MIDDLE AGES WERE NOT DARK AGES

On Contrary, Period Was One of Greatest in World's History.

So great was the desire to hear Professor de Wolfe, who opened his series of lectures on "The Civilization and Philosophy of the Middle Ages," at the university yesterday, that the audience had to move from the first hall into a larger one, in order to be accommodated, and even then space was lacking. A still larger apartment will be secured for the next lecture, to take place on Friday.

In order to "penetrate into this period, called by the speaker one of the greatest in men's history, it was necessary to become another man, was an introductory statement. The mediaeval man, had peculiar qualities and defects. Too long had the middle ages been considered the dark ages, and so their study had been neglected. Just as when men in the seventeenth, eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth centuries had refused to recognize beauty in the Gothic cathedral because they had been built up by the Goths, so was the attitude to the worth of the centuries of the middle times. Before the end of the eleventh century men's minds were in a state of flux, and by the end of the twelfth all creative pores were at work and a new civilization beat.

All forces—political, economic, the family, art, poetry—appeared with a new glow, and came to maturity in the thirteenth century. Christianity dominated the whole world. At this time came into being the temperament which marked the difference between the Latin and the Teutonic mind.
 Europe a Checker Board.
 Professor de Wolfe said that to appreciate the middle ages it was not necessary to compare them with the present. In the new movement France was the first to appear. Europe was at that time divided into principalities like a checker-board, and men were related to one another according to whether they received or gave land. The feudal system spread over France, England and western countries. The bishops, and abbots were a great influence, and even in the tenth century the Benedictines had houses all over Europe. The monks came out the same towards the people as did lay seignors, but they treated them like brothers, and under them developed the sentiment of the dignity of individual life. All branches of art flourished. Romanesque abbeys and churches arose, the hymns of St. Bernard were heard in the purest Latin; architecture, sculpture, glorious stained windows were seen, and the schools became localized. Even war did not succeed in injuring the teaching of the schools, because at that time war was the business of professional fighting men only.

Thirsting for Independence.
 The things taught were described by the speaker as the seven liberal arts—grammar, rhetoric, logic, arithmetic, geometry, music and dialectics. Philosophy was placed definitely outside of the realm of these subjects. Art was considered the initiation to higher studies. That this classification was definitely accepted was shown by the illustration in the rose window of a cathedral, where philosophy was placed in the very centre of the rose. The man of these times—the feudal man—was thirsting for independence, and this was assisted when it was declared that the only existing reality is an individual reality, a personality, and that king or subject, master or servant, all have the same essential constituents, and that person of itself admits of no de-termined relation of the individual to the world. The reliance of the individual was proclaimed, and the speaker said that England has never forgotten the lesson she learned at that time from the teachings of the schools of France.

IN MEMORIAM

MACKLEM—In loving memory of my dearly beloved husband, L. Clark Macklem, who departed this life at his residence, 120 St. George Street, one year ago today, March 5th, 1918.
 I marvel that the sun still shines,
 And all the world seems gay;
 I feared to take up life again
 And live—with you away.

To face alone the empty hours,
 With earth and sky all grey,
 And gone the joy, the zest and force
 Of life, since yesterday.

Now, space but our nearness proves,
 And spirits more than will;
 And loneliness at last I've learned
 Is but a testing trial.

—His ever loving wife, Jennie Macklem.

NELSON—In loving memory of Major Gregory Vincent Nelson, 18th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Nelson, Toronto, killed in action, Vimy Ridge, France, March 5th, 1917, aged twenty-one years. R.I.P.

Grading System Antiquated; Puts Premium on Sloth

Inspector Armstrong of the public school staff wants to cut out four stops in the road from school entrance to graduation. He says that 10 grades are four too many and that six would be sufficient. This would enable nimble-minded pupils to speed thru the grades by their 12th year, while those slower-minded ones would still have until 24 years of age to make the final grade.
 Inspector Armstrong says: "The antiquated grading puts a premium on indolence and sloth."
 FOUND DEAD IN BED.
 Charles Armstrong, aged 90 years, was found dead in bed at 173 Jarvis street at 6 o'clock last evening. Armstrong retired at 4 in the afternoon, and complained of feeling ill. Death is thought to have been from natural causes. The body was removed to the morgue.

CAPT. CLEM KING WINS WAR HONORS

Decorated at Buckingham Palace for Gallantry in Action.

Captain Clem King of the 61st Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, son of T. W. King, parliamentary correspondent of The World, was decorated at Buckingham Palace.

ated at Buckingham Palace a few days ago. Captain King was awarded the Military Cross for gallantry in action which is officially described in The London Gazette as follows: "Captain Clem King, 45th Battery, 9th Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery. For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty on August 29th, 1918, near Monchy-le-Preux. Noticing a creeping bombardment coming towards his wagon lines, he commenced to clear them, but before the clearing was completed, the bombardment burst on them, wounding a number of men and horses and the only other officer present. By his coolness, he kept his men steady, and passing several times thru the barrage, led out horses and wounded, eventually clearing the lines."

HYDRO COMMISSIONERS ARE SUED FOR DAMAGES

On the claim that the Hydro-Electric power commission compelled them to connect up their system with the Hydro-Electric system by compulsion, the Canadian Niagara Power Company is suing the Hydro-Electric commission for $73,400. On Dec. 21, it is alleged the company's plant was badly damaged by reason of trouble originating on the defendant's lines with the result that the company's service was dislocated.
 G. H. Kilmer, K.C., acting for the Canadian Niagara Power Company, applied to the master-in-chambers for particulars as to when and how the company were compelled to make the connection, also the nature of the trouble alleged. Munro Grier, K.C., represented the company.
 The city will secure legal advice thru the transportation commission regarding the proposed agreement for taking over the Metropolitan Railway on Yonge street.

VETERANS

Items of Interest to Returned Soldiers Will Be Printed in This Column. Phone or Sent In.

St. John, N.B., March 4.—The Great War Veterans' Association last night issued a resolution to request the Dominion, provincial and city governments to disclose all positions filled, and all appointments made since August, 1914, that these positions be now declared vacant and be filled by returned soldiers, six months after actual demobilization of all overseas troops.
 The Dominion and provincial commands will be asked to support this resolution. Deportation of all enemy aliens in the province was demanded in another resolution.

Trouble of a serious nature, which might have resulted in a riot, was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon at the government limf factory, 185 Spadina avenue, when a returned soldier and a civilian came to blows. Since the recent strike there has been considerable conflict thruout the factory owing to the lack of co-operation between officials and men. It is said the civilian championed the cause of the officials, and the soldier that of the men. Both men were discharged. At present there are about 100 employed in the factory.

Comrade B. P. Brockbank was last night chosen by the executive committee of the central branch of the G. W. V. A. as the new secretary for that organization. He succeeds George Murrell, who, after eighteen months in office, resigned on account of ill-health.

The monthly meeting of Army and Navy Veterans' Association was held last evening in the Sons of England Hall. J. Dennis was elected publicity agent for the association. Capt. M. Wake addressed the meeting on the subject of securing space at the Canadian National Exhibition for the purpose of displaying trophies of this and other wars.

A resolution was passed, which is as follows: "This association is in way affiliated with the Canadian Army and Navy Association, which was incorporated in 1917, and whose head office is in Winnipeg. "His Majesty's Army and Navy Veterans' Association was incorporated in 1888 and is the only association which is paying benefits to its members." The annual report was submitted for approval, and twelve new members initiated.

On a charge of theft and fraud, Pte. William E. Saunders was committed to the jail for one year by Magistrate Denison in police court yesterday morning.
