

good practice and a good precedent. But what we see here in this memo is a call to review that practice, to curtail that kind of funding. At the same time, if you go back a page in the report to Section 5 on page 21, you find that the Government is talking about beefing up the legal services of the federal Government of Canada to fight these very same Indians or aboriginal people in court, while cutting back on their funding and legal services.

In the one or two minutes that I have left, let me refer you as well to the whole question of jobs, Mr. Speaker. On page 29, instead of talking about putting more money in the hands of Indian people for self-government, self-direction, self-control and self-reliance, the Government is talking about referring more and more to job creation in the private sector. I have eight reserves in my riding. The private sector provides but a pittance of employment to the Indian people on those eight reserves. What they need is more federal funding in their own hands where they can control it with true and just economic democracy.

What about health care, Mr. Speaker? On page 39 the Government is talking about closing hospitals and about deterrence to health care. In my province we had a Liberal Government under Ross Thatcher defeated, because it brought in deterrence fees to health care prior to 1971. Is this the kind of system that the Conservative Government across the way is talking about? I hope not, Mr. Speaker. I invite my friend on the government back-benches to rise as one and speak out against this uncaring and insensitive Government led by the Member for the Yukon, the Deputy Prime Minister of Canada.
