Other People's Motives.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Someone was wondering why a certain woman was a suffragist. "Oh, that's simple enough," explained the woman who isn't. "There's a rather smart crowd in our town that's taken up suffrage and she has taken that side so as to be in with them." A little later someone asked her why she was opposed to suffrage and she immediately supplied them with some very high-sounding motives.

Her reasons for thinking as she did were honest and worthy, but her opponent's motives were not. How did she know? I can't tell you. I suppose she knew in that mysterious way in which certain people always know that the person who does not think as they do is influenced by unworthy considerations.

Cut from the same piece of goods are the people who are always sure that anyone who criticises them is narrow or prejudiced or actuated by dislike, envy, pique or some other unworthy motive.

"Aunt Lucy" said the obstinate one on pursuing what seemed to everyone about her foolish course. Her older sister was arguing against it. "Aunt Lucy thinks you're making a great mistake."

"Aunt Lucy" said the obstinate one contemptuously. "You know she's an old fogey."

"And Miss Marshall" (her high school teacher) "thinks it's absolutely crazy."

"She wants everyone to be a teacher like herself. You can't tell anything by what she says." Everyone was prejudiced against her.

"Well, Ruth" (an older girl for whom the younger sister had always had a great admiration), said she was terribly sorry to hear you thought of taking up that work. She didn't think you were at all fitted for it."

The obstinate one never wavered a moment. "Well, I wouldn't have thought Ruth would let herself be influenced against me by you and mother," was her prompt explanation of that.

It plainly never occurred to her that any of these people might be sincere and wise in their criticisms. They criticised her; she was right; therefore they must be either prejudiced or ill-advised.

Plainly this is not the road to self-improvement and progress. On the contrary.

Question.—I am debating whether to send my girl to a co-educational college. Do you think that such a college is dangerous to a girl's morals or manners?—Anxious Mother.

Answer.—Emphatically not, if she's any kind of a girl. Personally I am a great believer in the beneficent influence of co-education in keeping a girl so accustomed to the other sex that she doesn't lose her head whenever she sees a man. In the words of David Starr Jordan, "There is less silliness and folly where man is not a novelty."

The Beothuks.

Mr. Howley's history of the Beothuks, is getting a grand reception from the Standard reviewers. The conscientious labour, wide research, and the accurate knowledge embodied in the work appeal keenly to the critics, and they will agree in rating it very highly, and conceding it premier place on its own peculiar subject.

The last issue of the United Empire, The Journal of Royal Colonial Institute, says of it in the course of a very appreciative article, that it is "an extremely able and authoritative work upon a little known subject, written by one, who has devoted forty years study to the question, and it should be read with the greatest attention, not only by the student of history of our oldest colony, but by all who are interested in the origin of the native races of North America."

The book is intensely interesting and beautifully illustrated, and will be a welcome addition to the libraries of our educational institutes, as it supplies an authoritative work on a period in our history of which we are all too unfamiliar. Students and book lovers will, no doubt, secure copies of this first edition while there is a good chance to do so, as it is a work that is sure to become more valuable, each year, and will be very difficult to get when the present edition is exhausted.

Lachute, Que. 25th Sept. 1908. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen.—Ever since coming home from the Boer War I have been bothered with running fever sores on my legs. I tried many salves and liniments; also doctored continuously for the blood, but got no permanent relief, till last winter when my mother got me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT. The effect of which was almost magical. Two bottles completely cured me and I have worked every working day since.

Yours gratefully, JOHN WALSH.

According to reports brought along on the ship there is not much improvement in the fishery north. Trap fishing is practically over at the different places and there has been scarcely anything doing with hook and line of late, owing to scarcity of squid bait.

Slight Fire.

At 9.10 P.M. yesterday an alarm of fire from Box 25 summoned the Central and Western Companies to the residence of Thomas Lidstone, New Cove Street, where a slight blaze, caused by a defective stove pipe, was in progress. The firemen were on the scene promptly and applied a stream of water which quenched the blaze before much damage was done. The "all out" signal sounded at 9.25 p.m.

YESTERDAY'S EXCURSIONS.

