THE DAILY DOPE BY THE CUB-EDITOR

R. CRUSOE.
When Robinson Crusoe was wrecked all alone on an island far out in the sea. He didn't sit down on the sands with a groan and murmur, "Poor unlucky me!" He started to work right away with a will. And he built the first bungalow. And he fashioned some tools, and so managed to till some ground that a garden might grow.
Whatever he needed he made for himself. From things that were lying at hand—Umbrella or shoes or a head-bumping shield. For the winter preserves he had canned.
Some people, thus stranded, would have down and sob. And presently perish, no doubt. 'Twas the way Mr. Crusoe got down to his job. That made him worth writing about.
—Walter C. Doty.

AERIAL MAILS, TO CANADA AND AMERICA.
It is announced that arial mail and passenger services are to be inaugurated connecting Newfoundland with Canada and the United States, and the Lower House of the Newfoundland Legislature has ratified the concession granted to the Imperial Aircraft Manufacturing Company of England. The first service to be inaugurated will be that connecting St. John's with Montreal—United Empire.

WAS HE A BURGLAR!
The dark lantern flashed through the flat. Then came the gleam of a revolver.
"Hands up!" hissed the head of the family; "you're a burglar."
"Y-yes," gasped the intruder.
"What have you stolen!"
"Your wife's pug dog."
"Hm! Er—if that's all you may sneak out quietly."
"And your mother-in-law's parrot."
"Really? Well, here is some loose change."
"And your daughter's gramophone."
"Good! Here's some more loose change."
"Also your son's violin."
"What! Great Scott man. I'll open a special bottle. There certainly will be some peace in this flat from now onwards."

HEALTH PRECAUTIONS.
Brown: "Tell me, what precautions do you take against water infected with microbes?"
Smith: "First I boil it, and then I filter it."
Brown: "Excellent! And then?"
Smith: "Then I drink beer!"

PASTE THIS IN YOUR HAT.
Remember that the opportunity of a lifetime must be seized during the lifetime of the opportunity.

OF COURSE!
When another wins, it's luck—just blundering luck that brings him gains; but when we win it's pluck—with intelligent effect and lots of brains.

WHAT ABOUT BOLSHEVIKI!
"Ivan Ivanovitch" (corresponding to "John Johnson") is the nickname for the Russians.

It's better to tell the truth and run, than to lie and get caught in the act.

YOU CAN'T BEST AN EDITOR.
The young man rolled his eyes as he entered the editorial sanctum.
"Here is a poem you may publish in your paper. I dashed it off in an idle moment, and you will perhaps find it a little rough. You can make any corrections you please."
"Thank you!" said the editor. "I will give you a check for it at once."
"You are very kind. I shall be delighted."
The editor handed him a check.
"Many thanks!" said the poet. "I will bring you some more poems."
He had reached the door, when suddenly he turned.
"Excuse me, but you've forgotten to fill up this cheque!"
"Oh, that's all right," said the editor. "I have given you a cheque in its rough state, as it were. You can make any corrections you please."

GOLDSMITH'S FAVOURITE DISH.
Oliver Goldsmith's favourite dish was veal pie. He contended that with veal pie and whisky in every man's house, a rebellion was impossible.

CHIMNEYS THAT SWAY.—A chimney 115ft. high will sway without danger, as much as 10in. in a strong wind.

WE'VE NOTICED THAT, TOO.
Many a man pays two bits for a drink and tips the waiter, but never gives a newboy a nickel and says "Keep the change."—Col. Wm. C. Hunter.

WHAT HE REMEMBERED.
A beautifully-gowned woman swept through the well-carpeted corridor of the new Willard at Washington. Beside the door of the restaurant was a crossed and shimmering gentleman. Said the lady:

"I would prefer that small table by the window."
The crossed one escorted her to the table of her choice, whisked off the chair with a fine hankiechief, brushed away an invisible crumb. He was about to leave—
"Wait!" commanded the queen as she forgot the breakfast card.
"What would you recommend?"
"A fine melon."
"Accquiescence from the beautiful one."
"And some finnan haddie."
"Yes."
"And, perhaps, some creamed potatoes."
"Very good."
"And I would also recommend, madam, that you now secure the services of a waiter."
With that, Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, bowed gracefully and went back to the door.

The burglar was seen and looped and volplaned, and then climbed and climbed till almost beyond the gaze of the spectators.
Then a gasp broke from the crowd. It was falling! Down, down it came, over and over, twisting and swerving, until it appeared about to strike the earth. Then it suddenly righted, and flew away.
"Ha, ha!" laughed the aviator. "Ninety per cent. of those people thought we were going to crash."
"Well," said his passenger faintly, "fifty per cent. of the crew thought the same!"
No man ever went on a hunting or fishing trip without making an explanation afterward.

TOO STEEP, LADDIE.
"You love my daughter?" said the old man. "Love her!" he exclaimed, passionately. "Why, I could die for her. For one soft glance from those sweet eyes I would hurl myself from yonder cliff and perish—a bruised mass upon the rocks two hundred feet below." The old man shook his head. "I'm something of a liar myself," he said, "and one is enough for a small family like mine."

"KICKED THE BUCKET"
This is a phrase which originated through the attempt of a man named Bolsover, who tried to commit suicide by hanging himself. He stood on a bucket, and fastened a rope to a beam above his head and about his neck. He kicked the bucket, but was discovered in time to save his life.
"I thought I kicked the bucket," he said, when he recovered consciousness. Hence the phrase.

HED HAVE HIS REVENGE.
"Look here, neighbour. That dog of yours comes in here every day and digs up my flower-beds, and I want you to put a stop to it."
"Suppose I don't! What then?"
"I'll plant so many flowers that your rotten old dog will wear himself to a skeleton trying to keep them dug up."

Well, fare thee well, Sirs, until the morrow dawn.—The Cub Editor.

The Prince of Wales.

Racey, the clever cartoonist of the "Montreal Star" expressed a happy symbolism when he recently portrayed Canada as a smiling mad disclosing the treasures of our Dominion to our visiting Prince.
Youth will be served, and youth has a spontaneous companionship with youth that is denied to those of maturer years. The youth of Canada has been to the wars, young maidens as well as young men, and the Prince was there too. In this fact lies a bond that ensures the Prince a royal progress throughout Canada, such as the Dominion has never seen before.

The Prince of Wales comes to us smiling and debonair, speaking both the tongues of our country, at the victorious conclusion of a bitter war in which Canada did what her people conceived to be their duty, and from which the Canadian people has emerged a nation acknowledged as valourous and as one of the League of Nations.

Surely the signs are propitious that bring this young Prince at this time to a people that has been stirred to its depths by the wounds it has suffered in a war in which it voluntarily assumed unprecedented responsibilities and burdens, and which, without boasting, it knows it materially assisted to win.

The ideal for which our young men died is symbolized in the Prince of Wales, as he also symbolizes for the bereaved parents of Canada the youth they mourn, and all this, the consummation of five years of tense national living, when added to the undigested and boyish pleasure shown by the Prince of the lively reception given him progress; is part of that amazing community of interest and ideal, that intangible, sometimes seemingly incongruous and contradictory spirit that binds together the commonwealth of the British people.—Canadian Mining Journal.
