His house was always a welcome home for the weary itinerant, and he never seemed more happy than when he had ministers with him. He was a man of much prayer, and faith was answered in showers of blessing. He was taken ill at the time of the Camp meeting in July last, and it soon became evident that the master was about to call him home to himself. He lingered on until the 19th of November, when he changed martality for life in the 69th year of his until the 19th of November, when he could be defined mortality for life in the 69th year of his age.
