Cut Down Representation.

LONDON, July 23.—"I don't despair about an eventual solution of the Irish problem, in spite of the recent failure to reach an agreement between the Nationalists and the Unionists," said David Lloyd George today in replying to a request from the Associated Press for his views on the breakdown of the negoliations for putting the Irish Homo Rule Act into effect immediately. "We brought the representatives of the Irish Nationalists and the Ulster Unionists to the point of shaking fists at each hands instead of shaking fists at each other." Never Better Offer. The socretary for war, however, is still full of optimism regarding the Irish difficulty. In reply to a question whether the Nationalists were justified in refusing the proposed settlement, Mr. Lloyd George said: "Never has a better offer been made by all the British parties togethor. The only new stipulation inserted was one concerning the British, and not the Irish parliament. The moment the de-mand was put forward by the Union-ists that Ireland should be represented at Westminster only in proportion to her population, except when the gues-tion of the Irish settlement was under consideration, it had to be conceded." The secretary said the main prin-tiples of the settlement remain, name-ly, the immediate creation of an Irish parliament, exclusion for the present for the part of Ireland which is un-there was disagreement at the end of the negotiations. One dealt with the means by which the exclusion of the six Ulster counties was to continue or to be brought to an end. This, to my view, was less a matter of substance than of words. The Nationalists agreed it was impossible that the Ulster counties should be coerced into an Irish parliament. Their exclusion for the present would not have affected the full powers given to the Nation-alist part of Ireland under the home there was disagreement at the end of "McNally—On July 28, 1916, as re-sult of accident, Jos. Their exclusion for the present would not have affected the full powers given to the Nationalist part of Ireland under the home rule sct. The question of their coming in voluntarily afterwards could have been decided when it had been seen how home rule was working out.

"The second point was connected with Irish representation at West-minster. It is not unnatural what the Nationalists contended that Ireland is proportionately over-represented in the house of commons, and that it would not have been fair, either to the portion of Ireland remaining outside of the home rule scheme or to the authorities that no inquest would be impossible for me to touch the body 's death mame been received into the hospital, where, to many words, that when it is own domestic affairs. sians captured the place at 6.30 o'clock on Friday morning. Sufficient time has not yet elapsed to total up the number of prisoners clent time has not yet elapsed to total up the number of prisoners made and the booty taken. The importance of this action is that it advances the Russians on an important stage to victory over the Austrians by threatening their left wing with envelopment. In the south the Russians had previously secured Kolomea and Delatyn, cutting the communications of the enemy with Hungary, so they are in shape for the launching of a double enveloping advance. The enemy paid for this small gain of ground, owing to uninterrupted strong enemy, in short, is visibly weakening under each ponderous blow.

British troops captured the last German strongholds in Longueval and took a number of prisoners yesterday in the battle of the Somme. They FRENCH REPULSE also drove the Germans from all of Delville wood in the morning. The action in the bush involved severe fighting and the routing of the stubborn Brandenburgers, who had fought before Verdun in the first shock of that historic fight and were overthrown. Further progress has also been made by our troops near Pozieres and hand-to-hand fighting in this neighborhood was continued thruout yesterday. Considerable activity by the artillery on both sides marked the operations on the rest of the front. Two Attacks Fail to Take Stc.

The lapse of 28 days of offensive action by the British army has in no way diminished the severity of its pressure against the enemy, and if the topographical features of the ground on which our army is at present fighting are taken into account, it will be found that our troops are advancing as steadily as ever. It has generally been remarked in previous battles in this trench war that in the course of a few days after the fighting began, sometimes of a few hours, the enemy, by bringing up reinforce ments, was able to halt the advance. But in the battle of the Somme after the enemy has had four weeks to strengthen his battle line, and it is certain that he has done all in his power to do so, it is found that Ally's Troops Make Progress the British army is slowly but surely wresting "impregnable" position after "impregnable" position from him.

* * This change has been brought about by the extremely strict limits of the German reserve. Instead of calling reinforcements from her central PARIS, July 28, via London, 11.19 reserve, as in previous actions, Germany has had to call them from her local reserves at various portions of the front, including Verdun, whence the just-defeated Brandenburgers were taken. In the face of such evidence of a condition brought about by the allies' policy of "nibbling" in the past 18 months, it seems incredible that any person could be credulous enough to swallow the stories cabled across the seas by Amerithe advanced French trenches, says can' correspondents that Germany is massing a large and fresh force the official statement givon out tosomewhere to launch another great offensive. Her inability after five months to reach Verdun, even while the allies were standing on the strict night. The statement adds, however, that later the Germans were driven defensive, disproves her ability now to do anything really formidable. She may make feints to keep up the bluff and she may capture a trench out with the bayonet.
