The Bread Bylam.

A Plea for Uniform Size of Loaves.

To the Editor of The Advertiser: Please permit me to make a few remarks through your paper in reference to the bread bylaw as it now stands, and the substitution of gum labels, which is inadequate and detrimental to the consumers of bread. Wholesome law is calculated for the large loophole such as the present, if the seller is inclined to be dishonest he has a good margin to work on. I do not wish to stigmatize the bakers above any other class of business men as being dishonest. I contend that a good, righteous law will curtail dishonesty. If persons are so inclined, the stringency of law is immaterial to those who deal justly and uprightly, and to those who do not it is a terror. What is wanted in the bread bylaw is the same as applies to other commodities. For example, I go to the wood market; I see two loads of wood one is marked 128 feet, class No. 1; price, $5. The other, 128 feet, class No. 2.

price, $5. The other, 128 feet, class No. 2; price $4. In either one, I get the standard measurement, 128 feet being a cord. Again, I go to a drygoods store: Two pieces of cloth of the same material, differing a little in quality; one is 20 cents per yard, the other 25 cents. In either case, at my other 25 cents. In either case, at my own option in choice, I get the standard measurement, 36 inches to the yard. Many others I could enumerate as examples. I claim, if I want a loaf of bread, and the standard weight is a 2 or a 4 pound loaf, fancy or other wise; the price of one is 6 cents per 2-pound loaf, and the other 5c for a 2-pound loaf; it is optional on my part which I shall take. The baker may say that under the present bylaw I could have my choice—fancy loaf, 1½ pounds, common, 2 pounds. I would say the latter. Would it not be very easy for the baker to take advantage my ignorance as well as numerous others by sticking a gum label on common bread, baked in the same common bread, baked in the same pans as fancy loaves? Therefore only getting 1½ pounds instead of 2 pounds. He might also argue that my own judgment ought to guide me as to the quality, as in other commodities. can just state, with numbers of others already ventilated through your paper of the 17th, that the difference between the fancy bread and the common is imperceptible—that I would require an expert analyst to distinguish it. I was surprised at the last meeting of the council to see aldermen whom the people intrusted with their business to be swayed from common sense and justice to the interests of the city by a couple of bakers put-ting forth such lame argu-ments as the expense they were at, and the loss they would sustain if the present bylow was recained One the present bylaw was rescinded. One argued, why not make a bylaw to compel carpenters to make sashes of certain dimensions. There is no analogy in this case. The law has nothing to do with me as to the size of a house, or make. In this rea it would be un-wish of the masses. As far as the loss

kan maanaan kanaan k well know would not be wanted, espe-Ald. O'Mara's Attitude on the Fancy | do to get common bread. I give credit to the aldermen who stood up for right in the two and four pound loaves. As Ald. O'Meara said, all the stamp that is wanted is a two and four pound loaf

I will also state before closing another important point is whenever bread is received by the customer, at benefit of the masses and not for the person often gets bread 12 and 15 hours after being baked. The buyer is not supposed to pay for any shrinkage by light weight. If I go to a grocer to get a dollar's worth of sugar (the current price being 20 pounds for the dollar), I would not want to take 19 pounds, simply because he said since he had bought it it had shrunk. I trust that the aldermen who did not endeavor to rescind the present bylaw will take a righteous and commonwill take a righteous and with those who have already taken a common-sense view of the situation. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space I have occupied, C. GREEN.

gathering, assembled to hear addresses by Dr. McWilliam, the Liberal candidate for East Middlesex, and other prominent Liberals. Dr. McWilliam's popularity could not have been more strongly attested than by the rousing reception he was tendered and the rapt attention with which he was listened to. The programme of speakers was excellent. Mr. George C. Gibbons, Q.C., spoke in his usual pointed, vigorous style. Mr. Hume B. Cronyn delivered an able and interesting address and an able and interesting address, and Mr. John Gilson made a forcible, rousing speech. The large platform was graced with a score or more of ladies, graced with a score or more of ladies, and among the electors present were Messrs. CHAIRMAN JACKSON. A few minutes after 8 o'clock, on motion of Mr. John Kennedy and Mr. E. Ironside, Mr. Robert Jackson took the chair and briefly opened the meetig. Mr. Jackson said that he had often, in speaking of No. 4 district, held it up as a pattern. He referred with pleasure to the large attendance of ladies, and hoped that the time was not far distant when they would have

MR. HUME B. CRONYN. upon and was received very cordially.
Mr. Cronyn, after a pleasing introduction, in which he said he could but made by the opposition against the government. At former elections certain important cries were made with a view to defeating the government. These cries were now in public dropped completely, showing their utter insincerity. (Applause.) Mr. Cronyn then proceeded to expose the fallacy of the several weak attacks made by the op-position, dealing first with the claim that Mr. Hardy had created a new judgeship in 1897, which he was keep-ing for himself. judgeship in 1897, which he was keeping for himself. "This charge," said the speaker, "would be pretty telling if there were any truth in it, but it is all a lie." The crurge that Mr. Hardy had provided government positions for his numerous connections was also expensed. his numerous connections was also exploded by Mr. Cronyn and the Moore lumber question explained. Of the statement made by the opposition that the government stole their timber policy and spoiled it, Mr. Cronyn said that part of the policy which the opposition said was spoiled was the one that should most commend itself. He showed also that the policy had not been stolen from the opposition. Mr. Cronyn characterized these statements of the opposition as untruths and non-"The present campaign," he said, "was one of hunger-of the hunger of the waif to get at the stores. (Cheers and laughter.) Mr. Whitney, in a recent speech, had said, quoting apply Cassius' statement, "The Shakespeare's "Ceasar," meat doth this our Ceasar feed that he hath grown so great?" Did it occur to Mr. Whitney that he was quoting the words of the lean and hungry Cassius? And why did not Mr. Whitspirators did what they did through envy of the great Caesar." (Applause.) Mr. Cronyn, in closing, urged the support of honest government, and was roundly applauded. was roundly applauded. MR. JOHN GILSON.

