Without Parallel.
Truth Is Sometimes Stranger than Fiction.

There has come to light a wonderful case of restoration to health, at Lakeville, Corner, N. B. The particulars were first given out Feb. 3, 1894, and are as follows: Mrs. R. Upton, of that place, had this five or six months and sometimes fifteen days, for five or six years. Five physicians treated her for her chief trouble—severe and chronic indigestion and inability to retain food on her stomach.

In the spring of '93 she commenced to take "Croder's Syrup." Since then she has had no symptom of ill health, her health has wonderfully improved and she is "anything."

She took five bottles of "Croder's"—and will make oath to the above statement if necessary. The lady who sold her this wonderful medicine, Miss F. L. Tapley, says:
"I have known Mrs. Upton for over five years, and I know the above statements to be true in every particular."

Your health may demand the use of Croder's Syrup.

has no relatives there. It is stated she has a sister in New Brunswick.

LITERARY NOTES.
HARPER'S MAGAZINE.
HARPER'S MAGAZINE for June contains 84 pictures. Few books have so many.
But the charm of these pictures is not in their number; it is in their beauty and style, as well as their appropriateness to the text.

HARPER'S WEEKLY.
Perhaps the shortest of short stories is a cartoon; for, at a glance, and sometimes without a single word, it must characterize all the people it depicts and make sure that you do not miss the moral. The political story of a week or of a month is told in the cartoons that from time to time appear upon the first

HARPER'S BAZAR.
Among the features of HARPER'S BAZAR for June will be the "Story of a Garden," told in letters by ELIZABETH HOLLAND WATSON, and the new story "Coffee and Repartee," by JOHN KENDRICK BANGS, and letters from Paris giving the fashions and gossip of that capital.

HARPER'S WEEKLY will contain, in the issue of May 12th, an article upon "Cincinnati and its Musical Festival," by Edward Krehbiel. Mr. Krehbiel treats of the history of the festival, and also shows the connection between the German idea and the American product. He points out the growing popularity of these great musical festivals, and treats of the competition between the two cities.

GENERAL NEWS.
—The pen is mightier than the sword.
At least a Montreal millionaire named Baggs thinks so. He hit a man with a sword, and then had to resort to his pen to remedy the wrong. He did it by signing his name to a cheque for $500 which was handed over to a hospital.

—Mr. Rudyard Kipling was recently interviewed by the St. James Gazette, and in answer to the question, "Have you seen much of Canada?" made the following remarks: "Something—and what I have seen I like. It is a great country—a country with a future.
There is a fine, hard, tough, bracing climate—the climate that puts iron and grit into men's bones; and there are all good things to be got out of the ground if people will work for them. What I wants more men and more money.
Why don't Englishmen think more of it as a field for English capital and enterprise? Surely there is an excellent opening both for the investing and the emigrating Briton there. Things don't perhaps move quite so fast as in the States, but they are safer, and you are under the flag, you know, and among men of the slower stock and breed.
Send your folks to Canada; and if they can't go themselves, let them send their money—plenty of it."

In Illinois and some other States there is an old law on the statute books to the effect that in criminal cases the jury is "judge of the law as well as the facts." This law has not often quoted, once in a while a lawyer with a desperate case makes use of it. In one case the judge instructed the jury that it was to judge of the law as well as the facts, but added that it was not judge of the law unless it was fully satisfied that it knew more law than the judge. An outrageous verdict was brought in, contrary to all instructions of the court, who felt called upon to rebuke the jury. At last one farmer arose: "Judge," said he, "weren't we to judge the law as well as the facts?" "Certainly," was the response; "but I told you not to judge the law unless you were clearly satisfied that you knew the law better than I did." "Well, judge," answered the farmer, as he shifted his quid a little, "we considered that point."

—A declaration of marriage in Sam, says the New York World, is simpler even than it used to be in Scotland.
You ask a lady to marry you by merely offering her a flower or taking a light from a cigarette, if it happens to be in her mouth; and your family and a bride's family have to put up at least $1,000 apiece for a dowry. Unlike Japan, the Siamese women are treated as equals, but they can seldom read or write. The principle impediment in the way of marriage is that each year is named after an animal, and only certain animals are allowed to intermarry.
For instance, a person born in the year of the rat cannot marry with a person born in the year of the dog, or a person born in the year of the cow with a person born in the year of the tiger; and these are similar embargoes about months and days.

