CHIEF RABBI INTERVIEWED

ound Religious Tolerance Combined With Steadfast Clinging to Faith in Which Soldiers Were Bora

London, July 13.—On his return to London tonight after a fortnight's visit to the fighting line in France, Chief Rabbi Hertz, of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Empire, said, in an interview with a correspondent, that the spirit of the British and French soldiers was superbly heroic. Among all the troops, he said, unflinching courage prevailed, inspired by the conviction that the Allies in the end would utterly crush their German, Austrian and Turkish adversaries.

The Chief Rabbi saw the soldiers in camp from Tynes in the northern battle area to Verdun, in the south, and everywhere found the same unflinching spirit and belief that the Allies will prevail.

The Rabbi's trip, which was made in a motor car with the Rev. Michael Hertz, among the English Jewish soldiers in the whole field, was for the purpose of seeing how the soldiers fared. His visit convinced him, he told the correspondent, that the entire body of soldiers, English Jews and all, were amazingly adapting themselves to the terrible methods of warfare, and were buoyed up by the highest inspiration.

In the course of his journey, Rabbi Hertz met Field Marshal French and generals under him, but of what he learned from them of the intimate secrets of the war, he said, he was naturally not privileged to talk.

The Rabbi said he came away from the battlefield with all his heart-sickening laughter, with a solemn sense of the awful consequence of the war upon the whole world.

Being asked what was the deepest impression he brought back with him he answered that the ultimate effect of the war was a thing all humanity must seriously regard, adding:

Old Legend Fulfilled.

"No war, least of all a world-war can leave the nations as it found them. There is an old Jewish legend of a second deluge—a deluge of fire that would sweep over the earth. In anticipation of it, the children of men were told to write the story of man on tablets of clay, as these tablets would not only escape destruction, but would be turned into hard stone. Today we are witnesses of such a deluge of fire as was dreamed of by the ancients, and far-reaching will be its spiritual effects for all mankind."

"During the last year we have seen the laws of God and man accounted as mere clay, breakable and effaceable at will. However, the triumph of Great Britain and her Allies in this world conflict will convert the hebes of right and humanity into regulative principles for all international dealings."

The Chief Rabbi went on to say that international agreements entered into by Germany were thrown to the winds by the German war lords as though brittle clay. After the war, he said, there would be a judgment day for the nation, adding:

"After this a solemnly made treaty will be regarded as a treaty, and the scourge of hypocrisy among nations, as manifested in Germany's attitude, will be wiped away."

In his trip to the trenches, the Rabbi said, he found that all the soldiers were of profoundly religious sympathy and that a feeling of sincere regard for the creed preferences of each prevailed.

"While I found men of various faiths, the Episcopal, Catholic or Jewish, indulgent for each other," said the Rabbi, "it was quite apparent that those brought up in a particular creed clung even more steadfastly than ever to their own church denomination. This, quite naturally, was to my mind an eloquent tribute to their religious bringing up."

"As to the scenes of the war, I cannot bring myself to talk. I witnessed terrible things, showing the terror of the conflict, but, standing out through it all, is the supreme heroism and sublime religious spirit of the soldiers in the trench that must make the Allied army on to triumphant victory in the end."

BROTHERS MEET FOR FIRST TIME IN THIRTY THREE YEARS

Arlington, July 13.—There was a happy reunion at the home of John C. Waage last week. Mr. Waage and his brother, Capt. Christian Waage of the Norwegian steamer Corona, meeting for the first time in thirty-three years. Although the two brothers had been in communication during these years the nearest they had been to each other was a few years ago when John was in Glasgow and his brother in Liverpool, Eng.

In early life both followed the sea, and for some time sailed from Norway

CONSTIPATIENTS

Read This—

It must be remembered that the bowels should move freely once a day to ensure perfect health. When such is not the case the poisonous waste material is absorbed into the system, thus producing a self blood poisoning.

