

The model-makers

These Clarkson Secondary School students did a geography project that won them a cross-Canada tour, a meeting with Lieutenant-Governor Pauline McGibbon and a display of their work at the Royal Ontario Museum for the next few months. The students, under direction of teacher Bob Lord (back row, right) built a scale model of the Village of Churchville. The village is

Developer wins sign exemption

In case those huge white towers identifying a high-rise apartment built by Iggy Kanefff aren't distinctive enough, the buildings are to be adorned with large signs in the future. Kanefff Properties Ltd. recently won approval from the city's committee of adjustment to erect a number of 60-square-foot identification signs on the top of Kanefff buildings.

The locations are at a 16-storey building at 2300 Confederation Parkway; an 18-storey building at 2170 Sherboe Rd.; a 16-storey building at 2177 Sherboe Rd., and a 21-storey building at 2211 Sherboe Rd. The signs will simply say "Kanefff." The approvals came despite advice from the city's planning and zoning departments. The planning department stated that "the proposed sign is contrary to the intent of the zoning bylaw since it is of an advertising nature, is inconsistent with the identification characteristics of signs on residential buildings and therefore should not be approved." The zoning department added that, "it would appear that this proposal is more in the nature of a company's advertising device than a building identification sign and should not be permitted."

Kanefff's lawyer, Michael Weir, told the committee the standard identification sign is to be installed at all Kanefff buildings.

The committee decided that the intent and purpose of the zoning bylaw would not be offended by the signs since the size and locations are "aesthetically pleasing and necessary to serve the purpose of identification."

Kanefff was granted a minor variance from the zoning regulations to allow the signs.

Newsman Charles Doering

Seige role brings award

CFRB radio news commentator Charles Doering, an eight-year resident of Mississauga, has won for his station the Charlie Award for spot-news reporting with the Radio-Television News Directors Association of Canada.

The Charlie was given to CFRB for coverage of the seige by a hostage-holding gunman at the Banque Canadienne Nationale in Toronto on March 21 and 22 last year.

During the seige, Doering, 51, was taken briefly as a hostage when he agreed to help Metro Toronto Police negotiate with the man, Robert McLagan, for the release of several of his hostages.

"I was very pleased to go in there and help the police out," Doering told The Times. "The gunman has agreed to let some of the hostages go, if I went in."

But his feelings about the assignment changed abruptly when McLagan "stuck a damned shotgun between my eyes."

That little event has changed Doering's attitude toward his own life. "If I'd known what was going to happen, I wouldn't have gone into the bank," he said yesterday. But he did go in as an exchange hostage and since then "I haven't been able to take life quite as seriously."

McLagan has been sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

Doering first joined CFRB in 1965 as an editor of Standard Broadcast News, a radio news network which owns the Toronto station. He soon became a reporter and newscaster and began as a news commentator in 1973.

Sheridan strike looms

Students at Sheridan College could be out of classes in late September, along with several thousand other Ontario college students, if the Ontario Ministry of Colleges and Universities doesn't come to contractual terms with 6,300 Ontario community college instructors by late August.

"We have made realistic demands to the government's negotiating team, but we finally realize we were getting no real response," says Ron Martin, president of Local 244 at Sheridan College. "Therefore, we are going to hold a meeting of delegates from the 22 Ontario community colleges, in Toronto to ratify recommendations for a strike vote."

Martin represents 260 full-time instructors at Sheridan College and 50 part-time instructors. This includes 12 full-time and seven part-time instructors at the Sheridan College School of Design. There are 2,000 part-time community-college instructors in Ontario and 6,300 full-time staffers.

"At that time, we will go to the College Relations Committee and ask them to set up a strike vote under Bill 108, which entitles us to do so," says Martin, an English instructor at Sheridan.

"At the end of September, the teachers will vote whether or not to strike. If they do, we can legally strike five days after the vote is recorded."

Martin says a strike has to be sanctioned by the board of directors of the Ontario Public Employees Union, but he has been assured by the Union president, Sean O'Flynn, that it would be if a strike was approved by the teachers.

"However, this doesn't mean we have to strike," Martin says. "We are more than willing to arbitrate. We are willing to negotiate with the government."

The teachers' main complaint is the work load, which they feel is too heavy.

"The ministry has had a habit of reaching contract agreements late for the past six years," Martin says. "We have been signing one-year contracts, which amount to three percent increases over one year. The Anti-Inflation Board allows up six percent. I think we will get a 5.58 percent increase."

Your guide to Mosquito Control.

How to stop them from biting.

Mosquitoes are most active in the evening and in wooded areas. It is only common sense to reduce mosquito bites by keeping out of their way as much as possible.

- Repair holes in your screens and make sure they fit tightly.
- Mow your weeds and grass frequently, trim hedges and remove all unnecessary vegetation, which protects adult mosquitoes from sun and wind.
- Provide netting for the protection of babies and young children.
- Close the damper on your fireplace when it's not in use.
- Wear loose protective clothing with long sleeves where mosquitoes are abundant.
- Lighter coloured clothing attracts fewer mosquitoes than dark clothing.

Many efficient insect repellents are available, but always read the label and follow instructions.

How to stop them from breeding.

Mosquitoes usually develop in still water so the best way to eliminate them is to do away with still-water breeding sites, wherever they exist. You can do your share.

- Eliminate all standing water around your home.
- Fill in low areas to prevent water gathering.
- Make sure drainage ditches and gutters aren't clogged with trash.
- Clean blocked drainpipes and drain water from flat roofs.
- Dispose of empty cans and old tires, and up-end buckets and other containers left outdoors.
- Change water in wading pools, ponds and bird baths every few days.
- Keep your swimming pool properly chlorinated and filtered.

Insecticides and pesticides should be used carefully. Follow the manufacturer's instructions.

In 1975, a type of encephalitis spread by certain mosquitoes occurred in Ontario for the first time. There were about 70 cases, mostly in Southwestern Ontario.

Weather conditions were better last summer. And the Ontario Ministries of Environment and Health worked with municipalities and the public to combat mosquitoes where they bite and where they breed.

Only four cases of encephalitis were reported last summer. We were lucky. But we were also prepared. We will be prepared again this summer.

Most mosquito bites will be simply a nuisance. If, however, symptoms of encephalitis occur, such as drowsiness, loss of appetite, fever, headache, nausea and vomiting, consult your family doctor.

A free pamphlet on mosquito control is available on request from your local health unit or any office of the Ministry of the Environment.
