REGIN PASTORATE. Rev. Craig W. Nichols, formerly curate at St. Luke's church, this city, but lately stationed at St. Stephen, began his new duties today as rector at the Anglican church in Westfield.

NO DUMP. Our store is no dump for old metal, but a great many pieces of old silverware that would have been thrown on the dump as useless now find their way to us and we remove them sparkle better than new silverware of modern make, at J. Grodzinski's, 24 Waterloo street.

BABY'S BODY FOUND. Coroner Kenny will investigate the matter of the finding of the body of an infant in Carleton yesterday afternoon. This is the second small child's body to be found within a few weeks on the west side. The body was found wrapped in a piece of old ironing under a sill in the old house at Fairview or Bay Shore during the summer. The conductor and engineer who have taken the course have been furnished with compact but completely equipped first aid boxes in readiness for emergencies.

CHARGED WITH ESCAPING. A man who gave his name as Gale was arrested last night in Coburg street church by a policeman that he was charged with this morning charged with driving a motor car and was remanded. It was noticed by the policeman that he resembled John Jeffrey who was sentenced to six months in jail last month for stealing an automobile. The conductor and engineer who have taken the course have been furnished with compact but completely equipped first aid boxes in readiness for emergencies.

CENSUS SHOWING

IRISH PROGRESS

A Decrease in the Number of Emigrants

HOUSING IS BETTER

Last Ten Years Show Prosperity in the Emerald Isle—The Population Figures From the Standpoint of Religion

(Times' Special Correspondence)

Dublin, April 18—Ireland's growing prosperity is indicated in the revised figures for the census of 1911 which have been issued this week and is emphasized by the return of emigrants in 1912, also issued this week by the registrar general.

The total population of Ireland on the date the census was taken was 4,200,219 which is a decrease of only 68,288 or 1.5 per cent since the census of 1901. It is the smallest decrease on record during the last sixty years. The census of 1881 showed a loss of 1,622,810 or 19.8 per cent and the census of 1901 showed a loss of 265,978 or 6.2 per cent. In the opening year of the decade 1901-10 the emigration amounted to 29,815, while in 1911 it had decreased to 20,282 and in 1912 to 29,709.

Of the total population in 1911, 73.9 per cent were Catholics, 13.1 per cent Anglo-Irish, 10 per cent Presbyterians, 1.4 per cent Methodists, and all other denominations 1.4 per cent. No explanation of the fall in the number of emigrants is given, but it is fair to assume that they were persons who laid claim to no particular form of religion.

The tables dealing with the economic conditions are full of hope for Ireland. Although there was a decrease of more than 68,000 in the population in the decade there was an increase of 3,717 in the number of inhabited houses and 11 of this was in houses of a superior class.

In fact there was a positive increase in the number of inferior houses. This also is no doubt, to the extensive building of the new laborer's cottages which fall in the number of inferior houses. In which there is reported an increase of 47,791. It is evident from these figures that the standard of living has improved and that housing conditions which must soon be reflected in the improved health of the people.

Occupations

Coming to the occupations of the people of Ireland we find that 1,817,290 persons are returned as having definite productive occupations, while 2,382,929 persons are returned as being engaged in agriculture, which is 57.25 per cent of the population. The number of non-producers seems at first sight to be large, but when we remember that it includes all the children, many women, and the vast class of government employes, police, etc., the figures which clearly show the improved economic conditions as that relating to pauperism. In 1901 the number of persons receiving relief under the poor law was 101,297, while in 1911 it was only 77,184, and since 1911 it is said there has been a further marked decrease. No doubt much of this decrease is due to the operation of the old age pension act which has removed from the workhouses thousands of people more than seventy years of age. In this connection it is worthy of note that the number of people above seventy in 1911 is returned at 235,027 compared with 187,314 in 1901. This increase may be taken as an indication that the old people do not know their ages and understand them while, since the operation of the old age pension act, they have made inquiries with a view to coming under its benefits.

One of the most depressing sections of the report is that relating to insanity, which would seem to be steadily increasing in Ireland. In 1901 the number of insane persons was 1,000 and in 1911 it was 2,847, compared with 25,000 in 1901. The number of insane persons in 1911 is returned at 187,314 in 1901. This increase may be taken as an indication that the old people do not know their ages and understand them while, since the operation of the old age pension act, they have made inquiries with a view to coming under its benefits.

An analysis of the emigration figures for last year shows that the United States is still the most attractive country to Irishmen who leave home. Out of the total of 29,709 emigrants 20,468 went to America while the British colonies got practically all the rest.

An interesting set of figures deals with the emigration since 1881 when records were first kept, and it must be remembered that the famine years preceding that date drove out many thousands. In sixty years Ireland lost 4,207,800 people by emigration, a number practically equal to her total population today.

LOCAL LABOR MATTERS

Murray & Gregory's wood-working mill resumed operation today with a dozen men at work. The places of the other thirty will be filled unless they return, according to the management.

The contractors on the sugar refinery hired some more carpenters this morning to take the place of those who went out yesterday and the foreman expects to have a full force of workmen by tomorrow morning.

The situation in Christ's is about the same and the Erin street mill continues to be operated.

Fourteen plumbers for higher wages, who struck yesterday for their wages, returned to work this morning. They will receive $3 a day and steam fitters will get $2.50. The carpenters and masons are still out.

The Trades and Labor Council at the end of the Oldfield's Hall last night endorsed the strike of the Woodworkers, and passed a motion promising their financial and moral support. F. Hyatt was elected secretary in place of Mr. Hennessy, who has resigned on account of ill health.

