

academic library world today, while ignoring no aspect of librarianship, are devoting themselves to a careful study of what future policies and activities may best be developed for maintaining the library as a leading means of advancing and diffusing knowledge.