"China's readiness to make terms is in no wise discreditable. Although aware of her immense reserves of strength, she is conscious of the enormous sacrifices and risks that must be incurred before she can utilize them. Being without military ambition, she will willingly share this outlay. She will, howeve, face a long war resolutely, taking measures that will render conquest by the Japanese impossible, although the effort will exhaust both sides."

It would seem that a very proper and patriotic object would be the preservation of the ruins, if nothing more, of a spot around which so many historic associations cluster. Some effort should also be made to preserve the burying grounds in the vicinity of these old forts, so that the remains of the dead may not be descrated. Some years ago the local government made a grant to preserve the burying ground at Fort Monktoq from being washed away. Some action should be

The attack upon and routing of the rebels then took place with confiscation of the property of such notables as Col. John Allen. No piece of ground in the lower provinces has been the scene of greater or more thrilling events in the early history of our country than the Isthmus of Chignecto and particularly Fort Cumber-land.

The bills introduced in the Diet at the extraordinary session of Parliament convened by the Mikado, include, first, a bill calling for a special accountancy of the extraordinary ware expenses; secondly, a bill empowering the Government to borrow money in order to defray the expenses of the war, the maxmium amount to be borrowed being placed at 100,000,000 yen, of which sum 26,000,000 yen, of which sum 26,000,000 yen will be defrayed by the supplus.
