

A survey of U.S. associations linked to the automotive parts industry was also conducted for this report, and the results show that the Canadian industry is perceived to be competitive, well-managed and innovative.