Mr. John Gilson got a hearty reception. He referred to the address of the previous speaker as practical, pointed and true, and he thought it a recommendation for any cause to have such an advocate. Continuing, Mr. Gilson spoke of the charges of the opposition against the government. They said the administration was imperfect, and with that he agreed. They said it had glaring faults; with that he differed. His hearers were to be the jury, who would bring in their verdict on March 1. He asked them to compare Ontario's administration with that of the other provinces of Canada, and if they did not find it as progressive and economical, then they should cast their ballots against it. To the young men of the audience he said they could thank the Liberal government for the franchise. Mr. Gilson then turned his attention to the charges that the government was partisan in its administration of the license law. He proved that it was not true, by calling attention to the numanother. They all don't know that they he could not get an appointment as public school inspector; and that was untrue. They said the supplies for the asylum were bought only from Liberals. That was untrue, said the speaker, and he cited tenders which had been secured by Conservatives. Mr. Gilson went on to compare the finanthese ills. Only one way. But it is a other provinces and of the Dominion sure, certain, quick, easy way. It is government, showing that the increase in the cost of the sort of the cost in the cost of the civil service in the past 25 years in Ontario was 42 per cent, and in Quebec the increase was 145 per cent. Ontario's cost of legislation was 33 per cent, while Quebec's was 76, and that of the Dominion 104. The speaker dealt some sledge-hammer blows at those who were howling about the extravagant Provincial government, and yet supported the late Conservative government of the Dominion. Consider the record of the government, he said, and if you find that Ontario her said, and in the that Ontario has not a parallel in the governments of the world, then give it your support. (Cheers.) He warm-ly indorsed the candidature of Dr. Mc-

The Popular Candidate of the supposed faults the opposition had been able to point out, and proceeded to deal with the piggery question. This charge he mentioned, not because it was to be taken seriously, he said, but was to be taken seriously, he said, but merely to show the size of the charges brought up by the opposition. Every independent member in the legislature had voted that in this matter the government course was honest and straightforward, and so he believed held the great majority of the people of Ontario. Referring to the one-half of one per cent of the public expenditure, with which the opposition had found fault, he said many of the objections made were not now maintained by the opposition. For instance, Mr. Whitney opposed the appointment of a minister of agriculture, and his salary was in-cluded in that one-half of one per The Oddfellows' Hall at Ilderton was cent. Now, however, Mr. Whitney was crowded on Monday by an enthusiastic moved to indorse the appointment, and gathering, assembled to hear addresses to it was, in many other cases. The efficiency and economy of the educa-tional department was proved by the doctor, and the charge that text-books were too high shown to be unfounded. On resuming his seat the candidate was warmly cheered. GEORGE C. GIBBONS, Q. C. Mr. Gibbons, Q.C., spoke briefly, owing to the lateness of the hour. was greeted with great applause on rising. He first spoke of the vacillating policy of the opposition. Two elections ago, he said, the rafters were made to ring with cries about the Ross Bible, and last election the Conservatives were going about saying that the Catholics were becoming too powerful, and were too generously treated by the government. If that cry was honest, why was it deserted on the platforms today? The government said the cry was a libel and a slander, and the best proof that it was is that they are not saying a word about it now except in secret canvass. (Hear, hear.) For 25 years, continued Mr. Gibbons, the opposition has gone about saying that there was not a surplus, and every year the government credits up onequarter of a million dollars' interest on money invested. (Cheers.) The country is farther than ever from direct tax-

(Cheers.) Insinuations of wrongdoing have been made, but not a single charge against the government has ever been proved. If charges could have been made they would have been, you may be sure. And for this honest government no man should receive greater credit than Hon. A. S. Hardy. Mr. Hardy had never been charged with wrongdoing to the extent of a single farthing. If these men were to be put out, what was the reward for decency and honesty? The opposition were cavilling and whining about the educational system, but the system was the best in the world. (Cheers.) The same could be said of the financial system. "They tell you nothing of their own friends in the late Dominion government," said Mr. Gibbons, "who ran the country in debt $8,000,000 a year." (Applause.) As the speaker paused a moment, someone asked "Steady?" "Yes," said the speaker, "it was a steady $8,000,000 a year. They never let up on it. (Deafening applause.) And," he continued, "we are asked to let the same hungry crowd at Ontario's treasury. They are working tooth and nail to accomplish their object. Their only chance is to get at the chest. That is their true battle-cry, and the cry is intense." (Cheers.) Mr. Gibbons went on to state that the government had given as wise legislation as any government in the world. He prophesied that Dr. McWilliam would an exceedingly able representative. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman, the ladies, and three cheers for the candidate and the DELAY DANGEROUS.