Yesterday's excursion trains to Tor's Cove and to points as far as Keilgrew's look like about 500 passengers. Return to the city was made at 9.30 p.m.

Show Bernstorff Check for $5,000 to Aid Periodical.

Ambassador Pleased with Mr. Braun's Support, but asked Editor to keep His Approval of Magazine Out of the Public Prints.

(New York Herald, Aug. 21st.) As evidence that the official propaganda to influence public opinion in this country has been participated in by the German Government the World this morning reproduces the facsimiles of a letter from the German Ambassador to the editor of a pro-German publication and a check for $5,000, payable to the publication in question.

The publication referred to is the Fair Play, a monthly journal published by Marcus Braun, a Hungarian, who is well known on the east side. In a letter addressed by Count Von Bernstorff to Mr. Braun he says that Fair Play "during the last seven months in its editorial policy treated all belligerents justly and thereby rendered great service to the millions of foreign born citizens of this country, especially those of German and Austro-Hungarian origin."

In his letter Count Von Bernstorff asks the recipient to publish his letter, "as this would be contrary to the instructions of my government, which does not wish me publicly to advertise any reviews or newspapers." Count von Bernstorff added, however, that Mr. Braun might be privileged to show the letter to anyone who is interested in Germany and her struggles.

The letter of Count von Bernstorff is as follows:— German Embassy, Washington, D.C. Washington, D.C. March 15, 1915.

J No. 4844. My Dear Mr. Braun:—In answer to your favor of the 12th inst., I beg to say that I have read the monthly review "Fair Play" for the last three years and I can state that the publication has been living up to its name and that it always has taken the American point of view. During the last seven months "Fair Play" has in its editorial policy treated all belligerents justly and thereby rendered great services to the millions of foreign born citizens of this country, especially those of German and Austro-Hungarian origin. "Fair Play" has fought for the rights of the latter and for truth, always maintaining an American attitude and showing true American spirit.

You are at liberty to show this letter to anybody who is interested in the matter, but I beg you do not publish it, as this would be contrary to the instructions of my government, which does not wish me to publicly advertise any interviews or newspapers. Very sincerely yours, F. BERNSTORFF, Marcus Braun, Esq., Editor of Fair Play, New York City.

The check for $5,000, which is signed by Count von Bernstorff, is dated May 28, 1915, a little more than two months after the German Ambassador wrote his indorsement of Fair Play. It was made payable to the Fair Play Publishing Company and was drawn on Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Mr. Braun, editor of Fair Play, has been in Europe since which has not been explained. Mrs. Braun, who lives at No. 223 East Sixty-eighth street, said yesterday she had received a cable despatch from her husband saying he expected to leave Copenhagen within the next few days. The office of Fair Play is at No. 501 Fifth Avenue, and in the absence of her husband Mrs. Braun is running the publication. She said yesterday that she knew of no check for $5,000. The publication is popular with Germans and Austro-Hungarians and has enjoyed considerable patronage since the outbreak of the war.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex, at your druggist's."

A Fox at Large.

Yesterday morning, about 11.30, the residents of Pennywell Road were thrown into a state of excitement by the cry of "A fox! a fox!" Shortly after, the scene was a lively one when men, women and children took up the chase. But Mr. Fox was game. After giving an exhibition of his dodging proclivities he made his escape in a drain culvert. Now excitement reigns high. The men folk, with smiling faces and jingling dollars in their pockets in imagination, started in to secure the fox. Bamboo rods, longers, brin bags and every known device were brought into requisition, but the fox was not to be driven nor enticed out. After about an hour's work the men gave up the job in disgust, leaving the fox to his own initiative. But one of the residents, who appeared on the scene later, was not to be outdone. Stopping up the opening and making the fox comfortable for the night, he, at an early hour this morning, resumed operations, aided by a member of the Municipal Council and one of the staff of our morning contemporary. Armed with a pick and shovel, wire netting, etc., they started to work, and after an hour and a half working they dug the animal out, not much the worse for his close confinement. We understand that the animal will go back to its original owner, a resident of Gear Street, from whom it escaped a couple of days ago.
