Morning Stock Letter

NEW YORK, May 6.—The stock market yesterday showed a waiting attitude. Trading was the dullest since October 1924. The only thing that could be said about the market was that stocks met good support whenever they were offered and there was not the slightest sign of any fear. The technical position of the market is not bad, with a short interest, which is not as large as several months ago, and with brokers loans down considerably. Oil slightest sign of any fear. The technical position of the market is not bad, with a short interest, which is not as large as several months ago, and with brokers loans down considerably. Oil stocks continue to show as much life as any group and at times in a dull market yesterday there was a comparatively lively demand for them. This group should work higher, mainly Skelly, So. N. J., Marland, and PHM. We think rails can be bought on any slight weakness, mainly So. Ry below 110. The leading issues, in our opinion, are apt to rally from this level as soon as the situation is a little clearer. General Motors and Steel should be the leaders. Radio Corporation seems a good purchase for a long pull.
