BENNETT'S DOING WELL.
Large houses have been in order at Bennett's so far this week, and judging from the manner in which the audiences have been receiving the different acts, it is quite probable that the same business will continue throughout the season. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are the headliners for next week, and if this class of entertainment is sustained it is probable "Bennett's" will do a phenomenal business every week.

MAKE A VERY VIGOROUS KICK
AGAINST REDUCTION BY ENGINEER

Street Watering Contractors
Want Full Pay for September, and Argue for It.

The general committee-room at the city hall was last night besieged by London's little body of street watering contractors, who came with a sharp stick for Engineer Graydon, and also to have No. 3 committee upset that official's decision to make a reduction from their contract for watering that was not done during September owing to the scarcity of aqua pura at Springbank. Some of the contractors had been deducted $20, others smaller amounts, but none of them were inclined to accept their checks unless they were for the full month's work.

The deputation was headed by Maurice Baldwin, the hero of many a set-to with Engineer Graydon, and at times nearly every day for the streets were being watered. Some of the contractors claimed they had been deducted for ten days, whereas they were off only five days, but their main contention was that according to their contract no reduction whatever should have been made from the sale of aqua pura at Springbank. The contractors said that they were unable to do any watering during the days they were not watering the streets, because they did not know what hour they might be called out by the engineer.

In answer to this, Mr. Graydon said that the contractors were always notified the day before they were to water the streets. He also showed that by the specifications signed by the contractors, he had the authority to make reductions in cases such as this.

Mr. Baldwin waxed warm.

Finally, Mr. Baldwin waxed warm. "Why," said he, "if we had nothing else to do but water the streets we would starve to death. You don't dock any person else when he is not at work, but when we do not water the streets you always jump on us—and we are the hardest worked and the poorest paid. I have been a street watering contractor for 27 years, and I never saw anything like this before."

The greater part of an hour was spent in discussing the matter, and it was easily seen that the contractors are not the most ardent admirers of Mr. Graydon and his way of doing business.

When the deputation withdrew, Ald. Matthews acknowledged that the contractors are "a pretty hard class to deal with," and that the engineer has to have "his feathers on" all the time when handling them.

The upshot of the matter was the appointment of Ald. Armstrong and the engineer to meet the contractors and see if a compromise cannot be arranged.

Will Not Pay for Water.

On the recommendation of the engineer, the city will make a reduction of about $1,500 from the water commissioner's bill for the year, owing to their inability to provide the city with water for a considerable period.

The question of securing a new fire hall for East London and converting the old town hall and adjoining property into a market place will be taken up later. This year's committee has no money for a new fire hall, and it is not likely that anything will be done until 1907.

75-Cent Claim.

The claim of A. Doupe, market gardener, for 75 cents damages done to goods through alleged interference by the market clerk, was filed.

Mr. Maker explained that he was in no way responsible for the damage. "The fact is," said he, "that Doupe's horse backed up, upsetting a basket of green tomatoes on the top of which were a few large ones, while those underneath were small. Some persons standing by noticed this and enjoyed a laugh, and this made Mr. Doupe angry."

The butchers in the market house asked to have the space on the east side of the building, now used by the grocers, set apart for their rigs. The committee will notify the butchers that a rearrangement of the spaces for vehicles is to be made in the course of a few months, and that their claim will be considered then.

The Push-Cart Nuisance.

Action was deferred on the letter of the city solicitor, enclosing a clause of the act, empowering cities to prevent the sale of peanuts from carts on the streets. The matter will be considered at a meeting to be specially called to discuss the license question.

The application for an electric light at Dreaney avenue and Layard street was laid over. The light on Marley place, between Elmwood avenue and Bruce street, will be moved south to Elmwood avenue.

Alex. Borland's claim for salary due him while a member of the fire department was allowed.

Ald. Matthews (chairman), Armstrong and Booth, Engineer Graydon, Secretary Bell, Assistant Chief Aitken, Inspector McCallum and Market Clerk Maker were present.

Fifteen Bishops Here—Tribute to Late Archbishop Bond—His Possible Successor.

The opening service of the meeting of the board of management of the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada took place last evening in St. Paul's Cathedral. The attendance was from 500 to 600. It took the form of a memorial service for the late Archbishop Bond, the sermon being preached by the Archbishop of Rupert's Land, who during his discourse paid touching tributes to the character of the late primate of all Canada. The musical part of the service was "The Hymn of the Church," appropriate to the occasion. "For All Thy Saints," and "Forever With the Lord," besides many other well-known hymns were sung by the congregation, while the anthem, "O Lord, Our Governor," from the eighth Psalm, was delightfully rendered by the choir.

A Notable Gathering.

There were about fifteen bishops present. They are located in the city as follows: Archbishop Matheson, of Rupert's Land, and Bishop Grisdale, of Qu'Appelle, with his lordship at Bishopstove; Bishop Swetman, of Toronto, and Bishop Holmes, of Moosehide, with Rev. Canon Dunn, Bishop Mills, of Ontario, with Rev. Dean Davis, Bishop Pinchock, of Calgary, with Mrs. Macfar, Bishop Dunn, of Quebec, with Mrs. Becher; Bishop Hamilton, of Ottawa, with Mr. G. B. Harris; Bishop Thornlie, of Algoma, with Mrs. Gerard; Bishop Loft-house, of Keewatin, with Rev. Dyson; Bishop Wooten, of Nova Scotia, with Mr. R. W. Paddock; Bishop Dumoulin, of Niagara, with Mrs. Frank Leonard; Bishop Stringer, of Selkirk, with Mr. D. H. Howden; and Bishop Reeves, of Mackenzie River, with Mrs. Hunt, sen.

