Deep on the convent roof the snows Are sparkling to the moon ; My breath to heaven like vapor goes May my soul follow soon ! The shadows of the convent towers Slant down the snowy sward, Still creeping with the creeping hours That lead me to my Lord; Make thou my spirit pure and clear As are the frosty skies. Or this first snowdrop of the year That in my bosom lies.

As these white robes are soiled and day To yonder shining ground; As this pale taper's earthly spark, To yonder argent round So shows my soul before the Lamb, My spirit pefore Thee So in my earthly house I am To that I hops to be. Break up the heavens, O Lord ! and far, Thro' all yon starlight keen, Draw me, Thy bride, a glittering star In raiment white and clean.

He lifts me to the golden doors. The flashes come and go: All heaven bursts her starry floors And strews her lights below And deepens on and up ! the gates Roll back and far within For me the Heavenly Brideg To make me pure of sin. The Sabbaths of Eternity One Sabbath deep and wide-A light upon the shining sea-The Bridegroom with his bride!

Cardinal Newman

I have this story from the lips of the late Father Martin Everard, S. J. About the year 1872, he was the pleasure afforded me, to witness engaged in missionary work at Gal. the feeling of good will and unity ashiel's. Part of his duty was to go every Sunday, to celebrate Mass at Selkirk, which was hardly more than three-quarters of an hour by train from Galashiels. He made it a rule to visit a few old people and any sick person on every Monday morning before returning. Among the aged and ir firm was a dear old by the roadside with her married was so cheerful in disposition and tows : with strong faith—her whole ocou-pation seemed to be saying her Ro-sary over and over to obtain the grace of a happy death. Calling as usual on a certain Monday morning, he found poor Granny not at all well. She told him that most pro-bably before the next Sunday came around she would have to send for him. The next morning's post brought a letter from the daughter, with strong faith-her whole occubrought a letter from the daughter, begging Father Everard to come at hourly worse. He determined to go by the afternoon train, thinking there was no need of greater hurry ; dying." He caught a train almost at once, and in less than half an hour be was at Granny's bedsideto find to his great sorrow that Father Roche has grown to be Granny was already dead.
