GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP.

While Canadians will naturally be glad over the result of the Harvard-Cambridge boat race on the Thames Saturday, the real cause of rejoicing splendid contest itself and the sports ning, but in the game itself. To play and to take the result with good hudefeat without whimpering—that is the test of the good sportsman. And both crews Saturday passed the test well.

None were so ready as the Harvard for the house. After getting back they remembered that the absent member of the party was ignorant of the ber of the party was ignorant of the bar word, as the footpath sche Blue Nose, from New York for Sackville. absorb more of the spirit displayed throughout the whole progress of this famous international contest. They are inclined in all their sport to play for the prize rather than for the game itself. How often do we read of the members of a defeated American college football or baseball team openly shedding tears after losing their game. That's not sport, nor manliness. The result of a game is only one incident of it, and by no means the most important. Some disappointment in natural, but any open exhibition of it, or any "squealing" over a fairly lost game, is a betrayal of qualities that do not exist in that highest type

As a matter of fact, Dr. Jones is the first Baptist to hold that position. Dr. Harrison is an Anglican, and his predecessor, Dr. Jack, was a Presbyterian. Probably Dr. Jones' religious belief was never considered in connection with the appointment. Certainly it ought not to have been. They went with a party of friends to spend the night at the Adogwaasook Fishing Club house, and one of the party went up stream and remained there after dark. The girls set out to see what had become of the young man, and some distance above the camp they ran into a huge bear, who was directly in the path. The bear stood up to receive them, but they turned and fled for the house. sheath knife, and the three started up the path again. The bear was still in his former position and they waved the lantern and shouted at the top of their lungs to scare the bear, and to warn their friend whom they heard coming along. They failed to make him under-stand and he brushed the bear in complete ignorance of his presence. The girls were quite unconscious of any display of pluck or heroism on their