—In one of the smaller cities of New England there was an Episcopal church, which had two mission chapels, commonly known as the East End Mission and the North End Mission, from the parts of the city where they were respectively located. One day the rector gave out the notices, in his most distinguished, high-church tone, as follows: "There will be a service at the North End Mission at three o'clock and at the East End at five. Children will be baptised at both ends."

—A thief broke into a West End house early the other morning and found himself in the music-room. Hearing footsteps approaching he took refuge behind a screen. From eight to nine the eldest daughter had a singing lesson. From nine to ten o'clock the second daughter took a piano lesson. From ten to eleven o'clock the eldest son had a violin lesson.
From eleven to twelve the other son had a lesson on the flute. At twelve-fifteen all the brothers and sisters assembled and studied an ever splitting piece for voice, piano, violin and flute. The thief staggered out from behind the screen at twelve-forty-five, and, falling, at their feet, cried, "For mercy's sake have me arrested!"

—A singular incident is related in the Congregationalist regarding a church which was seeking for a pastor, and sought that paper's help. It was found that the church offered an encouraging opportunity for the right sort of man, and it was accordingly set forth. One of the first letters in response came from a minister without a charge who expressed an ardent desire to throw his whole energy into just such a field as that described. It turned out that the church in question was the very one which he had been serving only a few months before.

—Mordid sentimentality prevails quite as much in Latin American countries as it does among us. In a recent issue of the Buenos Ayres Herald the editor remarks: "The Argentine criminal code is too lenient toward crimes of violence, and even such as it is, the executive authorities administer it too leniently. No mercy should be shown to murderers, and the sentimental dames who intercede for them and divert justice from its course should reserve their tears for the victims."

PERSONALS.
—This is Archbishop Farrar's tribute to "General" Booth: "I do not, of course, agree with you in all your views, nor do I endorse all your methods, but I believe that, after admitting every possible deduction, you have rendered a unique and mighty service to the cause of religion and humanity."

—Andrew Carnegie was recently commenting to a group of friends upon the depression of business in general, touching particularly upon how the mills of the country have been affected. "I have always been taught to believe," he remarked, "that ten mills make a cent, and ten cents a dime; but I don't believe that ten mills in the United States have made a red cent during the last year."

—Sarah Grand, author of the "Heavenly Twins," has an article in The North American Review, in which the men of the day are described as an effete and degenerate race, while Cuda, in the same publication, passes a similar judgment upon women. There appears to be no hope for the human race except in the general adoption of the bicycle.

—General Grant would neither indulge himself, nor would he permit others to indulge in obscene stories.
Here, for instance, is one of the finest things recorded of any public man related by Gen. Clinton B. Fisk: "I was sitting with the general and a number of others when an officer high in rank rushed in, shouting, 'Oh, boys, I've such a good story to tell you!' 'No; but there are gentlemen present,' was the curt reply of Grant. The story was not told."

—Turrene, one day, observing that at each volley from a certain battery some of his soldiers ducked their heads, but drew themselves up again immediately, let them should be reprimanded, exclaimed: "My children, there is no harm in what you do; such visitors will deserve an obsequy."

—The French officer's politeness when he saw a bomb approaching.
Leaping aside as it approached, he took of his hat and bowed low remarked: "I never dispute precedence with gentlemen of your family."

—Jno. E. Turnbull, of St. John, Inspector of Government Buildings, was in town the other day. Mr. Turnbull is over eighty years old. Except that he is considerably deaf he enjoys the full possession of all his faculties, and is remarkably hale and hearty. With a philosophical view to his latter end, Mr.
Turnbull has his own coffin manufactured by his own hands. For some years this narrow house has been finished by him so as to occupy it when his summons comes.—EX.

—Once during the Iron Dukes' campaign in the Pyrenees, it happened that General Pic
