CANADA HOUSE,
CHATHAM, N. B. — NEW BRUNSWICK.
WM. JOHNSTON, — Proprietor.
CONSIDERABLE outlay has been made on this house to make it a first class hotel, and travellers will find it a desirable temporary residence both as regards location and comfort. It is situated within two minutes walk of steamboat landing. The proprietor returns thanks to the public for the encouragement given him in the past, and will endeavor by courtesy and attention to merit the same in the future.
Good Stabling on the Premises.

"Wilbur House,"
Bathurst, Gloucester County, N. B.
This House, which has been enlarged and thoroughly repaired, and refurnished, will be open to the public on Monday next, 12th June.
As regards situation, it is located in a very pleasant town, and being in close proximity to the Bathurst Chateau, is one of the very best summer resorts for tourists and families who leave the heated cities to seek the invigorating air of the North. The County excels in beautiful scenery and excellent fishing grounds. The hotel is within easy reach of the International Railway, and every effort will be made by the proprietor to secure the comfort and pleasure of all who may patronize the establishment, which will be conducted in the very best style.

THE SECRET BENEFACTOR.

"Have you attended to the business I spoke of particularly, yesterday?" asked Mr. Lambert, a wealthy owner of real estate, addressing an intelligent, fair looking young man, who sat at his desk, as the above-mentioned gentleman entered his office.
Charles Burchard colored with embarrassment. For a moment his hand moved nervously across his brow, then, raising his handsome eyes to his employer's face, he answered in a frank, steady tone:
"I have neglected to follow your instructions in this case."
"I am sorry."
"Sorry!" cried Mr. Lambert angrily. "I have heard all this from Mr. Burchard. What did they say of me?"
"That in the circumstances they have received benefits from you, for which they are very grateful."
"It is a mere taunt—insolent irony," muttered Mr. Lambert.
"I assure you sir, there were tears in the poor woman's eyes when she said it; she was sincere."
"They appreciated these favors so much the more," said Mr. Carroll, "from the fact that, as Mr. Ward's intention is a secret, and as all his instruments and contrivances have been in the house, it would have been a sore disadvantage to be obliged to move. His intention is now on the eve of completion, and he is firm in the hope of being able to pay with interest."
Mr. Lambert was greatly perplexed by this inexplicable conversation of his clerk; but he concealed his feelings, and, leaving Mr. Carroll to believe he was a man who did a great deal of good in a quiet way, went to his study.
He found the Wards making preparation to vacate the premises. To a beautiful girl with a handkerchief over her head, who was carrying small articles of furniture to the hall, he said, "I am glad to see you. I have known your wife to see Mr. Ward."
This gentleman was engaged in packing up his machinery; but soon coming out of his secret room and locking the door behind him, he appeared before Mr. Lambert. As these words were spoken, Mr. Carroll, the landlord was obliged to introduce himself.
"Charles Burchard," exclaimed Mr. Lambert, "you have been in my employ two years. I have found you faithful, honest, capable—and I would not willingly part with you; but since you prefer your way of doing business, I will let you go. I am sorry it is not proper that we should work together any longer."
"I have thought myself," said Charles, "that since I cannot conscientiously pursue the extremes you deem necessary, it will be best for me to leave right now. I have been thinking of this for some time, and I have added, fixing my mind upon Mr. Lambert's face, 'I am ready to go.' Well, sir, I will have a settlement at once. How much am I indebted to you?"
"Nothing," said Mr. Lambert.
"You will see. Cast your eye over this paper," he said.
"I have perceived you have taken up your wages lately, as soon as due," said Mr. Lambert, who remembering his clerk's fidelity and capacity, was not without a certain respect for him. "This is a new thing, however. But I presume you have invested your money advantageously."
"Nothing," said Charles.

come until completed—Mr. Ward has not been able to do much towards the support of his family. Mrs. Ward said I was an invalid. The only child, daughter about eighteen, and a girl of some accomplishments, has done considerably toward their support."

"I hope some day to marry Miss Mary Ward."
"She is a worthy girl, sir—"
"But this is no reason," exclaimed Mr. Lambert.
"Well, then, you must also know, sir, I had advanced money to the family openly," said Charles, recovering his self-possession, and his face beaming with frankness, "there was a possibility that I might be suspected of unworthy motives. And again, even had it been otherwise, and I could have won Miss Ward as I would have wished to win her, she might have loved me more from a sense of gratitude than for myself; and I would not have bought her love. As it is, I know she loves me for what I am, and she will accept my hand when I am in a position to support a wife."
"Charles," said Mr. Lambert, pressing the young man's hand, "I honor you! You have acted nobly. Return to your situation your salary shall be doubled."
"But Mr. Carroll—"
"He is not permanently engaged. I will procure a place for him—Charles, you must come back. I confess I have acted wrong in this matter. To tell a secret, Charles, Mrs. Ward is my own sister?"
"Your sister?"
"I don't wonder at your astonishment; but it cannot equal mine when I learned the fact this morning. I disclaimed all connection with her beautiful girl, because she refused to marry a man who was my friend. I was unjust. Afterwards she married Mr. Ward, of whom I knew nothing. She supposed, however, that I might have learned the facts, and all the favors they have received from you have thus been credited to me. I thank Heaven that I have now an opportunity to atone for my injustice to an only sister, and I thank you for the lesson in humanity which you have taught. Wealthy as I am, I shall never again distress a tenant for rent without ascertaining whether he is deserving of any favors."
Mr. Lambert was not permitted to do all the good he proposed to his sister's family. In a few days Mr. Ward's patent was decreed, and his family was raised to affluence; but Mr. Ward did not disdain the kindness of his restored brother.
Mr. Lambert had lost no time in acquainting his relations with the nature of their indebtedness to Charles Burchard. If they esteemed and loved the poor of his benefactor, who was now their admiration of his noble qualities! None, however, felt their influence like Miss Ward. The only way in which she could express her joy, gratitude and love was by becoming his wife with a dowry which relieved him of the care of providing for the comforts of life. Prosperous in business, happy in his domestic relations, Charles Burchard often had occasion to look back with a smile to the time when he left Mr. Lambert's service "for conscience's sake."

