Some $1700 worth of accounts have been sent out from this office during the past fortnight. Some $40 has come back to roost. What percentage is that? It's not 100 p.c., nor even 95 p.c. It is any wonder there are a few tatters about this old pack of bones?

Distance is nothing to a young lover. We heard of a case, which was supposed to have happened very recently. A young man with a real driving horse, who resides "on some place, started out in quest of a fair dame, who lives in one of our nearby districts to the east of town. Some how or other, the girl didn't wait the arrival of her ardent lover. She however left word as to where she could be located. The young man arrived in due course, and he was duly instructed of the whereabouts of the lady friend. He got things mixed up and drove several miles past where the waiting one was, in fact he passed the house within a few feet; anyway he had to double back, in non too dry weather either. But the girl was located, and the long trip was soon forgotten. Such is life. Did it ever occur to you?

The old theory that rose plants should be cut back very hard each spring is gradually being abandoned. Many good growers are now leaving a large amount of wood on their bushes and are getting a much greater number of flowers as a result. Of course the dead wood and the weak canes should be taken out but apparently it is not necessary to cut back to the ground. The bigger the bushes, however, the more feeding they will require, and the best way to give them nourishment is to apply manure water twice a week until the end of August. The fertilizer may be easily prepared from pulverized sheep manure which may be obtained at the seed stores.

DUNGEONS THROWN OPEN TO PUBLIC

London—Four additional towers of the famous Tower of London have been opened for the first time for the convenience of the thousands of sight-seers from all parts of the world who visit this historic place weekly. The great caken doors of these towers, known as the Byward, Salt, Martin and Broad Arrow were found to be in a wonderful state of preservation, and the great dungeons where enemy spies were lodged during the last war are now open to public inspection for the first time in history.

It was near the Martin Tower that some of the spies were shot, among them Carl Hans Lody, a German who posing as an American, was captured in the summer of 1914, and who was the first person to be executed in these precincts for nearly 100 years. In past centuries hundreds of traitors and prisoners of state were confined in the towers, and many of them whiled away the weary days by carving pictures and inscriptions on the walls and these are still visible today.

Byward Tower, being the main entrance to the inner ward, must have its gates carefully locked every night, and the chief warden, in his scarlet coat and flat hat, with an escort from the military guard, himself performs the duty.

As far as is known positively the Tower of London, which today covers 12 acres, dates from the time of William the Conqueror, who began the White Tower somewhere about 1078, and completed it about 30 years afterward. At first it was a palace, but later it was used as a prison.

A village is a place where everybody knows everybody so well it isn't worth while to snub anybody.
