"I'll Never Sweep Another Crossing."

A POOR man was one day sweeping a crossing on one of the streets of Dublin. A lawyer, came up and said, "Is your name so-and-so?" "Yes."
 "Had you a friend called S—, who lived in T—, in America?"
 "Yes." "Well, I have come out to find you, and to tell you that this friend of yours has died, and left you ten thousand pounds, which you can get at once!"

The poor man was greatly astonished. He could scarcely believe it true, it was so good. He asked some questions. At length he came to see it was really true. He was worth ten thousand pounds. He lifted up his broom, flung it as far away along the street as he could, and said, "I'll never sweep another crossing."

Thus it is with the sinner. When he gets a full pardon of all his sins, he cares little about theatres, and dances, and songs. He has got something better; and he flings away the broom.

O unconverted reader! God offers to you at this moment, without money or price, the pardon of all your sins, a new heart, victory over your besetting sins, with joys and pleasures unspeakable and full of glory. "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely," Rev. xxii, 17. O don't refuse the precious gift God offers you. Don't think this too easy a way to be saved. It is easy for you, but it was not easy for Christ. He redeemed us with a great price, even with his precious blood.