some of which is cut and more nearly ripe. Mr. Loves Reaping Machine is making sweeping work among the grain, so there will be no trouble in getting it cut this year. The potatoes have all the appearance of being a good crop. Happily we have not many accidents to record since young Sargent got his leg broken. Two young men got slightly injured a few days ago by fire getting into some powder in the shop where they were working.
There is a slight commotion in collecting the local School Tax in this District. We have this summer been a very quiet and orderly people until a short time ago, when the rum shop in an immediate vicinity opened out in full bloom again. Every rum shop, I care not who keeps it, is a curse in any community. I think the Law requires (but not all rum shops will inform us), that all rum shops shall be closed at ten o'clock, p.m. Our rumrunner here keeps his open at all hours and until daylight on Sunday mornings.
The fishing is very poor here at the present time. I suppose these large fish, that the Globe's correspondent spoke of as up all the small fry. He said the smallest one weighed 90 lbs. He might have told us what the largest one weighed. Was it 200 or 300 lbs. He might also have told us how they catch these fish, whether with hook and tackle or how. We would like to know how they get those mackerel into the boat that break so easily without leaving their tails in the water. A few of these large fish and some of the sixty cent potatoes would be almost as good as flour at election time.

[We hope our correspondent will not feel hurt at the liberty we have taken in drawing the pen through some very strong personal allusions in his letter. With respect to the liquor law, all taverns are required to be closed on Sundays, and during week days between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.] EDITOR ADVOCATE.

Tabularia, Sept. 2nd, 1876.

To the Editors of the Union Advocate.
DEAR SIRS:—Permit me through the columns of your valuable journal to notice the statements of that unreliable sheet, the St. Lawrence Advertiser. First—In the number of that paper dated the 10th of August, in which the editor positively asserted that the poet of the Tabularia was over 70 years of age, and when called upon by me to give the necessary complaint under the 17th section of the Fishery Act, was unable to do so, or to give the names of parties who went, in to screen himself merely said they went from Bathurst; to which I replied that no wonder, when the Commission of the Board of Works had made a road. I did not consider it my duty to watch that road. In conversation he said it was a pity that offenders could not be brought to justice; he for one would contribute towards doing so. I said I had started to the Inspector that I believed that parties had gone that way. The next time I saw the editor I called his attention to the number of his paper dated the 17th of August, before two leading citizens of Chatham, and made him say his words again in regard to what I had stated concerning my correspondence to the Inspector of Fisheries. So now he appears to tire of that play and has sought a correspondent, and I trust that it is not the same in this case as before, but that he will be able to give his correspondent's name, who appears to be well informed concerning the Indian woman's hook and the tone of his correspondent, if it would be hooks either would want—Now I hope that gentlemen will give me a fair show by furnishing the public with the name of the correspondent, although the statements made are beneath my notice. I will then give him facts for slanders. Believe me Messrs. Editors, very truly yours,
JOHN STEWART.

SHOCKING BARBARITY—HORRID CRUELTY.

To the Editors of the Union Advocate.
Sirs:—In the St. John Daily News of Tuesday last may be read details of a fight between two young men, resulting in the death of one of them. Their names are Walker and Wheeldon, the former only 19 and the latter 20 years of age. Both were admirable in respect of physical strength and muscular development. But, alas! what a sad prostration of noble powers followed by a kind Creator! Instead of employing their strength for some good purpose and the benefit of their fellow creatures they enter the prize ring and with a sworn resolution to destroy each other. After two hours of desperate work and almost superhuman endurance, Walker was defeated in the seventy sixth round. Defeated—nay, murdered wantonly and brutally in daylight before the eyes of blood thirsty spectators. Such a scene is without parallel in the present century, and even the Canipore massacre does not surpass it in atrocity. In vain did the Sheriff remonstrate. To have interfered with such a mob would have cost his life. Where were the police—where the magistrates during these prolonged hours? Echo answers where?—How any human beings could look idly on whilst a youth of 19 was laid up in a blinded state to be murdered, seems beyond the power of the imagination to conceive. What a stain upon a community—what a disgrace to humanity—what a stigma upon a Christian country, if this be manslaughter, if this be liberty. The heathen in their blindness have not yet arrived at such a point of cold, profane and unmitigated atrocity as was witnessed in the vicinity of the Centennial Exhibition. No wonder there is excitement and that efforts are put forth to punish not only the seconds, the bottle holders and abettors, but also the inhuman spectators of such an unparalleled murder.
I remain, Sirs,
yours faithfully,
