BUDGET FROM BOSTON GIRL

Artistic Happenings in the Hub—Lady Hadn't Heard of Woman Suffrage and Militant Methods

Boston, Dec. 30.—Art's always in evidence in Boston winter societies. Following close on the heels of the famous Frick collection of masterpieces which has so stirred artistic circles in New England, trips the exhibition of 150 valuable paintings by the late John La Farge at the Museum of Fine Arts. Director Fairbanks and the trustees of the Museum have been collecting the interesting group from wealthy art connoisseurs of this vicinity, in addition to those paintings there will be a number already owned by the Museum. The two canvases "Paradise Valley" and "The Halt of the Wise Men"—perhaps as well known as any of Mr. La Farge's best work—are among the number on exhibition. Soon thereafter will come at the Museum a showing of canvases by the late Winslow Homer, "The Walt Whitman of American painting," as he has sometimes been called.
When neighbors say nay about a great man there may be something in it, but when they say nay about a painting, they are practically agreed that he is all wool and a yard wide, be sure that he is genuine and sincere. So felt the Boston girl, as she read yesterday a notice Nabour's tribute to Senator Lodge, about whose re-election there is still much talk, though it can hardly be in doubt. Regarding the discussion of tariff schedules and votes on this, that and the other measure, the women folk are not supposed to be keenly interested; though some day equal suffrage may make a difference in that respect. But personal news are always interesting, and when a leading citizen of the state's manly home town, the well liked rockbound peninsula to which Tom Appleton once attached the name of "cold rock Boston," speaks of his neighbor's "noblesse of character, his purity of mind, his freedom from that haughtiness with which many who know him surround him" and says that "those who know him best—his fellow townsmen—are almost unanimously in his favor and are all circumstances," then one knows that on the personal side there can be but little lacking in this senator who has been called, by one not personally acquainted with him, "the most distinguished of Imperialism." Somewhat one likes the ring of selectman J. T. Wilson's tribute to his distinguished fellow citizen, and being in one's own town he has always taken an active interest in its politics and welfare—frequently coming on from Washington to attend our town meetings. His attitude in regard to the here is liked by the townspeople. His opinions are not always approved—how could that be possible among any people towards any man who is so interested in all details, however small, and is considerate of other's opinions. His speaking here shows him to be a man of the highest quality of which public gossip speaks to him. He speaks effectively and forcibly, but his work in town meetings excites the interest and admiration even of those who are not interested in the town politics, in which there are some in this town as in most others.
"Do you believe in woman suffrage?" asks a suffragist ward worker of the Lady of the House, who is inclined to look upon her suspiciously as some new kind of book agent or installment collector. Woman Suffrage is even coming to the lips of the rich brogue. "O never heard of it!" There follows a few minutes of clear, lucid explanation which is listened to with attention and a handout of literature which the Lady promises to read, and if possible, to attend the next suffrage meeting in her neighborhood. Then the suffrage solicitor goes on to the next subject, that of the kind of canvas Boston belongs in the political equality of the sexes are now making, as rapidly as their numbers and means permit. The idea is to come face to face with a woman in every ward and precinct, and to have at least a brief exchange of courtesies with her. In the North End, in streets where only Italian is spoken, the pamphlets to be distributed are in that language. For other neighborhoods they are in Yiddish. Everywhere the effort is to reach the different intelligences and prejudices of a cosmopolitan city. It is a hard, tiresome work for a few devoted women—less exciting and spectacular than campaigning before applauding crowds; but it, too, has its very great usefulness, so say the leaders of the energetic organization of suffragists at 555 Boylston street. "Something doing every minute," is indeed the principle on which the Massachusetts suffragists seem to be counting to win for them the ballot. They are just bringing to Boston, to speak before a gathering at their headquarters, and doubtless elsewhere in New England, another of the interesting English women who have delighted American audiences. This time it is Miss Louise B. Bennett, a Dublin girl of a famous Irish family, who has been a suffragist in her own country, and who is here to uphold, at least for now, in British conditions, the militant methods of which most American suffragist advocates are somewhat afraid. Miss Bennett, who has been standing with the family of Professor Josiah Royce of Harvard, will add to many a New Englander's store of information about the social revolution now in progress in Great Britain.

He was discovered there this morning by the janitor, and it was found that he had received a fracture and dislocation of the spine, which resulted in paralyzing both legs. He also received a severe wound as well as minor cuts and bruises. His condition is regarded as critical and considering his age and the injury to the spine it is thought his chances for recovery are very slight. His home is at 258 Gullford street, West End.

