SPORTS OF THE SEASON

Saturday's Hunt. The Toronto hunt club met at Weod bine park Saturday afternoon. There was a large gathering of ladies and gentlemen in carriages to see the hunters and hunt-resses start, which the latter did to the number of over fifty. The hounds were taken down the Victoria park side line break for Patterson's woods, through which they passed to Smith's farm and thence along the lake shore as far as Dickinson's, where there was a check. The master (Dr. Smith) then led the way and cast off again on the west side of the Kingston road. After this the chase was hot, and over railway track and past bridge the hounds went, paying on the way their respects to the old Newmarket course, until they reached the Dutch farm, where they killed. Among those up first were Dr. Smith on Isaac, Mrs. James Carruthers on Lansdowne; M. A. Thomas en Liberty; A. Loudon on Michael Stro-goff and R. Bond on Siberia, half brother

C. Ross, the Scotch athlete, had some hot words at Harry Maynard's sporting house at an early hour this morning. All had been drinking, and Ross remarked on separating: "Mitchell, I could whip you if I had you in a room." Mitchell replied: "Well, you have me here now." Ross threw off his coat and made a feint at Mitchell, but was met half way, and struck under the right eye, the blow knocking Ross clear across the room and atunning him. Friends then interfered and separated the combatants, Ross being badly punished. Subsequently all parties drank wine together.

The Receiver of the Stelen Property and the Thieves Traced—The Fence Under Arrest. BUFFALO, May 2. -A.J. Raymor, a proinent newsdealer, was arrested to-day at his store at 2 o'clock with a search warrant, and found in his safe and at his hous about $6000 worth of stolen property.

Matthew Sweetnam of Toronto, post office inspector, arrived here, Thursday, to look after the case. Last summer burglars entered tory: The challenge to speakers of the National Liberal Temperance union, signed between $1200 and $1400 worth of National Liberal Temperance union, signed by W. H. Howland, James Thomson, A. Farley, Geo. Ward, I. Wardell and James B. Marshell, contains statements which as they are calculated to mislead the public, as to the aims and basis of the union's work against intemperance in the use of iliquor and legislation require a few brief references. It is to be feared that the signatories, most of whom have never attended a meeting of the union, exhibit in their allegations the same tendency to accept testimony without due inquiry and consideration which has led them to acsume unwarranted positions on the liquor question.

It is not true that discussion has been invited at the meetings of the union, which hitherto have been chiefly intended for organization and to set forth to the public the various grounds of action upon which the members of the union propose to deal with the great question of intemperance. It is not true that the union or its speakers are opposed to total abstinence where the goods had been disposed of the was looking for was in Buffalo. Detectives Winn and Young of the Ontario frontier force, with headquarters at Niagara Falls, Ont., last evening followed Donohue back to Fort Erfe, and at 9.30 o'clock Mr. Sweetnam received a despatch imparting the important information that they had him safe in jail. Donohue is supposed to have been the "broker" who dealt with Raynor, and arranged all the fences for the gang with which he was connected. Mr. Sweetnam says he will let Donohue remain in jail for a few days and will then see that he gets his just dues.

The police when they raided Raynor's store and house were accompanied by Inspector Sweetnam and Mr. Trotter of Galt, and young Mr. Goldstein, now of Toronto, but at the time of the robbery at the main house in Quebec.

In one of the drawers were found all that remained of the Canadian postage that remained of the Canadian postage stamps, and they were eagerly grasped by Inspector Sweetnam. It was found that there was but $211 worth left out of the $1400 stolen from the Peterboro office.

Mr. Goldstein opened the showcases and began to pull out his meerchaum goods. "These are my pipes," he said, as he hauled them out, "they are in the very same cases in which I bought them, and the ferules are the same." At the left of the entrance there were tiers of drawers, the contents of which the detecliues wished to investigate. Mr. Raynor remonstrased at this, and claimed that he had not the key with him. It was no use to protest, though, for the officers soon had had not the key with him. It was no use to protest, though, for the officers soon had a chisel, and monkey wrench, and open they came. Two cigar boxes of jewelry came out and with it another bag of watches. The detectives then turned their attention to Mr. Raynor's person, and soon found something more than they were looking after—a part of the missing diamonds. They took half a dozen valuable stones, but as they were out of the settings they could not be identified by the owners as readily as the jewelry and watches had been.

Considering the hasty, slight preparation which those who took part in the literary exercises had, the entertainment was a marvellous success.

Miss Bella Brown's recitations were given in her usual happy style and drew forth many manifestations of applause. The papers read by the members were practical and to the point and most of the members went away with the satisfaction that they had gained valuable information and spent a pleasant time.
