GRACE CULTURE, or thoughts on grace, growth and glory, by Ezra M. Hunt, M. D. 12 mo., pp. 320. Presbyterian Board of Publication.

An admirable treatise on the important subject of "Growth in grace." Its completeness may be seen from the following summary of its contents, "Introductory remarks—grace," "Growth in grace," "Direct reasons why Christians should grow in grace," "Pre-requisites to growth in grace," "Means of growth in grace," "Evidences of growth in grace," "Results of growth in grace." More than half the volume is occupied with the subject of the "means of growth" under which the following important subjects are treated in their bearing upon Christian progress, viz, prayer, reading of Scriptures, observance of the Sabbath, public and social exercises of religion, the Sacraments, Systematic benevolence, Study of Christ, Study of the lives of good men, Self-examination, fasting, personal effort for the good of others, &c. The work has our cordial commendation.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE BIBLE, in improving the understanding and moral character, by John Matthews, D. D., professor of Theology in the Theological Seminary and New Albany, Indiana.—12mo., pp 215. Same publishers.

The author of this work is already known by a work from his pen published by the Board, entitled "Letters on the divine purpose" containing a plain but forcible statement and defence of the divine decrees.—The nature of the present work appears from its title. It exhibits clear thinking, and is fitted to exalt our views of the importance of the Bible to the attainment of intellectual or moral greatness.

THOUGHTS ON SABBATH SCHOOLS, by J. S. Hart L. L. D. 12 mo., pp 215. Same Publishers.

This work treats of the whole subject of Sabbath Schools and contains many valuable suggestions for promoting the efficiency and success of this important part of the church's operations. Pastors, Sabbath school teachers and parents will find here all the questions that arise regarding the practical management of these institutions, treated very ably by one thoroughly acquainted with the subject.

THE GOOD STEWARD, or Systematic Benevolence, an essential element of Christianity, by Rev. D. Junken D. D. 12 mo., pp 120. Same publishers.

The religious relations of property is a subject to which the attention of the church in the present day is being directed with unusual earnestness, and yet not by any means to an extent beyond its importance. We gladly welcome this small treatise in which the subject is discussed in a comprehensive manner with much force of argument and upon a thoroughly scriptural basis.

JUDAS THE MACCABEE, and the Asmonean Princes, by Rev. W. M. Blackburn, author of the exiles of Madeira. 18 mo. pp. 280. Same publishers.

The period of Jewish history from the return from Babylon till the birth of our Saviour is one with which the majority both of young and old in our churches are but slightly acquainted, and yet it was one marked by stirring events, and distinguished characters, and in many aspects highly important in the history of the world. We therefore welcome this little volume which gives a plain and interesting history of those times. No congregational or Sabbath school library should be without it.

HOMES OF THE WEST, and how they were made happy. By the author of "Johnny Wright" &c. 18 mo. Same publishers.

A graphic account of life in the early settlement of Ohio—showing also the toils of the faithful missionary in the backwoods, and the progress of a community in such circumstances in the observance of religious ordinances, and its growth in true piety.

JOHNNY MCKAY, or the sovereign. 18 mo. pp. 216. Same publishers.

NORAH AND HER KERRY COW, or the Bible the best guide. 18 mo. pp. 144. Same publishers.

These two little works afford interesting glimpses of life among the Irish peasantry, particularly during the time of the famine, and also of the progress of Protestant truth among them.
