AT THE THEATRES

Impressions of a First-Nighter.

PAULINE FREDERICK AT THE ALLEN

The Allen Theatre is appropriately decorated for the Christmas season and breathes the festive season not only in the lobby with its Christmas bells, wreaths, holly and snow, but all through the house. The decorations are artistic and seasonable. Last night Pauline Frederick was the star in a new play but an old theme, "The Loves of Letty." Letty is represented as a shop-girl who has grown disheartened with her humble lot in life and aspires to a higher position in society. She denies herself food, in fact starves herself into a weakened condition, in order to buy pretty clothes and make a good impression on a rich lover. Finding out that her rich lover is a married man living apart from his wife, she accepts the advances of her employer, who wishes to marry her. At a little wine party he gives in her honor, she is so disgusted at his low breeding and gormandizing that, in order to escape from the penury and hardship which has grown so unbearable to her, she turns to her rich lover and is about to accept his improper proposals to fly to the continent. Just in time, through his despair over his own sister committing a similar act, her eyes are opened to the truth of what men really think of women who fly to them in this manner, and she flies from his apartments without ceremony and falls exhausted on the streets where she is picked up by a policeman. During the course of her three months' convalescence she learns what true love means, and gains contentment and happiness in a more humble station. Pauline Frederick is an accomplished emotional actress, and while not overdoing the part expresses on the screen her feelings in a most convincing manner. Her many local admirers will be anxious to see her in the picture which is repeated again to-night. In addition to the "Loves of Letty" there is a good instalment of "The Midnight Man" and a laughable Harold Lloyd Comedy.

TWO STIRRING FEATURES AT THE STAR.

The Star has a strong bill again this week, and it is a matter of individual taste which is the best feature of the two, "The Gambler" or "A Dangerous Affair." In the latter Stuart Holmes, who has such an aptitude for loveless roles like the unscrupulous German spy in a recent picture, is again cast as the unprincipled uncle of a millionaire's heir. He attempts to cheat his nephew out of his heritage, and the dastardly plot is only foiled by the intervention of a dashing Irishman, taken by Herbert Rawlinson. The picture is full of stirring elixirs and interest never wanes from start to finish. The other feature, "The Gambler," is a dramatized version of the famous play of the same name by Charles Klein. The leading part is taken by Harry T. Morey, and it is estimated that more than forty additional scenes of action beyond those in the stage play are presented in the picture. It is observable in the picture that the camera has been able to get infinitely greater action than the stage limitations allowed. Many dramatic episodes forming the story of "The Gambler" which could only be suggested by a word on the stage, and left to the imagination of the audience, are presented in their fullest detail on the screen. The picture therefore, will stand as a demonstration of the screen's superiority over the stage as a medium for the telling of a complete story.

Whereas the factor of the voice gives the stage productions a certain advantage over the competitor, the screen, the advantage that the latter has in latitude of action is by far the greater advantage.

In the screen version of "The Gambler," scenes are presented ranging from the bank office, to the clubhouse, to the interior and exterior of fine houses, the railroad station and many other settings. It would have required a stage several hundred feet wide and deep to present this situation. Then it would not have been adequate. "The Gambler" tells the story of a young man who wielded his father's fortune in a battle against a great combination of other capitalists. The hero, Wilbur Emerson, played by Mr. Morey, induces his father and two other associates to let him operate with unlimited power in the strife for millions. Wilbur's deals soon involve the group in technical illegalities. They find themselves gambling with the funds of the depositors in the elder Emerson's bank. A district attorney who has succeeded in marrying the woman Wilbur was to have wed, obtains information against the Emersons. The prosecutor's fundamental jealousy toward the man who once was his rival in love, feeds the flame of his desire as public official, to prosecute Emerson. What follows is a series of events full of dramatic power. The climax is one fraught with unusual elements. "Vod-A-Vil" movies and an unusually good Mutt and Jeff comedy complete the bill.

"SUNDOWN TRAIL" IS STORY OF OLD CALIFORNIA MINING CAMP.

"Sundown Trail," a new photoplay which opened last night at the Imperial Theatre with Monroe Salisbury in the leading role is a story of Spanish Bay, one of the most notorious of the old California mining camps in the days of '49.

Opening scenes show the camp at the height of its glory. Wine and song pour forth merrily but there is no sign of white women to keep the miners from the pangs of loneliness.

A delegate is sent east to recruit an army of women to become wives of the miners. Among the women who arrived on the stage was a Virginia widow who came to ransom her baby from the hands of a Mississippi River gambler who fled to Spanish Bay when the river boats were closed against him.

Through sickness the girl forgets her identity, becoming apparently a woman of the demimonde. "Quiet" Carter, leader of the vigilantes saves her from deportation during a fanatical religious wave in the camp and marries her.

The role of "Quiet" Carter is depicted by Monroe Salisbury. Supporting the star are Clyde Fillmore, Albee Elliott, Beatrice Dominguez and Carl Stockdale. "Sundown Trail" was produced by Universal and directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon.

