

ANNEXATION OF TADMORDEN REFERRED BACK BY COUNCIL

Question Will Be Considered Again When More Arguments Can Be Heard—Report Ordered on Redistribution of Wards—Transportation Commission Next.

The policy of the council to go into the highways and byways of the Township and force the people to vote in the referendum, was decided when the annexation of Tadmorden district was being considered by the council yesterday. "All proceedings are irregular. I have over the property. (Laughter.) We have a lot of dummies under the thumb of the mayor?" "You do not support the annexation of Tadmorden?" Ald. Robbins interjected.

"I was absent from the council when the vote was taken," Controller Church declared. "Did you not support the annexation of Tadmorden?" Ald. May asked. "I rule you out of order," Ald. Robbins said. "You can't force the people in," Mayor Hooker declared. "They must petition to come in. Our northern boundary on the west side is now 1.4 miles higher up than our boundary on the east side, and the proposed annexation on the east side would make the boundary within a half mile of as far north as on the west side."

"All the territory west of the Don within the boundary of the annex is well and easily developed," Mayor Hooker explained. "Some of it is thickly built with fine homes. All of it has been made more valuable by being so close to the city, and the people are getting the benefit of the annexation of the city without contributing to the taxes. That territory should have come in long ago."

"The whole scheme emanates from the owner of Donlands, who wants to make a millionaire," said Controller Church.

"W. W. Ballantyne, representing Robert Davies, declared that all the property in the township is well developed and that the only broken land was at the Don ravines, and that the bulk of the area is tableland."

"Whacking Donlands," Controller Church and Foster like to make a whack at Donlands," said Ald. May. "They well know, too, that Donlands is a 1-2 miles from the city's side. We must have more land for building homes, and to get it we must square up the city's boundaries at the same time. To do that"

"We must take in eastern territory," "There's more slums in Ward one than in any other section of the city," Ald. McBride permitted himself to state. He makes a long and tiresome harangue against annexation. "It is those men who started a home on a shack and have now brick homes who want the Tadmorden district annexed," said Ald. Robbins. "Ald. McBride should clean up his own ward before he says anything about the ward of another."

"Our sewers are available to take care of the sewage of Tadmorden district, and if we annex that territory we will better sanitary conditions there," said Ald. Walton.

"There are in the Tadmorden district many streets that are no wider than lanes, and the property owners are looking to this city to help them to widen them," said Ald. Hubbard. "If for no other reason, we should approve the annexation. Besides, the land is the sort that is most serviceable for workingmen's homes."

"About 9000 people lives in the area recommended for annexation," said Controller McCarthy. "and the annexing city is spending several millions to double the value of the property in the Tadmorden district, and for that reason we should not as to levy on the property a share of the expenditure. The opposition comes from the large property holders."

By a vote of 16 to 8 the recommendation to annex Tadmorden district was referred back for further consideration. The three were Mayor Hooker, Controller McCarthy and Ald. Hubbard. The 16 were Controller Church and Foster and Ald. Westcott, McBride, May, Wainless, Rawlinson, Robbins, Burgess, Walton, Rink, Wick, et al., Meredith, Ryding, Rowland.

The recommendation to extend Earl street to Jarvis street was struck out of the agenda. The 16 were Controller Church and Foster and Ald. Westcott, McBride, May, Wainless, Rawlinson, Robbins, Burgess, Walton, Rink, Wick, et al., Meredith, Ryding, Rowland.

Ald. Robbins requested that a special committee be appointed to study the boundaries of the wards and report to council, was granted without discussion.

Commissioner Forman informed council that two pieces of land on Morse street and Logan avenue, which he had sold at $32 a front foot last May, and which the council would not accept, had since been offered by tender, and the best price to be got was $22.50. "I will take the property myself now at $32 a front foot," Ald. Walton declared, to prove that the value has not declined since May.

City Architect. Towards the end of the meeting, and while Mr. Hooker was in the act of declaring the report of the board of control adopted, Ald. Wickert moved in amendment that the recommendation of the board of a commission to study the city architect be not referred back. Supporters of Mr. Price promptly set up a yell that the mayor had declared the report adopted. The mayor ruled to the contrary, but the yell continued. Ald. Wickert withdrew his amendment.

