Some Advice for Beginners with Sheep.

Here is some advice for the beginner in sheep, which is too good to let go by. It is taken from the Shepherd's Journal, and is worth reading:

Begin slow and go slow. Grow up with your work. Many of our most prominent flockmasters started this way. If you start with pure-bred stock, don't start with show stock, but rather at the bottom of the ladder. As an amateur you will meet discouragements, but keep on and you will be successful in the end.

If you start with grades, use nothing but pure-bred rams. Sell your culls to the butcher rather than to the novice. The sheep is a very bad animal to doctor, therefore keep your flock healthy. Be careful not to buy disease with your flock. Sell your customers a good animal; it means doing business ultimately with their friends. Don't be everlastingly changing breeds; be a stickler. Don't attempt to tear other breeds than that which you are handling to pieces. Have singleness and tenacity of purpose. Don't invent new make-shifts; such bring disaster. Keep salt, worm powders, and fresh water before your flock at all times. Be regular in feeding. Change pastures often. Don't charge your mistakes to bad luck. Don't allow your new purchases to die of homesickness. Don't try to raise February lambs in summer barns. Visit your State and County Shows, and don't fail to examine the contesting carcasses at the fat-stock shows. Train your eye to detect the thrifty or unthrifty animal. Don't feed your sheep moldy rations until you enjoy such yourself. Where possible, pasture your sheep by themselves. Stick to your business until you have built up a reputation, and things will come easy to you, but remember, reputations are not a ready-made product. You had better buy scrubs than pure-breds unless you are prepared to give the pure-breds proper care. Use only the best blood on the male side. Study individuality as well as pedigree. Infusion of blue blood is one of the best tonics to be administered to the flock. Observe caution and avoid all hazardous undertakings. Let the sheep you keep be the best of their kind. Condition powders are all right in their way, but good feed and care often dispense with their use. Don't breed indiscriminately; have an ideal and breed to it. If you like sheep for dollars and cents only, you had better keep out of the business. Good books, and the advice of good breeders, are safe guides, but experience will teach you something they cannot tell you. Remember that the British breeds are children of care. Don't expect to raise good stud sheep without succulent rations. Change your flocks in the cool of the morning or evening, during the hot summer months. Don't allow a dog on your farm unless it be a well-trained shepherd dog. Don't sell out because prices are very high or very low. Keep on, and in a series of years you will make just as much out of sheep as out of any other business. A small, well-managed flock, is more profitable than a large one poorly managed. Let uniformity be one of your ideals. Don't pamper. Don't allow your sheep to shift for themselves. No matter what class of ewe you keep, use only pure-bred rams. Don't feed timothy hay if you can help it. Don't feed grain in excess. Use oats in the breeding flock in preference to corn. Increase the grain ration just before lambing. Feed lightly for several days after lambing. Don't put your money into elaborate barns before you have found out your ability as a shepherd. Start with good sheep, even if they have to be good grades.

When Booker T. Washington started his school at Tuskegee, he had to resort to a chicken-house for a class-room, as he had no other place unoccupied, for his students. He called on an old friend of his, and said: "Uncle Rastus, I want you to come over to my place at about 9 o'clock to-morrow and help me clean out a hen-house."

Uncle Rastus looked at him in surprise. "Why, man," said he, "don't you know that you can't clean out a hen-house on de main street in de daytime?"
