

THE PRIVILEGE OF YOUNG MEN

"Of Risking Your Life That Your Country May Live" — Ringing Appeal of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Ottawa Recruiting Meeting

Ottawa, July 16.—"Kitchener's cry is now, as it was at the beginning of the war: 'Men, more men!'"

The privilege is yours, young men of the privilege of risking your life that your country may live and that freedom may not disappear from the earth. It is not to the women that I would appeal to send the men to the front. It is to you, young men, who must remember that none but the brave deserve the fair."

That was a part of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's closing appeal for recruits delivered to an audience of 5,000 in the Arena rink tonight.

The call of the Liberal leader was backed up by the call of Hon. Martin Burrell, minister of agriculture, representing the government; of Col. J. A. Currie, M. P., and of Captain Stehman of Kingston, R. C. D., both returned from honorable service at the front to tell Canadians how Canadians have fought and how more men are needed at the front.

Sir Wilfrid's twenty minute synopsis of the underlying issues of the war, of the need of long endurance and further effort on the part of Canadians and of the steady, though comparatively slow, progress of the Allies towards ultimate victory, was characteristic of his eloquence and vision.

"We must be prepared," he said, "for a long contest. It may take, as Kitchener said, two or three years, but there is only one heart in Canada as to the justice of our cause and as to the final result."

Britain Never Lost a War.

"The glory of the British nation," he declared, "was that among all the powers of Europe, Britain alone never fought a war and never even deliberately prepared for war. But through the least military of nations, Britain never entered a fight she had not won. Canada was heart and soul," he said, "in the Motherland in the present fight. The Canadian troops had fought from the first day like veterans and not like the raw recruits of a peace-loving country, and won at once the respect not only of all the Allied troops, but also of the enemy."

There were some, doubtless, who were disappointed at the slow progress being made. But let them remember that the Germans had the most perfectly organized war machine devised, and that the Germans' boast of a quick march to Paris had been promptly checked, and after that France's "temple little army" had stood like adamant against the drive towards Calais.

Marked Change in German Attitude.

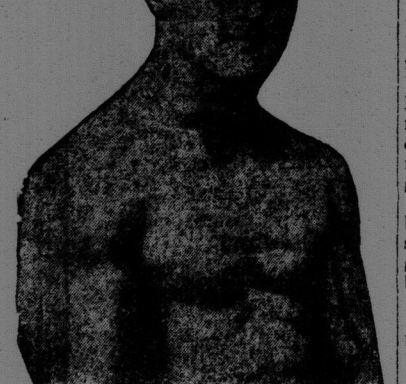

There had been a marked change in the German attitude since the war began, said Sir Wilfrid. In August the war cry of Germany had been "World domination or downfall." Throughout the streets of the captured towns of Belgium German soldiers had chanted on

NERVOUS CHILDREN

Hard Study and Too Little Exercise Leads to St. Vitus Dance

There is much criticism of modern educational methods that require too much work of school children, allowing them too little time for play and preventing sufficient out-of-door exercise. When the study of music or any other accomplishment, with the necessary practice, is added the strain is increased. Under these conditions the blood becomes impoverished and fails to nourish the nerves. The child becomes restless, and twitching of the muscles follows. Sometimes the child stumbles in walking and drops what it tries to hold. Pallor, listlessness and irritability are symptoms that early show that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demands made upon them, and that St. Vitus dance has fastened its hold upon the child.

In this condition there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which build up the blood, strengthen the nerves and easily help to meet the demands of the growing child. Out-of-door exercise, nourishing food, plenty of sleep with these tonic pills will cure even the most severe cases of St. Vitus dance. We offer the following proof: "Up to the age of ten years," says Mrs. Johnson, of Hemlock (N. S.), "my son Calvin was healthy and rugged as any child could be. Then he began to complain that his eyes hurt him, and of pains in the head, and began to fall back in his studies at school. Then I noticed a twitching of the muscles of his face and arms, and later his whole body seemed to be in constant motion. Our family physician was called in and pronounced the trouble a severe attack of St. Vitus dance. He was under the doctor's treatment for some three months but did not seem to improve. We had taken him from school, and were careful that nothing should excite him, but notwithstanding he grew worse, and the least start would bring on attacks of hysteria. This went on for some months until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention, and we decided to give him this medicine. After using a few boxes there was a noticeable improvement, and by the time he had taken nine or ten boxes he had recovered his former good health. There has been no sign of a return of the trouble and I can scarcely say how thankful we feel for the complete restoration of our son's health."

