London, Oct. 19.—Parliament reopened today with the situation created by the coal strike and the tirsh situation combining in drawing members to Westminster in large numbers. Thus the best aling of the autumn season, which usualby starts with a thin House and the discussion of unimportant subthe discussion of unimportant subjects, found the lower chamber crowded in anticipation of an immediate debate on the coal strike. This discussion was opened by Sir Debat Home, president of the Robert Horne, president of the board of trade. He declared that the Government was open to every board of trade. He declared that the Government was open to every form of suggestion by which a peaceful solution to this great question could be obtained. He appealed to the House to keep all bitterness out of the debate, saying the problem was to be solved not by deproblem was to be solved not by de-nunciation, but by goodwill and ommon sense. Sir Robert was loudly cheered as ook the floor.

Premier Lloyd George had entered hortly before and received an ova-In his speech, Sir Robert reviewed In his speech, Sir Robert reviewed the attempts at a settlement with the miners, and drew a gloomy picture if the results of the strike were to be continued. The factories throughout the country were closing, he said, with each day throwing 10,000 out of employment. Trade under those conditions would be gradually strangled, he pointed out. He called attention to the depreciation of British credit abroad as a result only of the threatened strike, result only of the threatened strike, which amounted in the case of imports from the United States since July. he said, to nearly £500,000 monthly. It had been suggested, continued the speaker, that because the country was in this horrible trouble, the miners should be given something. That, he said, might settle the strike, but if it did so, others would have to be settled every three months when once the only necessary to threaten a strike in order to get something.

Any Government acting with responsibility, would only give way, he declared, when it was assured that he demands were justified. Any lovernment doing less would be ailing in its duty.

London. Oct. 19.—The eyes of all Britain were centered today upon the first session of Parliament after the summer the entire nation looking anxiously to the legislators for action which might open a way to end the coal strike. The interest in the Irish question which otherwise would have been the first topic of discussion today, waned in the presence of the situation menacing the prosperity of the whole country and the members assembled members assembled with the idea of devoting their entire immediate attention to the coal situa-tion. could not continue and that the demands of the miners had been resisted to protect the community. Another version of the Government's possible course in such a contingency would be to challenge the judgment of the people whether "the supremacy of the Parliament was to be overthrown and be replaced by the ascendancy of one class of the community."

Thousands Volunteer.

All rumors of intervention by other unions in the controversy between the miners and the Government have ceased for the present, and the labor spokesmen declare no union, nor any combination of unions, is likely to interfere without an invitation from the miners which they say will certainly not be given at present. Similarly reports that other bodies of workers are intending to join the strike likewise have ceased for the time being at any rate.

Meanwhile the Government is receiving great numbers of offers of help from the general public. Thousands of men and many women have registered their names as helpers with the food ministry and the ministry of transport. It was necessary to line up the applicants in long queues and admit them to enrol a dozen at a time. It is understood, however, that none of the applicants was definitely engaged to serve. Col. Malone, Liberal member for the east division of Leyton Essex, demanded to know whether the Government intended meantime to continue the 'police murder reprisals." This brought cries of "shame" from the floor. Mr. Bonar Law re-

Railwaymen Postpone Social Function to Late Hour in Order That All May Attend Meeting Addressed by the Liberal Chief-Western Audiences Approve Policies.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Cranbrook, B. C., Oct. 18.—Thanks-giving Day is a notable holiday with the railway workers who form a large proportion of the population of Cranbrook. They had planned a big ball for this afternoon, and they postponed it until 11 o'clock, so that they could attend the meeting called to hear the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. In return they extended an invitation to Mr. King to attend their dance, and after his meeting, the Liberal leader escorted by a large number of the trainmen, who had been in the auditorium to hear him speak, went to the dance, and met the railway workers of Cranbrook and their wives, and daughters. This incident was typical of the attitude of this place towards the distinguished visitor and his lieutenants.
