VENEZUELA'S CLAIM

As Presented by Counsel Storrow-Comments of the London Times.

London, July 21 .- It is stated that Venezuela's brief prepared by Counsel Storrow and presented to the Venezuela Commission, as well as the British counsel, is the most important paper that has so far appeared in the case. In this brief, it is claimed, true divisional line in accordance with the evidence is laid down. Mr. Storrow contends that there never has been any British sovereignty in the disputed territory; that the Dutch never gained the slightest foothold in the Orinoco basin, and therefore never transferred what did not exist to Great Britain, and also claims that the Schomburgk line had by Lord Salisbury was a forgery perpetrated by the English Government 20 years after Schomburgk's death Commenting on the Venezuelan brief the Times says that it contains nothing but a series of unproved propositions, which are, with very few exceptions, directly contradicted by the conclusions of the Britby the conclusions of the Brit-ish blue book on the Venezuelan dispute and the testimony there referred to. ## BALFOUR'S FAILURE. He Will Not Take Politics Seriously-

Dislikes the Details of Public Life. London, July 21.-The secret of Mr. Balfour's failure as a Government leader is not far to seek. He is intolerant of criticism, has no liking for the details of public work-those details increase of the epidemic, to remove which are often as important as printhe whole camp from the Nile River ciples—and is too much inclined to take an academic view of the matter in hand. Politics are synonymous with business. Mr. Balfour is not a business man. He detests accounts and the dramatic profession were at St. statistics. He prefers the abstract to the concrete. He is a man of the world, but not a man of affairs. He is a metaphysician in politics.

Nothing suits him better than to lead a Tory Opposition, and his record in that capacity during the Rosebery and the last Gladstone Ministry was conspicuously brilliant. But Opposition leadership calls for the qualities of destructive criticism rather than those of constructive and organizing statesmanship. The latter are rarer and tive task of administration and government, he proved lugubriously and even ludicrously incapable. Mr. Balfour, similar mental incongruity. Mr. Balfour takes himself seriously. but not politics. That is to say, he knows of several things much more important, as well as much more congenial, than life in the House of Comnons. A sense of undoubted intellectual superiority, and the pride of aristocratic birth, coupled with the studious bachelor habits of years, have led him to under-estimate the practical difficulties of government. Personally, Mr. Balfour is one of the tion which he exercises upon his inti-mates resembles Mr. Gladstone's. He rhea, cholera, and all summer manner.