The Fair Committee reported progress. Members of the Bricklayers' and Masons' Union adopted the eight hour day yesterday by reporting for work at eight o'clock instead of seven. Some of the bosses had objected, but there was no serious trouble. Another meeting will be held on Monday night to ascertain whether any of the employers make a cut in the men's wages to fifty-five cents an hour.

HARDER ON NERVES

IF PEOPLE KNEW WHEN

BLASTS WERE TO COME

Conference at City Hall Today

Over the Courtenay Bay Work

A conference between the city commissioners and the representatives of the contractors at Courtenay Bay was held at noon today to discuss the blasting. The contractors' explanations proved satisfactory to the officials and the matter was adjourned for the present at least, to the satisfaction of all. The mayor with Commissioners Schofield and Wignior were present on behalf of the city and G. F. Palmer for Norton Griffiths & Co., and W. A. Stewart for the Courtenay Construction Co., the sub-contractors.

The commissioners asked if it would be possible to limit other blasting to some fixed time so that people might know when to expect the shocks. Mr. Palmer explained that while he was in charge of the construction of the London tubes under the heart of the metropolis in 1904-6 the same request was made and complied with. In a short time they were asked to resume the former method as persons in the vicinity found the strain of the nervous tension while waiting for the blasts to be harder than the shock of unexpected explosions.

He said that they would welcome an investigation by experts and would cheerfully consider all suggestions.

When the contractors withdrew the commissioners discussed the advisability of appointing local blasting experts to report but nothing further was done.

The contractors explained that all blasting possible was done during the day and the only blasting work at night was when postponement would hold up the whole job. The steam shovels were working at night and day removing the big bank on the dry dock site and from time to time they uncovered boulders too large to be handled without being broken up. To stop and drill them for blasting would cost a great deal of money. They would not stop and drill them for blasting would cost a great deal of money. "CABMAN BARONET"

Benjamin Tyrrell Says He Now

Has Full Proof to Title and Estates

Burton-on-Trent, Eng., May 2—Benjamin Tyrrell, known as the "cabman baronet," says that he is determined to prosecute his claim to the Tyrrell baronetcy, and will endeavor to bring it before the chancery court soon. Tyrrell has been engaged in investigating his title for many years, and says he now has absolute proof.

Local opinion, however, is that while he has an almost undoubted right to the title of baronet, he cannot recover estates connected with the Tyrrell baronetcy, which have been willed away and dispersed. These estates were principally the Thornton Hall estate, in Buckinghamshire, and the Crakenar Hall estate. Tyrrell has for years been a daily visitor at the Burton public library, searching books of lineage.

He has only one leg. Until he relinquished his employment some years ago as a cab driver he was invariably saluted by his comrades of the rank as "Sir Benjamin." He was originally outler at a hotel, and he lost his limb in endeavoring to stop a runaway horse. The Tyrrell baronetcy has been in abeyance for more than a century.

WHAT DYSPYPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a half teaspoonful of Bismuth Magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bismuth Magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It is not a medicine, and has no direct action on the stomach, but neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician I believe in the use of mild neutralizing agents whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of doing an inflated and irritated stomach with drug instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little Bismuth Magnesia from your druggist, and what you want at your next meal, talk some of the Bismuth Magnesia as directed above, and see if it's not right."

A GOOD TRIP.

The schooner Brooklyn, Captain Kerrigan, arrived at Havana, today from Savannah, after a five day voyage.

POOR UNFORTUNATE MAN

By J. R. HAMILTON

Formerly Advertising Manager Wanamaker's, Philadelphia (Copyrighted)

MAN ONCE wore a feather in his hat. Woman took it away from him

Man once wore a tunic skirt. Woman stole it and left him almost bare

Man once wore ruffles on his sleeves. Woman swiped them, for both neck and sleeves.

Man once was a bold, bad, color-loving, mate-pursuing pleasure-seeking king of an animal world. Today he is a meek, mild, black-coated, completely tamed domestic, who is not even allowed to run around nights without an excuse. The feather is gone from his hat, the ruffles from his shirt front, his legs are encased in trousers and his heart is lead.

Once a year however man revolts. Once a year when the spring comes, when the days are balmy and the nights are soft, he gets a sort of atavistic snuff of the olden times. He stiffens his shoulders, looks out with a bolder eye, and almost makes himself believe that he is once more master of his cave.

And when this spirit comes over him he begins to adorn himself. He begins to look on clothes as he used to do. He begins to take pride in the pattern of a shirt or the color of a tie. He begins to put color in his cheeks and in his socks. And all the color he dares, he puts into his clothes.

Indeed he has even been known to put a feather back into his hat.

How many thousands of you men have this annual Spring feeling of revolt today? How many thousands of you, feel an overwhelming desire for new clothes, for new hats, and new shoes?

Why this feeling of Spring is as widespread as the earth. The very Zulus carve themselves new beads. So don't deny the impulse in yourself. Every other part of the year you may dress because the police make him, but when Spring comes he buys new clothes because he has an overwhelming desire to have new clothes.

Just turn to all the advertising in this paper, you men, and see what is being offered in this city today. See where you can get the handsomest suits, and the best shirts and the nicest ties and the finest-looking shoe. See what each store is offering you.

Then go out and shop with pride. Put on all the color and all the finery that you dare, and enjoy once more the privileges of the male.

AMERICAN EXPRESS TO BE WITH US AGAIN

The American Express Company is arranging to renew their connection with St. John. The company formerly operated in this province in conjunction with the Canadian Express Company but withdrew a couple of years ago. The increasing business in this section of the country has attracted the attention of the company and they have decided to reopen here, changing connections by the Eastern Steamship Company.

Their new service will commence here on May 15. W. M. Edson of Boston, inspector for the company, is in the city today completing the arrangements.
