THE MAKING OF ALE.

OF HOPS—

The flowers of the hop vine are used to impart fragrance and bouquet to malt liquors. Physicians agree that the hop extract in good ale is one of its most important medicinal properties. Experience has shown to brewers that hops vary widely in strength and flavor, according to the climate of the district in which they grow. England, Germany, and North America produce hops which are especially fitted for different brands of ale. The choicest growths of these countries are used in the manufacture of Carling's Ale, Porter, and Lager.

THE ROCK-A-BYE BOAT.

There's a boat that leaves at half-past six
From the busy port of Play,
And it reaches the haven of Slumberland
Before the close of day.

It carries the latest passengers,
And it rocks so gently, oh!
When the wee ones nestle in their berths,
And the boatman begins to row!

The whistle sounds so low and sweet
(Like a mother's lullaby),
That the travelers smile and close their eyes,
To dream of angels nigh.

Sometimes the travelers tarry too long
In the busy port of Play,
And the anxious boatman coaxes and calls,
And grieves at their delay.

But at last they come to the rocking boat,
Which bears them down the stream,
And drifts them to the Slumberland,
To rest and sleep, and dream.

The name of the boat is Rock-a-Bye,
And it's guided by mother's hand,
For she is the patient boatman, dear,
Who takes you to Slumberland.

Now what is the fare a traveler pays
On a Rock-a-Bye boat like this?
Why, the poorest child can afford the price,
For it's only a goodnight kiss.

—(Eveline Goodnow.)

MARTHA'S JOY TEARS.

"John," said Mrs. Esmond, as she passed her husband his second cup of coffee, "I need the dress badly, and I don't see how I can get along without it."

"But, Martha, money's so awfully tight now I don't like to spare any till I pay off the men. If there's any left I—guess you can have ten dollars or so, if that'll do you?"

"I knew that's just how it would be," said Mrs. Esmond bitterly to herself. "It's been so for years," and the unbidden tears rolled down her cheeks and fell on the table-cloth.

"I must have the dress, for Tom's coming home Christmas, and he must see his mother dressed up a bit. It's been five years since he went to Australia."

"Women are queer creatures," soliloquized John Esmond, as he lifted his head to his shoulder and started for the potato field. "They're so unreasonable, and if they want a thing they want it awful—an' there's nothing but they must have it. Maybe I had ought to spare enough for the dress, seeing her heart's so set on it; but I dunno, I'll see."

Meanwhile the tired housewife went about her work with a burden not only on her shoulders, but a heavier one on her heart.

"I wasn't so when we were first married," she thought, "but I'll have the dress somehow; I must have it for Tom's sake."

That afternoon she visited the hotel on the hill and for weeks after her work seemed never done.

"Pears to me you're always to work lately," said John curiously one night.

"Have I ever been idle?" replied Martha quietly.

"No; but you never used to work so stidily before as I know of and you're getting real peaked. And by the way, Martha, I paid the men to-day, and it took all the spare cash I had. Sorry but I guess you'll have to wait for the dress till I sell the wood."

"You might give me a check," said Mrs. Esmond, evasively.

Her husband looked horrified.

"That'd would never do, Martha. We must save something for a rainy day."

"Your bank account is not small, John, and we'll never live to spend it all."

"Nobody can tell what'll happen, Martha, so I ain't best to be too extravagant. Seems to me your dresses are good 'nough—and rainy days are sure to come to all, sooner or later."

"It seems to me all my days are rainy," and Mrs. Esmond began to knit more vigorously than ever.

"Why, what do you mean, Martha; you ain't complaining, are you?"

"No, John, why should I?"

"Martha ain't feelin' well, I guess," said her husband to himself, as Mrs. Esmond left the room. "She ain't been feelin' just right for a long spell. But I guess it'll pass off now the heat of the fall's work's over, and the men gone," and picking up the weekly paper, wife and trouble were soon forgotten.

It was the first week of October and the dainty new dress, earned by working for the hotel people, lay on the bed in the spare room.

"I'll not tell him," thought Mrs. Esmond. "He won't like it because I've done this extra work; but I had to have the dress, and it's so pretty, and with loving hands she smoothed the shining folds. "Had John given it to me, how much more I should enjoy it," she thought.

