movement, the object of which is to promote holiness. They have been made a great blessing. Round Lake, Sea Cliff, Martha's Vineyard, and other places are full of Pennel Associations.

The present camp meeting season bids faị to become even more celebrated than any previous ycar. We are glad 1 find that Grimsby and the Thousand Islands, east of Kingston, are now to be numbered with the Feasts of Tabernacles. Presbyterians though early associated with camp mectings, have for many years past allowed the Methodists to monopolize these special organizations; but the year 1875 will witness a grand Presbyterian camp meeting, as ground has been prepared, hotel and other accommodation provided similar to Sea Cliff, so that surcly we shall see more displays of power from on high than we have ever yet beheld.

Of Messis. Moody and Sankey we have no need to write; their labours in London and else:where are the constant topics of newspaper correspondents. Rev. Messrs. Pearsall, Mahan, Boardman and others are permitted to behold a work in England such as has hardly been witnessed during the present century; conferences. are being beld solely that ministers and others may understand the doctriie of holiness more clearly. Rev. Thornlcy Smith and other Wesleyan ministers are taking part in thesc holy convorations. Many of the evangelical clergy are very prominent, and are proving themselves worthy their position as ministers of Christ. An aged rector in Hull has united himself with a young Christian, and they go together on evangelistic tours. Ladies are anxiously asking what they can do for Christ. A daughter of Rev. Dr. Bonar often takes Mr. Sankey's place at the organ. Others are taking part in prayer meetings, and holding Bible classes, and meeting inquirers in private.

The continent of Europe has caught the flame of spiritual power. A son of the well-known Fred. Monod, in France, has become an itinerant preacher, and his business now is to travel through France and stir up zeal among the Protestant ranks. Conventions have been held in Germany and Switzerland, and great good has been done. By the time our readers receive this number a large convention will have been held at Brighton, near London, of which we expect to hear the most glorious tidings.
