look at him. "If it had not been for printer's ink," he said, I should have been no bigger than Tom Thumb." But he used far more than printer's ink; he used every cunning device that could be conceived for stimulating the endless curiosity of men and women and coining it into dollars.

He was as thoroughly American as he was human. He had the infinite American resourcefulness; if he could not get his end by one means, he would try another. He had American democracy, believed in the average man, in his intelligence, his uprightness, his good intention. He had American good-nature, could make a joke and take one, and face trouble with a smile. The first of typical Americans was Franklin, the second was Lincoln, and Barnum was no contemptible third.

The Use of Seaweed.

Certainly few people think the masses of seaweed which they see washed up on the beach are of any commercial value. But seaweed—waste though it is—has many uses. The broad, thick stem and flat leaves of the so-called oar-weed, when thoroughly dried, are used for making knife-handles. From another weed of the sea, known as carrageen moss, size is extracted easily, which is used in the process of calico printing. The long, narrow leaves of the grass wrack are gathered and well dried, and are sold for packing material, as well as for use to "bed down" cattle and cows and other stock.

"All along the coast of Nova Scotia the farmers collect what is known as Nova Scotian eel grass, which is rather like the grass wrack of the coasts of Britain. The eel grass is thoroughly dried, and shipped off to Boston, Montreal, Philadelphia, and other centres, to be used in the wadding of airtight, noiseless doors, as well as making the finest of filling for upholstery and serving many other useful purposes.

In some parts, including the Welsh coast, and the West of Ireland, Brittany, Sweden, Finland, the folk, as do the Kamchatkans, use the green and purple lavers—some call them sea lettuce—for food, after boiling the leaves down. So utilized, too, is another seaweed of a deep reddish tint, the dulse, which is cooked fresh and eaten in the same way as cabbage. Another seaweed, of a creamy colour and fine filigree pattern, is an excellent substitute for Iceland moss, that most nutritious species of lichen. "Thousands of farmers, British and others, make money out of collecting
