THEATRES

Many Matters Attended to and Provost Macklem Wins in Controversy.

Adoption of the matrimonial service as proposed by the prayer book committee was completed by the general synoa yesterday, with the Bishep of Huron putting each clause thru with ail possible despatch. A prayer for the soldiers and sailors was also adopted, taken from the Stottesherpayer book. Among the most important changes in the rubic of the marriage ceremony was that whereby "no cleigyman of the Church of England in Canada shail solethnase a marriage battern in canon, it is the tirst time that it has been set forth in rubric, marking the most noteworthy feature of the three most noteworthy feature of the three rubrics introduced into the solemilization of matrimony.

The words "and for a protection against sin" formed the basis for considerable discussion in connection with the marriage ceremony. Lansing Lewis of Montreal, supported by Judge Crawford, moved that these words were out of accord with the beautiful ceremony of the Anglican Church. A. S. Backus of Aylmer, of the Diocese of Huron, encorsed this view, saying that the words referred to were in opposition to the clause inserted earlier in the ceremony of the Anglican Church. A. S. Adair and Wyatt will offer their attractive singing specialty, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Friel, with feature film attractions of complete photo plays and comedy specialties complete the bill.

An amendment to the amendment was personed by the Dean of Columbia and seconded by the Archdescon of Columbia and School, and the word through the seconded to the seconded to the seconded should be with the second exhortation should be made obligatory in the ceremony. The point at debate was whether the word may, should be inserted in place of "shall. The former word was decided curred in the seconded lost."

For Soidjers and Salfors, as adopted from the Scotlish prayer book creads: "O Lord God of hosts, stretch forth, we pray Thee, Thine almighty arm to strengthen and protect the salfors and soldiers of our King, in every peril, both by sea and land and air, shelter them in the day of the battle, and in time of peace keep them safe from all evil; endue as seeing Thee that art invisible, thrily such courage, and saroused. as a whole at the commencement of the evening session.

The Holy Communion service was then brought under discussion and minor changes were made in it, as recommended by the committee. The word "lively" was changed to living, referring to the living word. The matter of giving notice of communion proved the source of most of the argument, it being a question as to whether the announcement should be made for the services prior to its celebration. The Bishop of Columbia said that the frequent repetition of that notice, given by the clergy in tones of reverence, with the congregation standing, would not become too familiar in their ears. He said that this could be invested with such dignity that it would be repeated frequently before the celebration of the communion.

The use of the exhortation in the communion service was made permissive by the synod by the changing of the word wardeville's cleverest midget entermunion service was made permissive by the synod, by the changing of the word "shall" to "may," in the announcement of the forthcoming celebration. vaudeville's cleverest midget entervaudeville's cleverest maget enter-tainers, will offer their own concep-tion of modern vaudeville. Others on the bill are the Coster troupe, Rouble Simms, Richard Burton, the Tamer comedy playlet, Simcoe and Evans, and first run photo-plays. Provost Macklem Won.

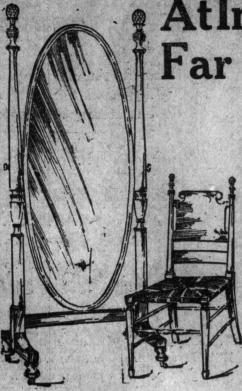

Provost Macklem of Trinity College won out yesterday in his controversy concerning the Athanasian creed discussion. His suggestion was that since the great difficulty is the compulsory recitation of the minatory clauses, that these clauses be indented in the printed form in the prayer book, so arranged in the responsive reading that they would always fall to the clergyman to read in public worship, and finally that the public recitation of these clauses should be left entirely optional. Provost Macklem also forecasted the inclusion in an addendum of the prayer book of the Lambeth translation of the creed, preserving the Athanasian creed in its integrity without alteration or addition, and without admitting an alternative rendering for public use.
