

SPEAKS OF GREAT WOMEN OF BIBLE

Rev. Dr. J. A. Morison Points to Salome as Example

In Evening Sermon Deals With Socrates and Teaching Compared With Saviour's

Rev. Dr. J. A. Morison preached yesterday morning in St. Matthew's Church the first of a series of sermons on the great women of the Bible, taking Salome, the mother of St. John and St. James as his subject.

After picturing her home at Bethsaida and describing her home life, he held her up as a worthy example of devotion on the part of a mother to the well being and advancement of her sons. Hers was a laudable ambition, in this, that it concerned itself primarily in their welfare. If she sought places of honor, she was prompted to this by her utter devotion to her own sons.

HOME DUTIES

Her life manifested what a woman of humble station would accomplish for the cause of humanity by attention to domestic privileges and duties. She was the wife of a fisherman and her sons were fishermen, yet under her lofty idealism they became among the greatest of the Apostles, and to this day, whenever a spiritual head was selected from the College of Cardinals he was invested with a fisherman's ring as the divine symbol of his office.

Dr. Morison urged the importance of woman's place in the spiritual nurture of the young and highly commended to all good mothers the shorter catechism of the Presbyterian church as one of the very best compends of religious truth that had ever been given to the world. He indicated the great value of teaching the young the catechism, with its scriptural basis. He thanked the mothers of St. Matthew's for their cooperation in this respect, saying that during the last three months a good number of boys and girls of the church had learned 18 questions and answers of the shorter catechism.

IN SUNDAY SCHOOL

He spoke of the devotion of the men and women who teach in the Sunday schools, and added that the children in after years told for the most part forget all the lovely stories the teachers told them, but that the catechism would stick in the memory and always be a power in the individual, directing the steps in the way of morality and religion.

SPEAKS ON SACRATES

In the evening Dr. Morison preached on "Socrates" in describing the age in which Socrates lived and taught he said in part:

"In the case of Greece, art was in the bloom of decay, great material prosperity, misguided and unrestrained, occasioned the gradual disappearance from the social structure of the old religious faith. The popular leaders in state became notorious for their utter lack of principle. The teachers were quite willing to debase the conscience of their pupils for a fee. The priests of religion had lost faith in the rites they performed. It was just their way of making a living. Their forms were empty, their words insincere. All of this Socrates knew and his dark shadows grieved his righteous soul.

"Can I do nothing to heal these deplorable maladies? Am I to stand idly by while this glorious nation perishes in its sins?"

"He became the great moral missionary of his nation."

A COMPARISON

In comparing and contrasting the teaching of Socrates and Jesus, Dr. Morison said "Socrates was a head in his attempt to save man." Jesus went to the heart. Socrates identified right conduct with an understanding of the truth. The failure of Socrates was his extraordinary omission of the will and its place in moral conduct. He had a strong will himself which exercised such a complete control over his own impulses that he was led to ignore the instant results which flowed from the failure of will power in others. Men truly needed to have an exact knowledge of the truth in order to help them do it, but that mere knowledge was not sufficient in helping men to live. Conduct was proved by the fact that it was not in Greek philosophy which Europe adopted as the way of Salvation, but Christianity with its more successful way of helping men to righteousness. The key word of Socrates was knowledge, that of Jesus was faith.

Brings Farmers For Canada—New Governor—Newfoundland Cabinet Member

The Canadian Pacific steamship Montrose arrived in port yesterday shortly after 1 o'clock from Liverpool and Glasgow with 664 passengers, approximately 2,000 tons of general cargo and a large consignment of mail and express.

Included in the passengers were many British and Scandinavians who have come to Canada to settle. The majority are destined for points in the Prairie Provinces, where they will go in for farming.

THREE FAMILIES

Included among the passengers were three families who came to Canada under the 3,000 family scheme. They were Mr. and Mrs. David Mathieson and children, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Bonner and children, and Mr. and Mrs. George Watson and children. They are all destined for Vancouver where they will start farming.

Among the prominent passengers on board was Hon. M. S. Sullivan, minister without portfolio in the Munro Government of Newfoundland. He had come to England to consult with the Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, on his health. He will leave today for Sydney en route to his home in St. John's.

That Canada stands higher in England today than ever before and that the Canadian exhibit at the Wembley Exhibition was one of the greatest advertisements that Canada ever had, were statements made yesterday by J. S. McKinnon, director of industrial exhibits, who returned to Canada on the steamship Montrose, from Liverpool.

He estimated that over 100 firms in Canada, who had no previous connection with the English market, now have their representatives there and good is bound to result.