A romantic locale and the excellent dramatic work of Mr. Salisbury and his associated players are the outstanding features of the production.

The Vaudeville for the first three nights of the week is exceptionally good and at both performances yesterday every act made a decided hit. The headline attraction is undoubtedly the Heald Jolly Javelinas, a company of children under 12 years of age and their offering yesterday would do credit to professionals of much older years. Their act is well staged and during the balance of their engagement are bound to be great favorites. Miles Moulton has a funny sketch entitled "Othello" that is put across in fine shape and was highly delighted. The Deonzos have a real novelty act the best of its kind ever seen here. The man in the act is a cunning artist out of the ordinary and the way he jumps from bottles to vases and candle holders is something remarkable. The act is entirely new and must be seen to be appreciated. In addition to the above there was a Mack Sennett Comedy "Trying to Get Along" and the 17th. Episode of the Red Glove, the whole making up a bill just a little out of the ordinary.

1920 A YEAR OF CENTENARIES

New York, Dec. 23.—The coming year should have a special interest for the students of American history, marking, as it does, the centenary anniversary of the birth of an unusually large number of men and women whose lives and achievements were of profound influence upon the social, moral and intellectual progress of the age. Among them were distinguished artists, authors, statesmen, poets, clergymen, reformers, soldiers, editors, jurists, scientists, inventors and others. Following is a list of some of these eminent Americans:

William Tecumseh Sherman, one of the foremost Union commanders in the civil war.
Susan B. Anthony, a famous pioneer of the woman suffrage movement.
Anson Burlingame, the negotiator of the Burlingame Treaty with China.
Alice Cary, who with her sister achieved wide fame as a poetess.
Charles Devens, civil war commander and cabinet officer.
John Lester Wallack, one of the most eminent American actors of his day.
David C. Broderick, United States senator from California.
Samuel Blatchford, associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Elisha Kent Kane, Arctic explorer, discoverer of the open Polar sea.
Henry J. Raymond, one of the founders of the New York Times.
George Frederic Root, noted composer and song publisher.
Piny Earle Chase, scientist, educator and author.
John F. Reynolds, Union commander killed while leading the charge at Gettysburg.

Louisa Lane Drew, popular actress.
Randolph S. Foster, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
William Gaston, governor of Massachusetts.

James Densmore, pioneer typewriter manufacturer.
John W. Ellis, governor of North Carolina.
Benjamin Perley Poore, author, editor and journalist.
James W. Nesmith, United States senator from Oregon during the civil war.
Laura Keane, celebrated actress and manager.
John H. Hopkins, prominent Episcopal clergyman and author.
George F. Holmes, first president of the University of Mississippi.
Erastus O. Haven, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church.
James Harlan, cabinet officer and United States senator from Iowa.
Charles Henry Hall, prominent Episcopal clergyman.

Mary A. Livermore, lecturer, reformer and woman suffrage leader.
George L. Curry, governor of Oregon.
Charles Force Deems, clergyman and educator.
Henry Bergh, founder of the first American society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.
William Henry Huntington, famous art collector and philanthropist.
John W. Garrett, Baltimore banker, railroad president and philanthropist.
Hugh J. Hastings, who had a brilliant career as a newspaper publisher in New York.
William T. Walters, Baltimore capitalist, famed for his art collection.
John S. Barbour, United States senator from Virginia.
Frederick T. Dent, civil war soldier and brother-in-law of Gen. U. S. Grant.

About 80 per cent of the heat produced in California comes from fuel-oil which is also extensively used in Oregon and Washington.

HOT WATER FOR SICK HEADACHES

Why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headaches are caused by an auto-intoxication — which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, impatient, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilid, aspirin or the bromides, which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drunk before breakfast will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar. If you aren't feeling your best, if your tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphate hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur Compound.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her hair dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful sheen of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Little Hands

How Will They Grow? Trained or Untrained?

THOSE little hands are now in your care, mother. You can train them to bring life-long happiness or let them go untrained. But now is the time to begin their education.

For more than half-a-century the Gerhard Heintzman piano has trained little hands and little ears.

It has the easy action that brings true delicacy of touch and expression. It has the beauty, depth and resonance of tone that brings the highest appreciation of musical values.

And because it is Canada's Greatest Piano it is an inspiration, an encouragement to achieve something.

—and it is a possession worthy of pride. Start now to let the Gerhard Heintzman piano train your children as you wish you had been trained.

For the last thirty years the average yield of potatoes per acre in Ontario has been about forty-one per cent over that of the United States. One of the principal by-products of the national forests of Japan is mushrooms, which have yielded in one year a revenue of over a million dollars. Shantung silk is produced by a species of worm which lives on the willow-trees of that Chinese province and differs from the mulberry-tree silkworm.

In 1850 America produced no more than half a million pounds of candy, as against a present production estimated from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 pounds a year. Sweden's first free port, which forms a part of the harbor of Stockholm, is open for business, although it will take perhaps ten years before all contemplated improvements are completed. Paraguay has valuable forest resources, the most important of which is quebracho, particularly rich in tannin.