"This is the first time in my four years in the council that any member has been denied the right to move an amendment to the report, and I hope it will not be a precedent," Controller McCarthy declared.

"We don't want any wet nurse looking after Ald. Wickert," Ald. McBride said to Controller McCarthy.

Ald. Wickert gave notice that he would move for a bylaw to cover the organization of a commission to take charge of the civic transportation interests.

The "Passing Show of 1912," from the New York Winter Garden, which achieved so much fame and distinction and was the talk of the town, as being the greatest and biggest of musical comedies when it was seen here last winter, will play a return engagement at the Alexandra Theatre, at the week beginning with a special holiday matinee next Monday. It will be observed that in order to accommodate everyone for this farewell visit, four matinees will be given, one each on Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Among some of its many striking novelties is a bridge built out over the heads of the audience, along which great files of chorists parade. Another novelty is a diving pool in the bareness of which shows sixteen young women plunging into a tank of perfumed water.

The same excellent company, which last winter, Frigate, Frigate, and Howard, Charles, Fance, Mantilla, and Lloyd, Clarence, Harvey, Gertrude, Taylor, Moon, and Morris, Louise Brunette, of everyone, the entire eighty pretty chorus girls, each one of them returned for this engagement.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

self now at $32 a front foot," Ald. Walton declared, to prove that the value has not declined since May.

City Architect. Towards the end of the meeting, and while Mr. Hooker was in the act of declaring the report of the board of control adopted, Ald. Wickert moved in amendment that the recommendation of the board of a commission to study the city architect be not referred back.

Supporters of Mr. Price promptly set up a yell that the mayor had declared the report adopted. The mayor ruled to the contrary, but the yell continued. Ald. Wickert withdrew his amendment.

"This is the first time in my four years in the council that any member has been denied the right to move an amendment to the report, and I hope it will not be a precedent," Controller McCarthy declared.

"We don't want any wet nurse looking after Ald. Wickert," Ald. McBride said to Controller McCarthy.

Ald. Wickert gave notice that he would move for a bylaw to cover the organization of a commission to take charge of the civic transportation interests.

The "Passing Show of 1912," from the New York Winter Garden, which achieved so much fame and distinction and was the talk of the town, as being the greatest and biggest of musical comedies when it was seen here last winter, will play a return engagement at the Alexandra Theatre, at the week beginning with a special holiday matinee next Monday. It will be observed that in order to accommodate everyone for this farewell visit, four matinees will be given, one each on Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Among some of its many striking novelties is a bridge built out over the heads of the audience, along which great files of chorists parade. Another novelty is a diving pool in the bareness of which shows sixteen young women plunging into a tank of perfumed water.

The same excellent company, which last winter, Frigate, Frigate, and Howard, Charles, Fance, Mantilla, and Lloyd, Clarence, Harvey, Gertrude, Taylor, Moon, and Morris, Louise Brunette, of everyone, the entire eighty pretty chorus girls, each one of them returned for this engagement.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Theatres and Concerts

Oh! Oh! Delphine. Seats will be placed on sale this morning for the engagement of "Oh! Oh! Delphine," which will be seen at the Princess Theatre all next week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. The piece will be presented intact by the original company that helped make it the biggest hit of last season on Broadway. The only change in cast noticeable is that the original parrot figuring in this story has retired permanently from the stage, and its understudy is now playing the part. The presence of the original company in this city is in keeping with Klaw and Erlanger's fixed policy to confine their musical productions to original organizations hereafter.

Passing Show of 1912. The "Passing Show of 1912," from the New York Winter Garden, which achieved so much fame and distinction and was the talk of the town, as being the greatest and biggest of musical comedies when it was seen here last winter, will play a return engagement at the Alexandra Theatre, at the week beginning with a special holiday matinee next Monday. It will be observed that in order to accommodate everyone for this farewell visit, four matinees will be given, one each on Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Among some of its many striking novelties is a bridge built out over the heads of the audience, along which great files of chorists parade. Another novelty is a diving pool in the bareness of which shows sixteen young women plunging into a tank of perfumed water.

