An Example for Young People

IVEN a good brain and a clean heart, there is nothing to prevent any young person winning success in social and commercial by like in the prevent and the village newspaper office. He won promotion to the limit of $14 per week as a typesetter, when he decided to qualify for something better. He spent eight months in our School and became a capable stenographer and also acquired a good knowledge of accounts. In less than six months he secured an appointment in the First National Bank, New York City, solely on his merits. He now receives a splendid salary as Private Sec-retary to the manager of this Bank, does a lot of church work besides, and enjoys greater pleasure and prosperity in life than if he had never seen
