10 Years of Peace Celebration

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 3.—(C.P.)

A hundred and ten years of peace, it seems a long time for the people of two nations, descended from warlike stocks, to live alongside of each other in peace and concord, with three hundred miles of border line, undefended by a fort, gun or soldier, especially when it is recalled that people of the same flesh and blood in part have been fighting a considerable portion of that 110 years.

It started by the declaration of United States against Great Britain June 18th, 1812, when Great Britain was fighting the mighty Napoleon was at the zenith of his power. The avowed object was the capture of Canada so that Canada became the battle centre of the conflict. Upper Canada had then a population of about three hundred thousand; Lower Canada about four hundred thousand. Upper Canada, as an exposed border line of states bore the brunt of the war. United States had a population of eight million. Congress rescinded Peace Treaty, February 18th, 1815. There were a few battles after this owing to slow methods of communication then available. At the end of the war there was no change in possession of the territory. Canada handed back to United States Fort Niagara, which was the only United States territory in possession of the British.

Belleville, the historic city of the picturesque Bay of Quinte, received the happy idea of celebrating 110 years of peace between Canada and the United States. The week of the 9th of next August inclusive was selected because the week in August is holiday time, Monday, the 3rd of August, is a holiday practically all over the province which will enable people from Ontario, Old Upper Canada, to participate in the celebration. The International Yacht Races, in which over 50 yachts from Buffalo, Rochester, Watertown, Oswego, Toronto, Hamilton, and other ports, will participate, will be held at Belleville the same week. The Governor of New York State and Governors, Senators and other prominent persons from the neighboring Republic are expected to be present at the celebration. The League of Nations might make use of this to inculcate a peace lesson among European nations and the citizens of Belleville are entitled to credit for focusing attention of this wonderful exhibition of peace displayed by and good feeling among the people of these countries.