"I'm glad Mary's coming home next week, I'm so tired. Seems as if I can never rest. She'll find poor old mother all tired out and not much company."

A few mornings later when Mr. Esmond came in to breakfast, he found his wife lying on the dining-room lounge.

"Why, Martha, what's the matter; ain't breakfast ready?"

"Not quite, John. I felt so dizzy I had to lie down. I think I'll feel better soon, but you'll have to dish up the breakfast. You'll find the potatoes on the back of the stove."

"Isn't there anything I can do, Martha. Can't I get you a little toast or tea or something?"

"No, John, don't mind about me, go and eat your breakfast."

Hour by hour Martha grew steadily worse, until her husband in his alarm sent for a neighbor and the doctor.

"She's a sick woman," said the doctor tersely, as he followed the anxious husband to the kitchen. "She will need the best of care."

"Mary is coming to-morrow," faltered Mr. Esmond, as he sat down heavily in a straight-back chair, "and she'll be the best medicine mother can have."

"We'll have courage," said the doctor, kindly, seeing the dazed look on the farmer's face. "Get Mrs. Hobart to remain with you till your daughter comes—she's an excellent nurse," and the busy doctor hurriedly left the room.

"Father," said Mary one day, "why does mother in her delirium continually talk of her pretty new dress?"

"Clumsily, but honestly, Mr. Esmond told of his wife's desire for the new dress, and his refusal to get it for her."

"Oh, father, how could you! Poor, dear mother!"

"Mary, don't! I can't stand it. I didn't know how she really felt about it, and I thought her dresses were good 'nough—it was only for Tom. And I wasn't because I'm really mean, Mary; don't think that. I didn't understand these things. But—but—daughter, if mother'll only get well, she'll find I've turned over a new leaf. She'll never again have to ask twice for what she needs, and she'll have something to enjoy before one of us is dead," and the strong man bowed his head in his hands and his frame shook.

"There, there, father, no one is perfect, and we must often learn by experience," and tenderly kissing his gray hair Mary returned to her mother's room.

The long days slipped away, though slowly, and it was a happy morning for Mary and her father when Mrs. Esmond awoke and said weakly, "How long I've slept! Isn't it long past breakfast time?"

"Never mind, mother dear, I'll see to that. Just go to sleep again," said Mary, gently. And with a sigh of contentment the mother obeyed like a little child.

"She is out of danger," said the doctor, an hour later, "but you must keep her quiet and free from worry. She'll be about by Christmas time, but she must be kept from doing any hard work for months to come."

Christmas morning, which was also mother's birthday, dawned on a happy family at the Esmond homestead.

For the first time since that day in September, Mrs. Esmond was seated in her accustomed place in the cozy sitting-room with her husband and children about her.

"I have much to be thankful for to-day," she said, "and—"

"No, so much as I have, Martha," and tears stood in her husband's eyes. "I never realized how mean I was getting, but I've turned over a new leaf. What pleasure would my money've given me had you—"

Awkwardly he took his wife's frail hand in both his own. Then kissing her abruptly, he left the room.

"Why, children, see what your father has given me!" exclaimed Mrs. Esmond, holding a check before them.

"Father put this into my hand just now."

"Poor, dear father," murmured Mary, tenderly.

"Dear old dad!" cried Tom, as he used to do when a boy.

"Come, Tom, mother needs some one to brush away her joy tears. We'll send father to her," and the children quietly left the room—Adelbert F. Caldwell.

FACE & HEAD COVERED WITH SCALES

Shed a Tablespoonful of Night Hair Full of White Scales. Offer $100 for Cure. Friend Suggests CUTICURA REMEDIES. Tried Them and is Cured.

Last summer I had company, a man and his wife. The man's hands and face had dry, scaly scales on them, and his head was covered with the same, his hair being full of those white scales or scales. His wife said, "Some mornings she would find a tablespoonful or more of them in the bed." I asked him what ailed him, and he replied "that he did not know." "Why don't you cure yourself?" "I would give a hundred dollars to be cured. I have paid out a lot of money, but don't get cured." "Why don't you try CUTICURA?" "I would cure him for less than that," said the man. "I tried CUTICURA remedies and he would be cured. As he was living in Bristol, Vt., I did not see him for some time after, and he finally wrote to me, 'I am cured. CUTICURA has done it. The Lord bless you and CUTICURA.'"

