

visit is to be considered pastoral unless a word has been spoken for God." In prosecuting his clerical duties, he has been enabled by Divine help to travel 2833 miles in the year, which has involved much fatigue both to man and horse.

During the last three years, Milton and Rustico have contributed to the Diocesan Society's funds £77 12s. 11d., being £25 8s. 3d. more than any Parish out of Charlottetown has given to that object during the same period. If all our people would awake to their Christian responsibility as stewards to whom God has entrusted talents to be employed by him, much more might be done for the cause.

The new Free Churches at Charlottetown and Alberton are progressing towards completion, and they will probably be ready for consecration at the Bishop's triennial visit in the summer. Thus two additional tents will be spread, in which, under God's blessing, we hope large and earnest congregations will be fed and strengthened with the scriptural teaching of our reformed and Apostolic Church; and he humbly prays, to use the words in our report of 1867, that "each may prove a birthplace of many a soul to God."

ST. ELEANOR'S.

THE Rector of St. Eleanor's and Summerside, in reporting to the Diocesan Church Society, begs to state that the usual routine of work has been carried on throughout the year. There have been three full services on Sundays; the Holy Communion has been administered fortnightly upon Sundays, and occasionally upon week days; Sunday-schools have been in operation at St. Eleanor's and Summerside, at Richmond and at Wilmot Creek; and the greater part of