WILL BE GOVERNOR

Among the passengers who arrived here yesterday on the Canadian Pacific steamship Montrose, from Liverpool, was R. Randolph Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor designate of British Columbia. While visiting in London about a month ago, he was notified that this signal honor had been conferred upon him and he is now en route to Ottawa to be sworn in.

PLANT FOUND THAT GIVES OUT LIGHT

Plate Developed By Exposing to Luminous Growth in Bengal

LONDON, Feb. 22—A photographic plate has been developed by exposing it to the glow of a luminous plant found in Bengal.

The experiment was carried out by S. R. Bose, biologist, of Carmichael Medical College, Calcutta.

Following the researches of Professor Butler, who affirms that luminous leaves are found in several parts of the world, Mr. Bose obtained a collection of luminous vegetation from a forest in Barisal, Bengal.

Luminosity, he says, was usually confined to certain spots only, but in some cases thin flat surfaces glowed all over. Stalks showed a white streak that glows in contact with oxygen or water. It is a slow chemical combustion, without heat.

ARCHBISHOP ROY DIES OF CANCER

Successor To Cardinal Begin Succumbs After Long, Painful Illness

Four Other Priests and Sister in Same Family; Brilliant Student

QUEBEC, Feb. 21—Archbishop Roy, 66, died at 7 o'clock last night in St. Francois d'Assise Hospital after a long and painful illness.

The prelate had been suffering for some considerable time past from cancer of the intestines and it was due to this malady that he was unable to officiate at the ceremonies attendant upon the funeral of the late Cardinal Begin last July.

Archbishop Roy succeeded Cardinal Begin in the arch-episcopacy after having been Bishop coadjutor of Quebec from 1908.

Coming from a family which gave to the Catholic Church four other prelates and a sister, His Grace, Paul Eugene Roy, Archbishop of Quebec, was born in Berthier, Montserrat county, Quebec, on Nov. 9, 1859. He was a seventh son. One of his brothers is Monsignor Camille Roy, rector of Laval University, Quebec. The others who are prelates are: Abbé Elias Roy, cure of St. Patrick's, Rivière du Loup; Abbé Alexandre Roy, cure of Pindre, Quebec; and Father Racine Roy, Dominican, Quebec. The Archbishop's sister, Marie d'Eucharistie, is a nun attached to the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Quebec. The parents of the distinguished family were Benjamin Roy, a farmer, and his wife, Desanges Gosselin.

BECOMES SCHOLAR

The future Archbishop began his studies at the public school at Lévis. At the age of twelve he had already attracted attention for his scholarship and highly forerunning character. He was admitted to the Petit Séminaire at Quebec. He showed remarkable capacity as a scholar and later developed into one of the most profound authorities on history, and in Latin and Greek in the province. The deceased passed on from the Petit Séminaire when he began theological study. His extensive culture was soon recognized and it was not long before he was appointed an assistant professor of rhetoric. When he had been one year in this position the seminary authorities decided to send him to Paris to continue his literary and theological studies. After two years in Paris he became a "vicarius letters" of the Sorbonne. Returning to Quebec in 1888 he was again appointed to the professorial staff of the Grand Séminaire. In 1890 he was ordained a priest by Cardinal Taschereau. It was not until 1899 that he was given a charge and then was appointed parish priest of Ste. Anne at Hartford, Conn. He held the incumbency for nine years.

RECALLED TO QUEBEC

In 1899 Abbé Roy was recalled to Quebec by Archbishop (afterwards) Cardinal Begin and put in charge of the work of rehabilitating the finances of the Sacred Heart Hospital in Quebec. While Abbé Roy threw himself into this task with all his strength. Not only did he preach the cause of the hospital from the pulpit but he organized relief measures for the embarrassed institution in the parishes. He succeeded in placing the hospital on a sound financial footing. Mr. Begin then put him in charge of the organization of the new parish of Jacques Cartier. From 1901 to 1907 Abbé Roy labored in this parish, leaving it finally one of the most prominent in the Quebec diocese.

On April 8, 1908, Abbé Roy was named through Rome, auxiliary bishop to Archbishop Begin. The consecration of his episcopacy took place on May 10 of that year in the Basilica of Quebec. The ceremony was one of the most impressive as well as one of the most remarkable of its kind in the history of the church. Eleven bishops, 200 priests and the elite of the population of the diocese, including the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, Sir Louis Jetté, were present. The auxiliary bishop's four brothers assisted as deacons of honor. At the end of the ceremony Mr. Roy gave his first episcopal blessing to his mother, a "gracie filia" which visibly moved the congregation.

