Mise Agnee Cochran, daughter of the late Capt.

How He Astenished the Old Admiral, The old admiral, whose long sea service had given his legs a decided outward cursature, once had a singular adventure on this account with a ship's pet.

The crew of the ship owned a large black spaniel, and took great pains in teaching him to jump. A man standing up would put one foot against his other knee, thus making a hole for Nep, the dog, to make his leap through. The dog always jumped through the aperture readily, though it his trainer's logs happened to be short, it was a tight squeeze.

One day the admiral came aboard from the flagship on a visit of inspection. Hap, pening to walk to the forward part of the ship, he stood there for a few minutes conversing with the officer who had attended

In astonishment at the black tornado that had passed beneath him, the admiral whirled quickly about to see what was the cause. The dog took this action as a signal for an 'encore,' and jumped again.

Once more the admiral turned, and again the dog jumped. The bewildered face of the admiral and the serious attention of Nep to what he imagined was his business were too much for the gravity of the by-standers, and, forgetting the respect due to rank, they all roared with

A sailor, however, had enough presence of mind to break from the crowd and catch the dog by the collar. He led him eff, and Nep seemed to wonder why he did not receive the praise due to such sphited efforts.

The excited admiral got but an imperfect explanation of the affair from the spectators, for they could hardly tell him that his legs had been used as a circus hoop for a forecastle dog. Perhaps to his dying day the occurrence was a mystery.—San Fran-
