

a major two-year project to clear a backlog of records waiting for transfer. As a result, in coming years more recent information can be transferred to Archives and opened in a more timely manner, and screening can be continued with reduced resources.