The causes of Constipation are many and varied. Among the more common may be mentioned: poor stomach digestion, a deficiency of bile in the intestines, a lack of secretion in the bowels, and a want of the natural muscular contraction of the intestines from above downward.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, sold everywhere at 25c and 60c, stimulates and restores the stomach digestion, increases the flow of bile into the intestines, causes a flow from the intestinal glands, and restores the natural downward action of the intestines, rendering it easy to secure a free action of the bowels, which is one of the most important requisites to health.

Canadian Soldier Tells of Experiences in France—Windmill That Helped Germans to Entrap Our Men

Sergeant William Turley, 18th Battalion, writing June 16 to a friend says:

Today I paid two francs for a clean army shirt. I bought it from a weather-browned washerwoman on the roadside—"thereby hangs a tale."

The peasantry and farmers of Belgium and France whose homes are in that part of the war-scarred lands where in British and Canadian troops operate, have acquired more money during the ten months of the war than they did in the previous ten years.

Every roadside cottage has been converted into a cafe. Coffee and wine, eggs, bread, butter and biscuits by the ton are sold week after week in every one of them, and the frugal folk who dispose of the stomach comforts, do so at good profit to themselves and pleasure to their customers.

Every farm building provides bullet-proof accommodation and billeting British and Canadian troops has proved a most remunerative side line for the industrious farmer folk. They, and the peasantry, may be very glad to have the British bulwark between their homes and the "alien" but their gratitude is not reflected in the charges made for food-stuffs and billeting accommodation. If an officer's horse eats grass in an orchard its feeding is itemized on the bill.

No possible source of income is overlooked by yeoman or cottager, nor by their wives or daughters, sisters or sons, cousins or nephews, great-aunts or grandsons.

Souvenirs are eagerly sought by the same people. The article is not yet in existence which cannot be included in the comprehensive category of that one word.

Shirt a Souvenir.

The shirt I bought today was without doubt included in the list of souvenirs collected by "Madame" washerwoman or one of her clan. It bears the regimental number of a British Tommy, and it gives exceedingly great comfort to an Anglo-Canuck, while it has also been the means of adding two francs to the family banking account. Men, women and children work from daylight till dawn, and their reward is more than worth their labor. They allow nothing to be destroyed or thrown away if it can be saved. I have seen women and children beg with tears in their eyes, for dirty shirts which were being burned because they could not be cleaned.

Boots and socks are never too old or decrepit to be saved from destruction. Only the gods know where the country folk store their booty. The transient Tommy seldom sees it after he has given it up—but it is safe to say that clothing establishments will find little sale for their goods among the male population of northern France and western Belgium for some years to come.

Tall-Tale Mill

Some of the natives were not satisfied to make money by such safe means in the earlier stages of the war. One millet-farmer not far from here (somewhere in France) decided to get rich in a hurry. Just what arrangements he made no one knows, but when British troops passed by the old windmill it slanted towards them as though bestowing a benediction on the passing troops.

Thoughtless Tommies had been known to cheer as the quaint looking edifice leaned towards them. Many of them are known to have written in death agonies within its shadow soon after, and one day an intelligent bombardier of the R. F. A. remarked to his captain: "Funny thing about that old windmill. Every time it leans it sends the Germans open fire on our fellows."

"Stand by the gun crews," the officer cried after looking at the mill. "harder—and the object of suspicion. Ten minutes passed by—and the muzzles of four guns were pointed at the mill. A company of British troops marched past to the left of "Take me Back to London Town" inside half a minute the old mill veered towards them.

Spy No More

Two minutes later German shrapnel began to break over the marching men and five minutes passed by before the sweating bombardier turned gaze from the ruins of the signal mill and remarked to the officer: "We made a bleeding good job of that, sir!"

on the same boat, but John Waage came to America to live, and from that time until his brother's ship docked in Baltimore last week he did not see Christian.

John Waage is a prominent business man of this town, and he learned by telegram that his brother's ship was to dock at Baltimore, and persuaded him to come to Arlington to visit. Captain Waage's ship is taking on a cargo of foodstuffs at Baltimore for Denmark.

It RUNS HAIR TO WASH IT WITH SOAP

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary multifid coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), it's cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonsful will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rises out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get multifid coconut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.
