MISAPPLIED ENERGY.

We never like to see industry misapplied It is positively painful to witness the child crying after the moon, the alchemist broiling himself in the laboratory in search of the philosopher's stone, and the eccentric manufacturer striving with might and main to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. To see so much physical force and mental energy expended in pursuits that promise nothing but disappointment is truly saddening; yet there is so much heroic persistency to be found occasionally in human nature that the oft-repeated fruitless effort forms no example, and we have men as fresh in the field to-day to do impossibilities as they were at the time of Babel. Our morning contemporary shows by example how much vigor can be misspent in assailing the elements, in trying to stem the roaring of the tempest, and in endeavoring to stop the influx of the tide. With all the pomposity, but not with that self-satisfaction which the barbaric chief must have indicated with his finger the course which the celestial orb should take during the day, the Chronicle Jupiter attempts to remodel the perpendicular, and reform the order of creation generally. He has no single panacea, however, for all the evils and difficulties with which the universe is surrounded. The vendor of patent medicines will assure you that his nostrum owill cure severy

" ill that flesh is heir to." but his brother professor of the Chronicle will apply all the nostrums that are compounded to the one disease. The country is in ill health, and to-day he prescribes a little quiet, a rest from " political agitation ;" his prescription does not seem to answer, for tomorrow he tells the public that unless they take a more profound interest in politics the colony will go to the dogs. This does not prove exactly satisfactory and he salls upon the Assembly in tones of alarm to pass the Incorporation Bill of the Upper House and save the country. The bill does not pass, however and of course the country is not saved. In mental agony he appeals to the fates to avert the Russian plague, and asks the medical members tremulously to join the chain-gang and remove the immundicity of the streets. The doctors have become the only true guardians of the city, although, unfortunately for Jupiter, there was not a mem, ber of them who voted for the Incorporation bill, when that measure was thrown out, against the remonstrances of the " two political agitating city members." The doctors killed the Incorporation bill in order, of course, that the sanitary regulations of the city should be attended to, and the Chronicle innocently asks them to become inspectors of nuisances and keep away disease. Well, this is perhaps on the the principle of setting the fox to guard the geese," and we shall shortly have our perplexed contemporary crying out for the lawyers to take some steps to close the courts and put an end to litigation. The medical committee, like the other suggestions, came to nothing, and the country still continues to descend to ruin.

Surely there is something to stay its course-some obstacle to put on the inclined plane that will bring it to a halt. A lucky thought there is Mr. Rhodest grist mill, with its ponderous machinery, there is that long line of fire-proof buildings that were to have been built, let us only get them, and the country is all right. But the grist-mill won't come on account of landing permits, and the fire proof buildings when he bid the sun good morrow, and

The news which we publish to-day of the mises a speedy reaction in our condition. In To the Editor of the British Colonist —Sir,—I hope you will favor me with space in your valuable paper to insert some remarks I have to make touching the debate in the House of Assembly on Friday respecting the Dredger. Something like three months have passed away since steam has been got up in a few days we shall probably have glowing accounts from our own auriferous localities. and an additional stimulus will be given to industry and trade. In the meantime we would advise our contemporary to keep calm and not be too eager to remodel the world that craft, and all the expenses with the exception of ship stores have been going on all that time. The cause why some members of the House so strenuously endeavor to keep these useless expenses going would if they were known be rather instructive. Dr. grist mills and doctors are very good things in their way, but they are not the summum Trimble urged that the whole matter be pestponed till a thorough examination of the entire subject be made—that the public have have to be sugaged to take them to Victor.

Successful The following appeared in the Septemen of March 30th. If correspondents come to the conclusion that the superinten will insist upon painting such dismal and in dent of the dredger was inefficient, and it great measure false pictures to their friends was due to him that the condition and suit at home, it is not to be wondered at that they ability of the apparatus should be thoroughly tested. The House should not condemn a succeed in putting an effectual stop to all immigration, check commercial enterprise, and man before giving him a fair hearing.

I think, Mr. Editor, this sort of scheming is about played out. Just look at the iniquity of the thing; in endeavoring to while away time on the principle that the more.

A correspondent baving worried him Sir,—A notice appeared in your paper a few days ago which would lead the unwary to suppose that all is prosperity in British Columbia, and gold at Cariboo is as plentiful Permit me to give you a sentence or two from a letter just received from an honest formation that the machinery on board both vessels will bear any inspection you or any of your clique may choose to call for. Mr. Dennes says the report of the Committee is one-sided. Well, the only one-sided part of the affair is having officers from the fleet when there were numbers of practical engin-Scotch mason, who did "middling" at the mines last year, and who would tell me "no-thing but the truth:"—
"This has been a woeful year in Cariboo; it is nearly played out. All the 'flats' are completely abandoned. 'The famous Jack of Clubs, from which so much was expected, is a dead fizzle. The half of the men had to however to be considered is not the superintendent, but in what state was the machin leave the mines and go to the dow country for want of work; and wages, which always ery when he took charge of it, and in what state did the Committee find it. I gain a trifle by shoe-mending; but business is very flat in-

Poor Dr. Trimble and Mr. Dennes. They had better take good advice and for the future have nothing to do with steam or steam inspectors; for in a little time they will find steam too hot for them?

Mr. Allison experienced no difficulty in crossing the Cascade Range. The news from the Kootenay mines, although containing nothing definite, is of a very encouraging character. Several new strikes had been the first place we have our House of the first place we have the first place we have the first place we have the first place we made, and the utmost confidence was everywhere expressed. Mr. Allison would start out with his animals loaded for the Kootenay market. It was stated that Jones & Co., who started out a few days ago with a loaded pack train, had experienced some difficulty on the summit, owing to the path which was recently opened through the snow having diverged from the road. We understand that their animals were somewhat overladen, yet the road would not appear to be quite as good as it was hoped.

Doctor, if you want to know about the machinery on board the vessels you will have to call on rannis, the editor of the San Jose Mercury competent persons who have the experience gets mad and says : " We do not deem it esto judge. And I may tell you for your in sential that a man should understand Dog Latin, Chinese or Choctaw, to be able to Latin, Chinese or Choctaw, to be able to edit a newspaper with passable ability. A little common sense, some impudence, a fair sprinkling of general knowledge, and a good pair of scissors, comprise the chief stock in trade. Our knowledge of Latin does not extend much beyond hic, hee, hoc, fiat justitia, tempus fugit, and O tempore! O, Moses! We intend to take up the dead languages after we 'shuffle off this mortal coil,' and have the time to space; for the present, matters we 'shuffle off this mortal coil,' and have the time to spare; for the present, matters pertaining to the living engross our entire attention." He then takes off his coat, and proceeds to explain the occult meaning of the words, thus: "Sic, thus; semper, always; tyrannis, tyranny!" It will be obvious to the scholar that though familiar with the course of a good many hard cases, the excellent editor has not encountered, the ablative.