The same excellent company, which last winter, Frigate, Frigate, and Howard, Charles, Fance, Mantilla, and Lloyd, Clarence, Harvey, Gertrude, Taylor, Moon, and Morris, Louise Brunette, of everyone, the entire eighty pretty chorus girls, each one of them returned for this engagement.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Oh! Oh! Delphine. Seats will be placed on sale this morning for the engagement of "Oh! Oh! Delphine," which will be seen at the Princess Theatre all next week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. The piece will be presented intact by the original company that helped make it the biggest hit of last season on Broadway. The only change in cast noticeable is that the original parrot figuring in this story has retired permanently from the stage, and its understudy is now playing the part. The presence of the original company in this city is in keeping with Klaw and Erlanger's fixed policy to confine their musical productions to original organizations hereafter.

Passing Show of 1912. The "Passing Show of 1912," from the New York Winter Garden, which achieved so much fame and distinction and was the talk of the town, as being the greatest and biggest of musical comedies when it was seen here last winter, will play a return engagement at the Alexandra Theatre, at the week beginning with a special holiday matinee next Monday. It will be observed that in order to accommodate everyone for this farewell visit, four matinees will be given, one each on Monday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Among some of its many striking novelties is a bridge built out over the heads of the audience, along which great files of chorists parade. Another novelty is a diving pool in the bareness of which shows sixteen young women plunging into a tank of perfumed water.

The same excellent company, which last winter, Frigate, Frigate, and Howard, Charles, Fance, Mantilla, and Lloyd, Clarence, Harvey, Gertrude, Taylor, Moon, and Morris, Louise Brunette, of everyone, the entire eighty pretty chorus girls, each one of them returned for this engagement.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Thurston the Magician. Magic on the stage nowadays is no such simple thing as it was in the early days. Audiences can no longer be deceived by the simple tricks of the disappearing glass balls, restless handkerchiefs and hats full of paper flowers. Nowadays up-to-date magicians have a much more strenuous task.

Thurston, who is the attraction at the Grand, next week, commencing with a special matinee Monday (Thanksgiving Day), doesn't limit himself to juggling ducks and eggs. He juggles men, women, automobiles, lions and pretty girls. He deftly passes the latter into the arms of his assistants.

Thurston's present program is more varied and interesting than ever. It is full of deft touches of humor. It is staged dramatically. The breathless condition among the spectators is worked up by clever preliminaries and impressive staging. The surprises are timely and the illustrations are paralyzing. The most prominent among the many new mysteries are "Balaam and the Ass," "The Day After Tomorrow," "The Shadow of the Bungalow," and "The Siamese Cabinet."

Mr. Thurston has imported the most modern and latest in the line of comic acrobats for an added attraction.

Gus Edwards and His Song Revue at Shea's. Next week at Shea's Theatre the bill is headed by Gus Edwards, the popular singer, with his song revue of 1913. Mr. Edwards is assisted by Lillian Boardman and thirty youthful singers, presenting the musical extravaganza "The Fountain of Youth in St. Spout." The offering was written and staged by Mr. Edwards and the lines are by Will.

Other feature acts included in next week's bill are whiff and Phelps, Fisher and Green, the Kins, Sprague and McNeese, and the Kins.

Passenger Traffic

Passenger Traffic

WHITE STAR DOMINION LARGEST STEAMERS FROM CANADA

SUMMER SERVICE

FROM MONTREAL AND QUEBEC
*From winter ports, viz., Portland, Me., and Halifax, N.S.

AMERICAN LINE
Plymouth, Cherbourg, Southampton
New York, London Direct

ATLANTIC TRANSPORT
Min'aska Oct. 18 Min'apolis Nov. 1
Min'tonka Oct. 25 Min'naha Nov. 8

WHITE STAR LINE
New York, Queenstown, Liverpool
Cedric Oct. 23 Cymric Nov. 8
Baltic Oct. 30 Celtic Nov. 13

*Carries only one class Cabin (2nd)
and third class passengers.

RED STAR LINE
London, Paris, via Dover-Antwerp.

WHITE STAR LINE
Cruises, Boston, Mediterranean, Italy
Canopic Oct. 25 Nov. 27
Canopic Nov. 1 Nov. 27

WHITE STAR LINE
Boston-Queenstown-Liverpool
ONE CLASS CABIN (1st) SERVICE
$12.50 and upward, according to steamer.

ARABIC Oct. 31 Nov. 18, Dec. 15

Apply to agents, or H. G. THORLEY