BIG DRY GOODS HOUSE Mouth of the Yalu River.

THE MIKADO RULES THE SEA

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The correspondent of the Central News at Tien-Tsin tele-graphs further details of the naval battle off the mouth of the Yalu river as follows: graphs further details of the naval battle off the mouth of the Yalu river as follows:

The work of transferring troops and stores from the Chinese transports to the shore was proceeding rapidly when the Japanese fleet was sighted. Admiral Ting signalled to his fleet to weigh anchor and form in line of battle. In obedience to this order the fleet was formed in a single line with the exception of the cruiser Kwapg-Kai and Kwang-Ting and four torpedo boats, which were formed in a second line at the mouth of the river. The Japanese fleet advanced at full speed while the Chinese columns were forming in line until they came within range, when the warships formed in line of battle, nine of them in the first column and three gunboats and five torpedo boats in the second column. The firing at the outset of the engagement was of an indifferent order, but the Japanese were creeping gradually closer to the Chinese ships and their gunners were improving their aim by practice.

The Chinese barbette ship Ting-Yuen was the first to suffer any severe injury, a Japanese shell bursting in her battery. A ceaseless cannonade was kept up on both sides for an hour and a half, when the Japanese ship Salkio was rendered help-less, and, according to the assertion of a Chinese, sank soon afterwards. Two of the big guns of the battle ship Chen-Yuen were disabled, but she continued to use her smaller guns. The vessels of both fleets worked very easily under steam and the Japanese were constantly manouvring, but the Chinese held their original posi-fleets worked very sasily under steam and the Japanese were constantly manouvring, but the Chinese held their original position. Suddenly two Japanese cruisers, believed to have been the Akitsushima and Yoshino, endeavored to break the Chinese line. They were followed by three torpedo boats. As the Japanese ships advanced at full speed the Chinese ships Ching-Yuen and Chao-Yung backed full speed satern to avoid a disaster. The Japanese torpedo boats fired, but their projectiles were stopped by nets. The guns of the other Chinese ships were quickly trained on the Japanese cruisers and they retired after a short time, also help-projectiles were stopped by nets. The guns of the other Chinese ships were quickly trained on the Japanese cruisers and they retired after a short time, also helpless. The Chinese say they were sunk. The Ching-Yuen was several times pierced by shells. The Cho-Yung ran ashore while retreating and became a target for the Japanese guns until she was fact on fire. The Ching-Yuen was in a terrible plight. A shell burst through her decks and she slowly foundered, while flames burst from all parts of her. The Tsi-Yuen withdrew from the first into the second column. The Chinese torpedo boats vainly attempted to put the Japanese on the defensive, but the Japanese on the defensive, but the Japanese remained the aggressors throughout, although two or three attempts were made to break the Chinese line but were repulsed. The cruiser Yang-Wei went ashore stern foremost and met a fate similar to that of the Chao-Yung. After the first three hours of the engagement the firing was intermittent.

first three hours of the engagement the firing was intermittent.

The captain of the cruiser Ching-Yuen fought bravely when his ship was little better than a wallowing wreek, until the cruiser was sunk by a torpedo and her crew engulfed. The scenes at this point are described as appalling. Many guns on both sides were disabled, the battered ships rolled heavily and their steam pumps were kept constantly at work to keep them afloat. During the last hour of the battle some of the Chinese ships ran out of ammunition and some of the Japanese ships threatened to founder. At dusk the Japanese ships moved slowly southward in double line. ard in double line

DEATH IN A FIRE.

The Batt House, of Port Stanley, Burned The Batt House, of Fort stanley, Burnea to the Ground.

Post STANLEY, Ont., Sept. 24.—The Batt house caught fire yesterday. The Bre quickly spread throughout the house, the inmates of which all escaped in their night clothes with the exception of the porter, a young lad named John Dinnehy, of Detroit. He appears to have been suffocat d with smoke, as the trunk of the body was found wrapped in the blankets of his bed.

The fire soon spread to the barns and stables, and two horses were burned tefore they could be rescued. Alexander Brown's new barn, on the north, and M. Payne's frame house, on the south side of the hotel, were also burned to the 'ground.

An inquest will be held by Coroner Gustin, of St. Thomas.

THE TRAIN STRUCK A COW.

Up in a Confused Mass, Beside the Track—The Engineer, Fire-man and Brakeman Were the Victima.

Lindsay, Ont., Sept. 24.—On Saturday a special freight train, in charge of Conductor Fred. Russell, ran over a cow when coming near Fraserville. The engine was thrown over on its side, burying beneath it Robert Johnston, the engineer, Nisholas Maloney, the fireman, and George Greensbury, a brakeman. There were 18 cars on the train and every one of them was thrown from the track and piled up in a heap. Some of the cars went over into an adjoining field.

The ill fated special was composed of thirteen cars and a van in charge of Conductor Russell and left for Lindsay at 2.10 Saturday morning. The accident occurred at a crossing about a mile and a half south of Fraserville and was caused by a cow lying on the track. As soon as they struck the animal the engine turned sideways on the track and the 18 cars piled up in a confused mass on top of her. Engineer Johnston, Fireman Maloney and Brakeman Greensbury were found lying together half underneath the boiler. All three were terribly scalded.

It was nearly noon before the unfortun ate men were gotten out of the wreck. Maloney was still alive when taken out, but died a few moments after. He spoke a few words, and said "Good bye" to Conductor Rus ell before expiring.

Johnston formerly lived in Port Hope, but has resided for some years here, and was elected deputy reeve of the town last municipal election. He was a member of Durham Lodge I O. O. F., and leaves a wife and two children. Maloney is a sou of Mr. John Maloney, Port Hope, and was born and brought up there, but his headquarters were at Lindsay. A father, mother, sister and brother (who live in the United States) mourn his loss. His body arrived on the moon train. Both were well known and esteemed among their friends and the embloves of the road train.

mother, sister and brother (who have in the United States) mourn his loss. His body arrived on the noon train. Both were well known and esteemed among their friends and the employes of the road as right good fellows. Greensbury lived in this town.

Flage are flying at half mast over Lindsay and the town is mourning the loss of three good citizens. Engineer Robert Johnston has been a member of our town council for two years, and last year was elected deputy reeve by acclamation. He was a man of fine presence, a good speaker and possessed of a great deal of magnetism. His name has more than once been men tioned as mayor for 1895. A little more than two years ago Mr. Johnston was terribly scalded in a railway accident and was not able to work for some months. In religion Mr. Johnston was a Methodist and in politics a Conservative.

Fireman Maloney will be buried in Port Hope, Brakeman Greensbury in Stouffville and Engineman Johnston in Keene.

Nearly a Fatal Accident.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—What was nearly a horrible accident occurred on Saturday when a motor and trailer jumped the track on the Gerrard street bridge, and nearly went over. The motor, No. 378, in charge of Motorman Davis, with trailer 172 attached, was going east at a fast rate down grade. When they got about 30 feet on the bridge they jumped the track and struck the slight iron railing at the side. Only the weight of the trailer kept the motor car from going clean over. As it was it hung ten feet over the side. There were only three passengers in the motor ear, and they, with Motorman Davis and L. Duncan, another street railway man, who was beside him, escaped undurt. The distance from the level of the bridge to the ground below is 40 feet.
