PUBLIC QUESTIONS

Women Shoud Interest Themselves, giving them separate drift nights and in other ways restricting them.

The Y.M.C.A. officials have since stated that they were willing to allow the classes to go on as heretofore, but the resentanent felt by the Her candidates, platform and other information, was the proposition launched at the meeting of the Social Science Club at the Margaret Eaton School yesterday. In her summing up of the findings of the bureau of information for women voters, Mrs. Sid. B. N. Greene, B. Potter, and A. Science Club, stated that it had been found out during the late elections that candidates were averse to stating the present as in favor of a five-five stated that it had been found out during the late elections that candidates were averse to stating them.

Citizenship.

What is a citizen? Dr. Brittain says that living in a city does not constitute citizenship. It requires that one should function. He must vote, and be otherwise interested in citizenship. For the past two years in Toronto only 3 in 7 voted for mayor and about 2 in 7 for the board of control. The board of education had 4 in 16. At last civic election 48,000 of Toronto's citizens voted for mayor. Has a woman any peculiar duties with regard to citizenship? The answer to this was that the city is like a big house without a roof. As women look after the general government, en look after the general government, protection of persons and property, Relief Society. health and sanitation, charities and correction, rece eation, enterprise and DANFORTH AVENUE so on in the home, so they should be interested and look after these elements in the general life of the city.

The doctor took a number of questions as the text of his discourse. "Why is a government?" The government of the city cost every man, women and child at the rate of $48 a year. Why this outlay? Because there are many things that individuals cannot do for themselves, and so it must have a committee to represent them, said committee being the government.