TETTER CURED BY CUTICURA

I had Tetter on my hands for two years. My hands were all cracked to pieces, and I had to tie them up in bandages. I tried everything, but nothing seemed to do any good. I tried the CUTICURA remedy, and it cured me. I am now well and happy.

HALLIE K. COLEMAN, Woodland, N.C.

CUTICURA

Begin with the Blood and Ends with The Skin and Scalp.

That is to say, CUTICURA, the greatest of blood purifiers and humors expellers, purifies the blood and circulating fluids, drives out the impurities, and restores the system to its normal state. It cures all skin diseases, such as Eczema, Scabies, Psoriasis, and all other eruptions of the skin. It is a powerful and economical cure for the most distressing, disfiguring humors of the skin, and, with the loss of hair, when all other remedies fail.

Sold throughout the world. For Sale by C. H. Gunn & Co., Ltd., 47 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

FACE HUMORS

Bodily labor alleviates the pains of the mind; and hence arises the happiness of the poor.

A business man is not the most patient creature in the world. He cannot wait to hear any long-drawn-out story of the past of his ailments. He doesn't care two straws about a fine theory of how he should treat himself. He may be predisposed to scrofula, or consumption, that, he will tell you, "has been in me since I was a child." He wants to be well. If he can be cured, write out a prescription and send in your bill. So, here's the first part of the proposition.

The modern medical discovery is a microbe hunter and killer. Many persons of scrofulous blood, encourage the breaking out of unsightly eruptions, and the disease goes on in the lungs. There is no need of this state of dread and discomfort. Purify the blood. It can be done. "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure 98 per cent of all the common skin diseases, all other lingering bronchitis, throat and lung diseases.

The laughter of girls is, and ever was, among the delightful sounds of earth.

A WRONG BURIAL CERTIFICATE.

When a physician issues a burial certificate for one who has died of consumption or throat trouble, he should say: Cause of death, neglect to take Four Four's when the cough first started. Four Four's cures cough in 24 hours and the cold in two days, and you get a large bottle for 25c at the Central Drug Store.

Liberty does not consist so much in giving a great deal as in giving it seasonably.

NO MORE PALE WOMEN.

Merrill's System Tonic supplies iron to the system, makes good, rich, red blood in anemic women. It is a positive cure for Constipation, the greatest foe of womanhood. After taking for a short time all female troubles disappear, and the cause is removed. 50 doses for 50 cents. Sold at the Central Drug Store.

That laughter costs too much which is purchased by the sacrifice of decency and propriety.

THE CAUSE REMOVED.

In curing disease it's only wasting time to treat the symptoms. The medicine must reach the cause. Merrill's System Tonic does this. It purifies the blood, builds up the system, strengthens the nerves and is the only positive cure known for Constipation, Dyspepsia, Nerve Troubles and Kidney Diseases—all disappear when it is taken. Three weeks' treatment for 50c. Sold at the Central Drug Store. Descriptive pamphlet free.

Learning, like money, may be of so base a coin as to be utterly void of use; or, if sterling, may require good management to make it serve the purposes of sense and happiness.

RIGHT IN ONTARIO

This Home of Wretchedness and Misery Existed

For a Number of Years—A Shocking Condition of a Family in Simcoe County.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—A clergyman in Simcoe county has reported to the Government, superintendent of neglected children a terrible case of cruelty and wretchedness existing in that county. The clergyman describes the condition of a family he visited as follows:—"The family, seven children, five of them under eight years of age, and father and mother, living in a log hut, low ceiling, all in one room, not more than 10x12 feet. The man has something the matter with his eyes. He says he cannot stand the light, so there is no window, and there has not been a ray of light in that house for ten years. I am told the children are going blind. He has done so work for ten years. We found them sitting in the most shocking condition of filth and wretchedness. Although it was broad daylight there had a small coal oil lamp burning without any chimney. The mother tries to get food of any kind for the children by washing. We asked them a few questions such as, 'Who is God?' 'Did you ever hear of God and of Christ?' and they said they had not. I asked the father and mother if they would let four or five of the children go to the home in Toronto, where they could learn something, but they refused. Is there no way of taking these children and rescuing them from a living death?"

