A Misunderstanding.

'My sweetest grandchild, Margaret-What's put the child in such a pet ? Come, quickly now the cause reveal.' 'Papa won't let me have a wheel,' Maid Margaret sobbed, with streaming eyes.

Her grandma listened with surprise. 'Won't let thee have a wheel, my dear ? That certainly is very queer ! How can my son be such a goose ? Perhaps he thinks it's not for use, And that thee wants it just for show. That's his opinion, well I know.'

' No, papa says he can't afford, And will not hear a single word. Now, grandma, isn't it a sin, For if I had one, how I'd spin !'

For if 1 had one, how I'd spin !' ' Well, well-a-day, it is a shame !' Exclaimed the dear old Quaker dame. ' But thee shall have thy wheel, my dear, So wipe away that needless tear. I do not see the reason why Thy father frowns at industry ; For in the good time, long ago, Each maiden had her wheel, 1 trow. A blooming lass her wheel beside, I is surely sight to view with pride. So here's the money, sweet, for thee. Go, buy, thy wheel right speedily.'

Alas for gray-haired innocence ! The dame, with horror most intense, Espied, upon the following day, Maid Margaret spinning blithe and gay, Her task ahe never loitered at, But it was on her wheel she sat. Erect stood grandma's treases gray, And then she fainted dead away ! --Lena C. Krastzer, in 'Youth's Com-panion.'

Irksome Daily Tasks.

In the programme of daily tasks there are some, very naturally, for which even the enthusiastic home-maker has no taste. Perhaps she even shrinks from the performance of these tasks, and would like to shirk them altogether, if her pride in her own housekeeping would permit her to do so; and yet she knows that they are just as important and essential as the more pleasant duties in making up the sum of her daily work. The unloved duties are the trying points of each day's work, and are often left to the tired end of the day, when they are doubly annoying. Taken one at a time, while we are fresh, and absolutely conquered, they no longer serve as the bitter drop to our labors. The tasks we call un-pleasant often show us the weak points in pleasant often show us the weak points in our characters; they are the duites which call for special patience or caretaking, or a marked concentration of thought and skill for a certain time, and perhaps a per-severance we are unwilling to give before perfection is reached.

A group of young housekeepers, talking of their home-making, are almost certain to intersperse their conversation with the things they " hate to do." " Harry likes pie, but I almost never make them, for I pie, but i almost never make them, for I can't bear to make the crust,' says one. "How I do hate to clean the lamps,'' adds a second. "I sthere anything more tire-some than dusting?" continues a third. Yet all these young women have won prizes in school, perhaps have stood high in scholarship in college, and not one-balf the conquering force would be required to learn to make good pie-crust, not a third of the patience would be called for in dusting beautifully polished new furniture, the immaculate shining of lamps, which they have applied for years to tasks of a different nature. Every unloved task raised from its humble position to that of successful accomplishment, and the pleasure which always accompanies such results, adds just so much to the complete rounding of our characters. Achievement, after honest effort, is one method of draw-ing up the dropped stitches of life.—Con-stance Conard, in Woman's Home Companion.

* * * A Wise Mother Says

That we should keep up a standard of principles, for our children are watchful

That what are trifles to us are often ountains to our children ; and that we should respect their feelings. That we should bear in mind that we are largely responsible for our children's faults, and be patient with them. That if you say, "No," you should mean "No." Unless you have a good reason for changing a command, hold it.

That we should take an interest in our children's amusements, for mother's share in what pleases them is a great delight. That we should be honest with the children in small things as well as great, and if we cannot tell them what they wish to know we should say so, rather than deceive them

That we should interest our boys and girls in physiology, and when they are sick try to make them comprehend how the complaint arose, and how it may be avoided in the future. That many a child goes astray not because there is want of care and training at home, but simply because home lacks sunshine; that a child needs smiles as subside; that a child needs smiles as much as flowers need the subbeams. That as long as it is possible we should kiss the children good-night after they are in bed. They will enjoy it, even after they profess to have outgrown it, and it will keep them close and loving. That children level limit becaud the

That children look little beyond the present moment. That if a thing pleases they are quick to see it ; that if home is a place them for a set of the set place where faces are sour, and words harsh and fault-finding, they will spend as nany hours as possible elsewhere .-- Philadelphia Record.

The Morning Toilet.

The finest compliment we ever heard paid to a woman was by her husband, and he said, in speaking of her : "We always think of her as a morning-glory, because she looks so bright and cheery and pretty at the breakfast-table."

How many breakfast-tables are presided ver by women who make no effort to be dainty ! The claim that household duties keep women from looking well in the morning is easily disproved, for in many a household, where the lady gives a helping hand in the kitchen, a big apron will thoroughly protect her dress, and then, too, cooking, unless one makes it so, is never dirty work. That woman commits an error who looks uncared for and badly dressed in the morning. The other woman, who wears any old thing to the breakfast table, is also making a mistake, for that is the time when the men of the household ought to see a woman at her best, and not specially rely on her appearance in the evening, when the soft and charitable light of the gas will hide many defects .- House hold.

* * * A Popular Home Work.

Successful Only When the Diamond Dyes are Used.

In thousands of happy and thrifty homes in the Dominion and in the colony of New-foundland the work of rug and mat making is becoming very popular. Homemade rugs and mats are more highly esteemed just now than imported goods. This is not surprising when we remember the fact that the home articles are the best wearing and prettiest.

the home articles are the best wearing and pretiate. The Diamond Dyes have given a great impetus to the work of making homemade rugs and mats. In former times the voublesome part of the work was the dye-ing. With the old fashioned and poorty prepared dyes the dyeing operation was bong and unsatisfactory. The introduction of the Diamond Dyes with their special colors for wool, and for cotton and mixed goods, has been a boon to womankind. Old and faded rags and yarns for mats and rugs can now be dyed any becautiful and builiant shade with the Diamond Dyes— shades that are perfectly fast to sun and son.

If you are ill you need a doctor in whom you have confidence.

If you need a remedy you want one that has been tested for years; not an obscure, untried thing that is urged upon you, or on which you save a few cents-that is no consideration as against health.

For wasting in children or adults, Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites has been the recognized remedy for twenty-five years.
