ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Otto Robert Barton

THE FUNNY WIGGLEFINS.

Away they all swam to see if they could catch Tweekanose and get the magic of eppy sand.

When Tweekanose swam off with the magic sand at the bottom of the sea, the Sand Man and the Twins and Captain Pennywinkle, the fat little fishy, and all the Wigglefins besides, were so surprised that nobody could move for a minute.

"Little owls and ballets!" the Sand Man started to say, but he felt too bad to finish.

"Is that the rascal who has been causing you all the trouble?" asked Captain Pennywinkle.

"Yes, it is," answered the Twins. "He doesn't want the babies to go to sleep. He likes to tease them and that is why he wants to get the sleepy sand from the Sand Man."

"Well, we shall have to catch him," said Captain Pennywinkle, turning his sea-horse sharply to give some commands to his Wigglefin people.

"Electric-light fishes, come here," he cried.

All the electric-light fishes came swimming up and really it was so bright under the sea with so much light in everything, that it looked like a hundred automobile headlights all coming at you at once.

"Go everywhere," commanded the sea-captain fairy, "and light up all the sea-caves, and sea-rocks, and sea-wood forests, and sea-mountains, until there won't be a single dark place left for Tweekanose to hide in. And tell everyone you meet to keep his eyes open."

"Aye aye, sir!" said all the obliging electric-light fishes. "We will go at once."

Next the sea-captain fairy called all the lobsters.

"Go to all parts of the sea," he commanded. "And if you see Tweekanose, catch him by the toe and send me word."

"Aye, aye, sir!" said the lobsters crawling off as fast as they could go.

Next Captain Pennywinkle called the whales.

"Go and pull up all the sea-trees by the roots," he said, "and destroy all the hiding places in the sea."

"Aye, aye, sir!" said the whales wagging their tails and starting off.

"Got your ink-bottles along?" he asked.

"Right here, sir!" said all the squid waving their arms.

"Then follow the whales and the lobsters. If they catch Tweekanose, spill your ink in the water and make it all black so he can't get away."

Next he called the sea-horse crab.

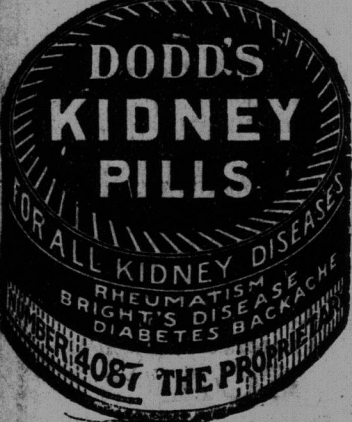

"Bring three good fast sea-horses, all saddled and bridled and ready to go," he said.

"Aye, aye, sir!" said the sea-horse crab crawling away to the stable for sea-horses.

By and by they came back. At Captain Pennywinkle's order, the Twins and the Sand Man jumped on the sea-horses.

The sea-horses uncurred their funny tails and flapped their little fins (which looked like wings) and away they all swam to see if they could catch Tweekanose and get the magic sleepy sand.

THE KITCHENER MYSTERY.

(Toronto Globe.)

The death of Lord Kitchener was one of the great mysteries of the war. H.M. S. Hampshire, on which he was traveling to Russia, sank from an external explosion shortly after leaving Scapa Flow on June 5, 1917. The real cause of the disaster may never be known, but an article contributed to The New York Times by the Russian General, M. S. Komisarov, corroborates rumors of a "leak" about Kitchener's mission at the Court of the Czar. The General, who was head of the Okrana, the Secret Police Department under the Czarist regime, was in a position to know what

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Effluated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloated feeling out of the body, soothe the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness of pain. Effluated Magnesia (in powdered or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive and gives relief in a few minutes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

went on at the Court, and is frequently referred to in the memoirs of eminent contemporaries.

General Komisarov was requested by Czar Nicholas to investigate rumors about Kitchener's death which were in circulation at Petrograd. He learned that the Czar had been informed by King George of Kitchener's mission in a code known only to the two monarchs. One day lunching with General Voleysky, steward of the household, the Czar drank a considerable quantity of spirits and spoke of Kitchener's expected arrival. This came to the ears of the Czarina, who asked Rasputin, her favorite priest, to remonstrate with the Czar for drinking. Then Komisarov

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the external right, leaving a clear smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You don't need to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

BETTER WIVES AND MOTHERS

The emancipation of women as evidenced by the evolution in dress from steel stays that made a twenty-inch waist and the long street-sweeping skirts to the sports clothes of the present day has certainly had its effect upon the health of women. With proper attention to diet and exercise a race of better wives and mothers is assured by it. If, however, ailments develop as evidenced by irregularities, backache, headache, nervousness, and irritability, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be depended upon to overcome them. Be Careful of Poisons

"Did you hear about the Jones child?" Mrs. Mann asked excitedly of her husband when he returned from work. "The poor little thing got into the medicine closet some way or other and all but poisoned herself to death." Many such accidents occur in many places daily and should be a sermon to parents.

If you have poisons in your medicine chest hang it up so high that there is no danger of the children getting into it. But, better still, keep your poisons separate from your medicines.

Or have the cabinet separated into two sections, one of which would contain tain lyso, carbolic acid, or whatever there is in the poison line, and the other to contain the medicines.

A good selection of medical supplies to have on hand are: Castor oil, quinine, bicarbonate of soda, adhesive plaster, peroxide of hydrogen, iodine, camphorated oil, alcohol, rhubarb, turpentine, and possibly some sort of salts.

Never put any prescription of unknown contents into the chest and don't let prescription medicine stand a year or so and then try to use it.

Some of the contents may have deteriorated in strength.