The superintendent has made inquiries and finds the facts as stated by the clergyman to be quite correct. Several of the children are already partially blind. An effort will be made to help the family.

FOR AND AGAINST.

Opinions Differ Concerning Mr. Chamberlain's Speech.

Some Papers do not regard a German Alliance as Necessary or Profitable.

London, December 2.—The afternoon newspapers are divided on Mr. Chamberlain's Anglo-American-Turkish alliance speech at Leicester yesterday. The Fall Mail Gazette lays stress on the strong anti-German prejudices in Great Britain, and declares bluntly that Mr. Chamberlain had better have kept silent.

The Westminster Gazette takes the same line, believing Mr. Chamberlain did not represent government opinion, and pointing out how offensive the speech was towards France.

The Globe maintains that it is impossible for Germany to give a quiet pro quo for the responsibilities which would accrue to Great Britain, by such an alliance.

The Evening Standard says Mr. Chamberlain referred to no alliance by treaties.

The St. James' Gazette says Mr. Chamberlain simply expresses English public opinion, which has come to realize that with Germany and the United States, we can work, because with those powers we have a community of interests and sentiments, whereas with Russia and France we have no such community.

The Sun, the only other afternoon newspaper, takes a similar favorable view of the suggested alliance.

Lord Rosebery, speaking at Edinburgh last evening, deprecated Mr. Chamberlain's reference to France in his speech at Leicester, and said:—"We have no right to go into the gutters, fish up the derelict press of any country, and to hold it up to scorn or as a motive of our policy. It is impossible that the Queen could be besmirched by such attacks, which only reveal the degradation and what ever the degraded outburst may mean, it does not represent the best or highest opinion of France. We have been over-ready to flout other realities, and with Germany and the Great Britain is unpopular abroad. I do trust that this undiplomatic frankness will cease, for these stinging words rankle long afterwards, and it is not for statesmen to speak under the passing irritation of the moment."

AS A PROTEST.

London, Dec. 2.—The Paris correspondent of the Evening News telegraphs to his paper, that there is reason to believe that Sir Edmund J. Monson, the British ambassador to France, will shortly apply for a prolonged leave of absence as a protest against the attacks made by the French press on Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales.

HE CAPPED IT.

The Englishman Was no Match for the Yankee.

A Yankee had been bragging for some time in the smoking room of the hotel about various marvelous feats of performed, when an Englishman, who had listened, bethought himself that he would defeat the boastful "colonel" with his own weapons, so he suddenly spoke up.

"Well, yes, Colonel," struck in the Britisher, "those were big swims, I admit, that you say you've seen; but I've known one that beats all yours hollow!"

"Two years ago I started from Liverpool for New York in one of the Cunard boats. There was a little commotion and excitement on the wharf at leaving, and a man dived into the water; but we took no particular heed of it."

"Next morning we remembered it, though, for sure enough there was a man swimming abreast of us at the rate of fifteen knots an hour. We called out to him and heaved him a rope, but he refused all assistance. At night, of course, we lost sight of him, but when the sun rose, there he was again, striking out as lively as possible. And so he stood by us all the way across, sometimes diving under our keel and coming up on the other side; sometimes playing round us like a dolphin, now on his back, now on his side, now turning head over heels, wheel fashion."

"But two hours before we reached New York he began to forge ahead, and soon distanced us altogether; and when we got alongside we found him standing on the quay dressed to receive us."

The Yankee had eyed the speaker fixedly during his narration.

"That's a true yarn, I s'pose, stranger?" he said, interrogatively.

"Oh, yes, quite true; I saw it myself," was the reply.

"You said that man swim across from Liverpool to New York alongside your steamer all the way?"

"Exactly."

"Stranger, did you know that man?"

"Well, no," answered the Englishman, cautiously. "I didn't know him; but I saw him, nevertheless."

"Stranger, I was that man!"
