

LOSSES OF NEW YORK MERCHANTS.—It is estimated that by the rebellion, not less than two hundred millions of Southern independence to that city was blotted out as in a light, and the prospect of its revival has been and is so remote and dubious that it can hardly be considered a property that can at best be regarded as a dim possibility of future cash.

The horrors of civil war is difficult to estimate its presence in a country may create paths in the historian of the time, or supply the "special correspondent" with touching episodes of heroism in the bloody arena, but it brutalizes the inhabitants of any country where its unholy presence sheds its brimstone terrors. Even the name of the Saviour is brought into use in one of the late hymns or songs in praise of John Brown who attempted the slave insurrection at Harper's Ferry, in Virginia. A Massachusetts regiment passed through the city of New York on its way to the Potomac, singing the following stanza:

He's gone to be a soldier in the army of the Lord. His soul's marching on! John Brown's knapsack is strapped upon his back, His soul's marching on, His pet lambs will meet him on the way, They go marching on. Picture out to yourself a thousand men half of them gathered from the kennels of Boston chaunting this with mock piety.—Carleton Herald.

LOVING-FAREWELLS.—Our hotels and streets are frequented by altogether 160 many colonels, majors, captains, and other officers of the Federal army, who ought to be sharing the fatigues of their comrades at the seat of war. Some of these gentlemen, more valiant, we fear, in words than in deeds, have been strutting about in uniform for months, boasting much, and great favorites in bar-rooms; but apparently quite devoid of Falstaffian valor. Let them be packed off to Missouri, or to the banks of the Potomac.—N. Y. Herald.

Poon-Serris.—It seems that Mr. Russell, who is on a shooting excursion to Illinois, has been arrested for continuing his sport on the Sunday; contrary to the statute in that case made and provided. The penalty is a fine of not more than $25.
