

CENTRAL ALBERTA

differs, in many important respects, from other portions of the Canadian West, and presents features and opportunities not generally understood by people imperfectly familiar with the country.

A handsomely illustrated pamphlet entitled "Central Alberta," issued from the office of the Central Alberta Development League at Edmonton, affords a new viewpoint in regard to agriculture in the West, and makes very interesting reading. The Secretary of the League will be glad to send this pamphlet, free of cost, to any one enquiring for it and mentioning Heaton's Annual.

See especially pages 24, 38, 45 in this booklet, and outside back cover.