HEADED PILGRIMAGE

In 1914, during the eucharistic congress there, Mr. Roy headed a pilgrimage to the Sanctuary of the Blessed Virgin at Lourdes, in France, the pilgrimage afterwards traveling to Rome where it was received in audience by the Pope.

Shortly after his return to Canada in September, 1914, Mr. Roy was named Archbishop of Selucia, and upon the elevation of Mr. Begin to a Cardinal in 1920, he became Archbishop Co-adjutor of Quebec. Upon the death of Cardinal Begin in 1925, Mr. Roy succeeded to the office of Archbishop of Quebec. He received the pallium from the Pope soon after assuming office. The Archbishop was from 1907 to 1923 a director of the church paper, L'Action Sociale Catholique and exercised a considerable influence over its editorial policy.

Two Tetagouche Men Are Held For Theft

BATHURST, Feb. 21—Isaac Guillard and Edmond Daigle, both of South Tetagouche, were charged before Justice Lemargand in the police court, yesterday, with breaking and entering and stealing a quantity of cigars, tobacco and candy from the store of George Smith at South Tetagouche. The break took place on Feb. 11. Advantage was taken by the burglars of the fact that it was a stormy night. Smith, who lives over the store, is stone deaf and knew nothing of the theft until the following morning. After seeing the evidence both prisoners were committed for trial.

TO BROADCAST FROM SAINT JOHN

Newly Formed Radio Club Is Developing The Project

H. Fielding Rankine Heads Organization Formed Here on Saturday

Plans are being developed for the establishing of a broadcasting station in Saint John. The project is being sponsored by the Saint John Radio Club, which was organized on Saturday evening with H. Fielding Rankine as president. It was said programs of high quality were already assured.

CLUB ELECTS.

F. Horan, port wireless inspector, presided at the organization meeting of the Saint John Radio Club on Saturday night and the club elected the following officers: President, H. Fielding Rankine; vice-president, Frank C. Robinson; secretary-treasurer, J. C. Henderson; additional members of the executive, Frank P. Vaughan, A. E. Megarity, J. Fraser Gregory and H. R. MacFarlane. Mr. Megarity at Scovil Brothers, Limited, and J. C. Henderson at the Post Office in Saint John, were appointed to receive membership applications.

Mr. Horan outlined the many benefits which such organizations have brought to radio listeners in other cities where they have been formed. Arrangements were made for a meeting of the executive next Saturday night at the same place, in the Scovil Brothers building in King street. At the meeting a report on rules and by-laws for carrying on the work of the club will be presented.

It was learnt with interest that experts are now engaged each evening in clearing up inductive interference which, as well as the northern lights that have been recent offenders, has been proving most annoying to local listeners. A. C. Caton, chief of the static squad, who recently cleared up similar trouble in Halifax, is at work in Saint John and the whole city will be covered thoroughly with the object of educating those who are using generative sets in the proper methods of using these sets.

Officials of the radio-telegraphic department have advised local inquirers that if proof can be furnished that any particular radio receiving set is causing interference to other listeners the owner of it can be fined $50 and his receiver confiscated.

The members of the new club were most enthusiastic with reference to its future in the community and very eager for the operation of the new broadcasting station.

Asks Freedom From Kissless Marriage

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 22—A "kissless marriage" led Mrs. May Becker, 35, of Andover, N. J., to seek a divorce. Mrs. Becker testified that her husband, Frank, also of Andover, had joined a religious cult known as "The Truth" and had induced her to become a member. One of the tenets, she avowed, was that any display of human affection was forbidden.

Her husband did not kiss her for 10 months after marriage, she said, and then only under protest, and since June of last year he had declined to caress her at all.

Display of Needle Point Work

Furniture Store-Market Square

We have on Exhibition in our window on Market Square, three sample Arm Chairs, upholstered in handsome genuine "Needle Point" work.

These are really exquisite specimens of this art and are well worth your examination.

The Walnut carved frames of the chairs are of the time of Louis XIII. and XIV., showing the handicraft of the carvers of those periods.

There is also a walnut panel about five and a half feet wide and four feet high in the same beautiful Needle Point, showing a rural scene with figures of children in the foreground.

Accompanying this fine panel are several choice squares of Needle Point which are intended for the backs and seats of chairs or the tops of Ottomans. These pieces are truly representative of the skill of expert Belgian Artisans.

They have already been very much admired and will be on display for a few more days.