He then joined the United States army, fought in the Philippines, and received an honorable discharge at the close of the war. He received a severe injury to his head while with the circus at St. Albans, N. B., and the Woodstock injury made him irresponsible for his actions. He is survived by a brother and sister in this town.

One Life Lost.

Granby, Que., Jan. 5.—Although it was at first thought that all the inmates of St. Joseph's College had escaped in safety, it has now been discovered that Brother Joseph, assistant and musical director, perished in the flames last night. He with Brother Daniel Lussier, resided on the third floor and was forced to jump in order to save his life. He was badly hurt but it is thought he will recover. It is thought Brother Joseph, in trying to get all the scholars out, lost his own life by staying too long in the building, being overcome by smoke. The total loss is estimated at between sixty and seventy thousand dollars. Insurance about thirty thousand.

Fifteen Killed.
Queensdown, South Africa, Jan. 5.—Fifteen persons were killed and forty or fifty others injured, in the wreck of a passenger train near Cathcart, Cape Colony, today. The train was loaded with holiday makers from East London. It rolled down an embankment.

NEWS OF A DAY

LOCAL
Police Criticized.
London, Jan. 5.—The morning papers publish interviews, and statements from numerous magistrates and other officials connected with the administration of the criminal law. They almost without exception advocate stringent measures against aliens and a more effective application of the existing laws. The newspapers also print many letters, articles and editorials from foreign papers, criticizing the police methods and suggesting that a couple of desperadoes might have been smoked out or dealt with without such an enormous display of force.

Wife Monstrous.

London, Jan. 5.—Lord Roberts unveiled the statue to General Wolfe at Westernham. Lord Roberts said that the way in which Wolfe formed his daring plan and led his troops to victory made one of the brightest pages in the history of the Empire, and never lost its thrilling interest for the nation. That it was adopted was fully justified by Wolfe's firm belief in the courage and discipline of his troops. The same grand feeling was reciprocated towards the commander. No wonder when he was mortally wounded he was able to murmur, "I die content." Among those present at the ceremony were Lord Strathcona and Sir Charles Tupper. Lord Roberts were sent by Canadian residents in Great Britain.

Towns Destroyed.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 5.—A message from Tashkent, Russian Turkestan, says there are unconfirmed rumors that the towns of Ershabek and Pishpek were destroyed by an earthquake yesterday, and that a lake has formed on the site of the former places. Each town had a population of about 8,000. Communication is still impossible, and the government has no advice substantiating the alarming rumors.

Deaths of Grace.

Brussels, Belgium, Jan. 5.—The Aero Club today received a despatch from the president of the Ostend Aero Club stating that an aviator's cap and glasses, probably those worn by Cecil Grace, supposed to have been lost in the North Sea, had been picked up at sea off Mariarke on the Belgian coast.
Youthful Desperado.
Chicago, Jan. 5.—Lester Carlson, 12 years old, today confessed that he shot and killed John Wisniewski, eight years old, laid the body in the cellar of his home, and for six weeks professed complete ignorance of the whereabouts of his former playmate. The body of Wisniewski was found Tuesday night, and for twenty-four hours Carlson steadily refused to acknowledge the manner in which the boy met his death. He told the police today that he shot Wisniewski while the two were playing "Indian."

THE COURTS.

Before Judge Justice McKewen in the King's Bench Division yesterday afternoon A. H. Hanington, K. C., acting on behalf of the defendant in the case of Stanfield Ltd. vs. Somerville applied to have the judgment of the judge on the ground that he had a good and substantial defence to the action, and that judgment was signed through no fault of the defendant.
Fred E. Taylor for the plaintiff opposed the application. Judgment was reserved.
In Chancery.
Before Chief Justice Barker in Chancery Chambers, M. G. Todd, K. C., on behalf of the plaintiff in the case of J. J. McGiffigan vs. Willet Fruit Co., Ltd., applied for an order to inspect the wall between the buildings occupied by both the parties to the case. A. A. Wilson, Esq., and J. King Kelley appeared for the application. Application granted.
Before Judge Justice McKewen in the King's Bench Division in the case of Burgess vs. Murray & Gregory, Ltd., announced that the case had been settled.
This was an action brought under the Workmen's Compensation Act against the defendants for injury received by the plaintiff while in their employ.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores
When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them is to purify the blood. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, which Mr. Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:
"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores broke out on my face and neck. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about for some medicine that would accomplish this.
At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."
Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box.
