

WANT TO SPEND ESTATE'S MONEY ON BREWERIES

Path Brothers Diverting Income Unlawfully, Sister Charges.

HOPE CHANGES IN THE VOLSTEAD LAW

Asks That Income be Distributed as Provided in Father's Will.

Philadelphia, April 21.—The Froth brothers—Frederick J. and Harry A.—officially believe the present agitation to bring about changes in the Volstead act is going to meet with success in the near future, with the result they will be able to again manufacture beer containing a real "kick."

That their sister, Mrs. Clara M. Z. Gault, is of the opinion that the "kick" amber-colored fluid is here to stay a long, long time was evidenced yesterday, when argument was heard in the orphan's court in connection with a petition filed on her behalf.

Mrs. Gault, who is the daughter of the late Frederick A. Froth, founder of the business, is trying to stop her two brothers and her brother-in-law, E. A. Smith, trustees and executors of her late father's estate, from utilizing the accumulated income to further equip and improve the two breweries owned by the estate in this city and Canada.

When former Judge Theodore F. Jenkins, on behalf of the respondents, expressed the opinion that the executors were using sound business judgment in reinvesting the income to improve the booze manufacturing plants, President Judge Lacombe said:

"Why should they spend the income to re-equip breweries to carry on a business which you admit is now unprofitable and which practically has no legal existence?"

"They can still make beer containing less than 1/2 of 1 per cent," replied Mr. Jenkins.

"Which nobody drinks," retorted the judge.

"They are banking on the hope that the drastic provisions of the Volstead law will be changed," explained Samuel P. Tall, Jr., who with William N. Trinkle, represented Mrs. Gault.

"But isn't that illegal?" asked Judge Best.

"What right have they to do this?"

"We charge that it is unlawful," said Mr. Tall. "These trustees," he continued, "have only filed an account in fourteen years, instead of dividing the income of the estate twice a year among the heirs, they are arbitrarily using it to improve their breweries on a forlorn hope. We object to incurring any such risk. We want our money. We also ask that the trustees either sell the brewery properties or fit them up to be used in some other legitimate business earning something for the estate. About $700,000 of the accumulated income of the estate has been diverted to the breweries by the trustees in the arbitrary exercise of their business judgment."

The court reserved decision. Yrniko said he will later ask for the removal of the trustees.

Jews Celebrate Passover Feast

Ancient "Pesach" to be Celebrated by Hebrews All Over the World.

Passover, the feast of unleavened bread, is to be celebrated this year beginning this evening and continuing a week, the concluding service of the holiday falling on Friday, April 23. The feast services in the local Synagogue start at 7:15 o'clock.

The festival of Passover, called in Hebrew, "Pesach," reaches back to remote antiquity when it was observed by the early Hebrew tribes as an agricultural spring festival. At an early period Passover was transformed into a festival celebrating the redemption of the Hebrews from Egyptian slavery.

By connecting this festival with the wondrous deliverance of the Hebrews from the Egyptian yoke, a new interest was provided for its observance. The festival and the ritual ceremony observed during the seven days in which it is celebrated among the Orthodox, is not only identified with the Exodus of the children of Israel from Egyptian tyranny, but further symbolizes joy in the triumph of liberty and freedom over oppression and slavery. Use in Synagogue

The festival of Pesach was used by the synagogue as a means of consecrating the Jewish home to God. Who is regarded as the Redeemer and Protector of Israel. The story of the deliverance of their forefathers from bondage and slavery reminded the Jews of God's providential guidance and gave them confidence in their final redemption from all oppression and woe.

The Passover feast endowed the Jew ever anew with endurance during the darkest hours of the "Seder" held on the eve of Passover. All members of the family participate in its observance. The ritual of the Seder includes the reading of a richly adorned tale of deliverance, "The Hagadah," wherein the various events leading up to the Exodus and immediately following are told.

The "Seder" is a banquet radiating an exuberant spirit of thankfulness and joy. The symbolism of the Seder reflects the circumstances of the early days of Jewish slavery in Egypt, as well as the hopeful outlook for the final triumph of freedom for all mankind.

Lemon And Opium Cases In Court

Harry Kent, Alleged Lemon Dealer, the Defendant—Chinese Plead Guilty.

Sub-Liquor Inspector Henderson testified yesterday afternoon in the case of Harry Kent, the Brussels street grocer charged with selling lemon extract as a beverage contrary to the Prohibition Law. The inspector stated that he and inspector Journey on the evening of the 16th of April saw a repeated lemon drinker in the defendant's shop. They entered the shop and searched him, finding three bottles of lemon extract on his person. Journey asked the defendant to show him his registration book, and the latter replied it was not needed, he was in bed, but if they would let him go this time he would give up the trade.

The case was postponed to Tuesday at 11 o'clock at the request of the defendant. A charge of having opium unlawfully in their possession was preferred against Hun Fong Lung, proprietor of the King Gate, and his chief Hun Wong, both pleaded guilty. A hearing on the prosecution was accorded by the court.

By that time, it is expected that evidence will have been secured, incriminating not only the accused, but other Orientals as well. The evidence already secured comprised a pipe, a lamp used for heating the dope, a cigar box containing several pills wrapped in paper and a loaded revolver. The ashes will be sent to an analyst for a report. G. H. V. Belyea, K. C., is appearing for the defence.