In all seventeen bishops were expected to be present, but the Bishop of Fredericton, and Bishop Carmichael could not be present, though the former is expected to reach the city today.

The services throughout were very impressive. Rev. Canon Forrester, of Hamilton, read the lessons, while Rev. Canon Dunn, of St. Paul's Cathedral, and Rev. R. W. Howard, of Grace Church, city, offered prayers. His Grace Archbishop Matheson, of Rupert's Land, preaching the sermon.

Bishop Matheson's sermon was an able discourse on the religious needs of the Canadian Northwest. Taking his text from Joshua: "Let us go up and occupy the land," he showed the wisdom of helping the church in the Northwest, in what form the help was needed and the blessings which would surely come to the church and its people. Speaking of the wisdom of helping at the present time, he said "It is too late. The opportunity is now offered and no time should be lost. The archbishop pointed out that the men of the Northwest are in many cases practically growing up without religion, for no other reason than that the church fails to provide the needs and many of the men have gone so long without any form of religion that they are saying now that they do not need it.

Urgent Needs of the West.

The preacher went on to show the urgent need for religious work in Canada's West, and cited many cases which had come under his observation in Rupert's Land. One story he told was of a man who had not heard the service of the Church of England for 20 years, and when he at last heard the old familiar prayers he was so over- come that he broke down and wept.

Perhaps the greatest need and the greatest opportunity for Christian work in the Northwest is afforded among the children, was the next point dwelt upon by the speaker. He pictured the child growing into manhood without religious training, and many kind, and he urged the church to take up from this point of view demonstrated the urgent need and immediate necessity for the church going up to occupy the land. He then spoke of the blessing which would result from her entering into this great work. These blessings would reflect upon the church and about the results, he said, and quoted the following passage of Scripture, "He that sows in righteousness will also reap in righteousness." The preacher went on to show the need of that in doing good to others we do good to ourselves. Every blessing which comes back to those who gave, and he urged the church to take up the missionary work in the Northwest with all haste.

Tribute to Late Archbishop.

In concluding he spoke a few words about the late Archbishop Bond, the primate of all Canada, saying that he was not only venerable, on account of his age, but of his illustrious character, which was such that no one could come in contact with him without regarding him as a leader among men. His grace referred to his first meeting Archbishop Bond, which had been many long years ago, and as he saw him among other clergymen he thought to himself that there was a leader; and so it had proved. Archbishop Bond was a man whom the church would find it hard to do without, and he sympathized with the diocese which had lost this man among men and for the family from which such a lovable member had been taken.

The service was closed by the playing of the "Dead March" by Organist Sippi, where the congregation reverently stood.

Resolution of Regret.

At a meeting of the committee on Christian union of the general synod of the Church of England, the following resolution was passed:

"That this committee of Christian Union of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada, assembled in Bishop Cronyn Hall, in the city of London, Ontario, the Lord Bishop of Quebec presiding, desires hereby to express its deep sense of thankfulness to Archbishop Graydon for the life and work of the Most Rev. William Bennett Bond, of Montreal, Primate of Canada, who in the providence of God, after a long life of consistent and steadfast Christian faith and devotion, passed from the church militant to the rest of Paradise, on Tuesday morning, Oct. 9, 1906. The late archbishop steadfastly supported all religious and philanthropic movements."

The meeting of the Western Association of Congregational Churches is convened in Watford, and opened on Tuesday afternoon, under very favorable circumstances.

The afternoon session was taken up with devotional exercises and necessary organization, followed by reports from churches, home and foreign missions and the jubilee fund. Rev. J. P. Gerrie, of Stratford, president of the association, presided.

A large audience assembled in the evening and listened to the association sermon by Rev. William McIntosh, of Ottawa. The idea emphasized was "Life Through Sacrifice." Mr. McIntosh preached in aid of Rev. J. B. Silcox, who was detained by an accident in St. Thomas, much to the regret of the association.

THE RING.

GANS CAN'T FIGHT UNTIL MARCH

"I will be only too glad to meet him again, but he must give me the same terms as I gave him. This is final."

These are the words Joe Gans uses in writing a Milwaukee friend of the prospects of another match with Battling Nelson. Continuing the negro adds:

"If he refuses, as I said before, I am open to meet any recognized lightweight in the country. The Searchlight Athletic Club of Los Angeles has offered me a purse of $20,000 for a fight with Jimmy Britt in December, but as my theatrical engagement does not end until February it will be impossible for me to fight until March. However, if Nelson does not come to terms this week I will sign to fight Britt in March."

PARSON DAVIES HEARD FROM.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 10.—Parson Davies, the well-known sporting man, who is now a native of the south, ridicules the stand taken by James J. Jeffries in drawing the color line. "People should not forget that Jeffries secured a questionable decision over Big Bob Armstrong in New York in 1898, and also fought Peter Jackson not so long before Peter died," he said. "It's funny how some pugilists change after becoming prominent. I am not saying Jeffries is afraid of any negro boxer in the country, but it's funny."
