

- CHAPTER XXVIII.—Jeremiah Forrester is hopefully converted, and unites with the church.
- CHAPTER XXIX.—Samuel sends them a journeyman.
- CHAPTER XXX.—Sabra visits the home of her childhood.
- CHAPTER XXXI.—Samuel and his wife visit O.—He is dissatisfied with the prospects of business, and advises Theodore to go back to Massachusetts.
- CHAPTER XXXII.—Sister Burdensome and sister Precise call upon Sabra upon special business.
- CHAPTER XXXIII.—Mr. Smythers is removed, and Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson return to Massachusetts.
- CHAPTER XXXIV.—Samuel visits them—takes his money and carries it away.
- CHAPTER XXXV.—Theodore's death and burial.
- CHAPTER XXXVI.—The death of Mr. Hudson.
- CHAPTER XXXVII.—Sabra visits her friends in the West.
- CHAPTER XXXVIII.—Sabra's second marriage.
- CHAPTER XXXIX.—The death of Mr. Judson.
- CHAPTER XL.—Sabra commences teaching.
- CHAPTER XLI.—Mrs. Hudson's death, and Samuel's visit to Canada.
- CHAPTER XLII.—Sabra again in the home of her childhood—takes Ordella to her uncle's, expecting to leave her—returns and finds their property gone.
- CHAPTER XLIII.—Samuel hears of their misfortune and writes Herbert a letter—the death of Eveline.
- CHAPTER XLIV.—Mrs. C—kindly offers Ordella a home in their family, where she can have the privilege of acquiring an education—Sabra teaches school—finishes her manuscript, and succeeds in getting it printed.
- CHAPTER XLV.—Sabra's letter to her daughter.
- CHAPTER XLVI.—Jason sends to Sabra for one of her books—his opinion of it—he visits her—his death.
- CHAPTER XLVII.—Ordella returns from school—acquires a first-class certificate—commences teaching, and is successful—her plans for future usefulness—her death.