Parents who find their growing boys or girls becoming nervous should lose no time in giving them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You may ward off an attack of St. Vitus dance, or if the trouble has reached that stage the Pills will effect a cure. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

the doors "William Emperor of Europe."

"What," asked Sir Wilfrid, "was their battle cry in July of 1913? That the Germans are fighting for their independence—may for their very existence."

That was the excuse they offered to the United States for the murder of women and little children on the Lusitania, that they were fighting for their very existence."

"Another victory had been won against Germany in the wiping out of the great regime of German rule in Southwest Africa. That fact in itself was not great. The significance of it was that their power had been wiped out from Africa not by an English-speaking leader, but by one who not many years ago had been the foe of England."

"It is the greatest possible tribute to British institutions and British freedom for which we are now standing. When the Boers were given their liberty it was an experiment which only one nation would have dared to try. That nation was England, mother of modern liberty. (Loud cheers.) This is the only basis on which we want here to continue."

Canada, declared Sir Wilfrid, was free to take part or not to take part in the war as she saw fit. But she did so because Great Britain is in it and because if Great Britain goes down the freedom of Canada shall go down with her.

"As a rule, he continued, amid laughter, 'I am not much burdened with confidence in the present government, but I give it my whole-hearted support so that the world would know we are a united people.'

Benevolent Old Gentlemen.

The usual crowd of small boys was gathered about the entrance of the circus tent in a town. A benevolent-looking old gentleman standing near-by watched them for a few minutes with a beaming eye. Then, walking up to the ticket-taker, he said, with an air of authority, "Count all those boys as they pass. The door-keeper, thinking that the benevolent-looking old gentleman was indulging in a bit of philanthropy, did as requested. When the last lad had gone in he turned and announced, "Twenty-four, sir."

"Good!" said the benevolent-looking old gentleman, as he walked away, "I thought I guessed right."

The hotel keeper hearing of whereabouts of a man who had descended from the hotel without going through the formality of paying his bill, sent him a note.

"Mr. — Dear Sir—Will you send the amount of your bill and oblige?" etc.

To which the delinquent replied: "The amount is $13. Yours respectfully."

GIVES CANADA NEW

STATUS IN EMPIRE

London, July 16.—The Daily Telegraph, dealing editorially with the Canadian premier's presence at the cabinet meeting, under the caption, An Historic Invitation, says:

"The invitation of Sir Robert Borden at a cabinet meeting revolutionized the theory and practice of the system by which this country has been governed for more than a century and a half. It has revolutionized not less completely the nature of the constitutional relationship between Great Britain and the dominions overseas. The prime minister, in issuing his historic invitation to Sir Robert Borden, was fully conscious that a train of consequences of immeasurable moment must naturally follow his action in the fullness of time."

From Topsy to Shells.

Great activity prevails at the engineering shops at Liverpool in preparation for utilizing the machinery for an immediate output of shells. Mr. Lloyd George's stirring appeal has met with an instant response, and the engineers are working together unanimously in the resolve that, so far as they are concerned, there shall be no delay in meeting the urgent demand for shells. Some time ago some engineers engaged on private work patriotically put it on one side and turned to the manufacture of munitions. One firm employed in making mechanical toys put some of their most skilled men to manufacturing parts of shells. Another prominent engineer offered to place his works at the disposal of the War Office some weeks ago and others were equally anxious to do the same. Although there are no very large engineering works in Liverpool as in other centres of industry, there are many small ones and with a unanimous will to make the most of their machinery it is believed that the output of shells will not be inconsiderable.

The hotel keeper hearing of whereabouts of a man who had descended from the hotel without going through the formality of paying his bill, sent him a note.

"Mr. — Dear Sir—Will you send the amount of your bill and oblige?" etc.
